High Court Drops U.S. Voting Age

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that 18-year-olds may vote in federal elections for presidential and congressional candidates but held that state voting age laws will continue to govern state and local contests.

The Court divided sharply on the issue with Justice Hugo L. Black delivering the prevailing opinion.

The justices were in greater agreement in upholding two other key sections of the law — one striking down state residency rules of beyond 30 days for voting in presidential elections, and the other banning throughout the country literacy tests for voting.

Black said that where Congress attempted to remedy racial discrimination by the states, its authority was enhanced by the 14th Amendment's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws" and other post-Civil War amendments.

But he said Congress had no foundation in the Civil War amendments for changing the voting age for the states.

On the other hand, legislation on the voting age in national elections, where Congress has more power, need not be tied to eliminating racial discrimination, he said.

Four justices — William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall — said the 18-year-old vote law should have been extended to state and local elections.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John M. Harlan, Potter Stewart and Harry A. Blackmun agreed however with Black that Congress could not interfere with the age set for voters by the states for nonfederal elections.

The 18-year-old vote was brought to a direct Supreme Court test because it was enacted in the form of legislation rather than the more drawn out process of a constitutional amendment requiring ratification by the states.

The Court decision means that all but three states must revamp their voting procedures in national elections to lower the age eligibility to 18. Georgia, Alaska and Kentucky

Angela Davis Loses Appeal

By PAT ANGLE

Black militant Angela Y. Davis was turned down today in her appeal to a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in what appeared to be her last legal means to block extradition to California.

All other efforts before New York state courts and lower federal courts had failed to overturn a Marin County request that she be extradited.

"I find no legal basis for staying her extradition," said Justice John M. Harlan in denying the application, according to United Press International.

The action came as widespread activist support for the former philosophy instructor was swelling throughout the country.

One such rally of supporters was held Saturday night in Marin City where a sympathetic audience of approximately 100 persons was told the government is determined to murder Miss Davis in order to silence her.

Massive public support is needed to free her, five persons told the rally for Miss Davis' defense.

The speakers, who drew cheers and applause from the supporters of the Black activist included her sister, Fania Davis Jordan; her attorney, Terence Hallinan; and Peggy Jackson sister of Jonathan Jackson who was killed in the shootout Aug. 7 at the Marin Hall of Justice. Ellis Shepher of the Bay Area Committee to Free Angela Davis and Royce McLemore, a Marin City resident, also spoke.

Hallinan, who termed Miss Davis, "a brilliant, brilliant woman," said she is charged with "four capital offenses," murder, kidnapping, conspiracy to commit murder and conspiracy to kidnap, all punishable by death.

"After we in this country have seen what has happened to Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, Fred Hampton and dozens of others, we should have no doubt about what the ruling

HERAKLION, Greece — A Marin County man and four Northern Californians were convicted Saturday of smuggling hashish worth $500,000 into Greece last August.

Robert F. Black, 29, of Forest Knolls, was sentenced to 10 years in prison, as were three of his accomplices. A fourth got nine years. Black also is wanted in Marin.

Judicial authorities today set for February their appeal. Meanwhile, they will be held in Chanea Prison on the island of Crete. If their appeal is rejected, they are expected to be transferred to the island of Corfu, where most narcotics violators are kept, judicial officials said.

The wives of Black and two of the other accomplices said they would stay on Crete until their husbands' appeal is heard in February. The three women were in court for the three-day trial, and wept when the sentence was declared by the three-member court.

Black, however, still faces a no bail bench warrant issued for him in November by Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Black and four other persons were arrested in January 1969 in a $350,000 drug raid in Tamalpais Valley. Their trial was delayed by appeals, and a date still has not been set.

The raid disclosed a cache of LSD, hashish and marijuana in an antique shop said to be fronting for a narcotics dealing operation. At that time, Black listed his address as 3 Lincoln Avenue, Sausalito.

Marin drug officials said at that time that the suspects were real "pros" in narcotics dealing, and that the hashish came from Beirut, Lebanon. Black and his accomplices in the Greek trial also got their hashish in Lebanon.

Black's accomplices were John Moore, 50, Phillip Erwin Amos, 30, and Kenneth Connell, 28, all of Sacramento, and David Lee Mantell, 30, of San Francisco.

28 Killed In Hotel Blaze; 19 Others Die In Fires

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Fires killed at least 47 persons across the nation Sunday—28 of them in an exclusive hotel in Tucson, Ariz., and a family of seven in their tarpaper shack in Grafton, N.H.

At least 63 other persons were injured and damages passed the half-million-dollar mark.

Arson was suspected in the fire which killed 28 and injured at least 44 early Sunday at Tucson's plush, 200-room Pioneer Hotel. Some of the victims — including four children — jumped from upper-floor windows. Damage was estimated at $300,000.

New Hampshire fire officials today were investigating the blaze which destroyed a two-room tarpaper shack, killing Raymond and Bernice Pickard, their three children and two other children who were state wards.

All of the victims were found dead in their beds. The shack had burned down by the time firemen arrived. Authorities said the children ranged in age from eight months to 16 years.

Poland Gets Hardline Politburo; Party Chief Gomulka Replaced

WARSAW (UPI)—Calm began to return to rebellious Poland today with the announcement that Wladyslaw Gomulka had been ousted as leader of the nation's Communist party and replaced by Edward Gierek. Gierek began talks today to try to straighten out the country's economy.

Warsaw Radio said 80 per cent of the shipyard workers were back at their jobs in Gdansk (Danzig) and Gdynia, where the riots that finally toppled Gomulka began last Monday. There was no word from the other Baltic seaport of Szczecin (Stettin), where the worst rioting occurred, and which was still sealed off from the rest of the nation.

In Warsaw, the tension of the past week seemed to be lifting. There had been rumors of a general strike here today' but none materialized and residents of the capital went about their work, gossiping and joking about the leadership changes.

Gomulka, 65, was fired Sunday after 14 years of leadership and the 57-year-old Gierek, a former miner and engineer, was named his successor in an attempt to end the crisis and rebuild the nation's economy.

Telephone connections to Gdansk and Gdynia were restored. It was believed the Baltic region was still tense, specially in Szczecin, where deaths and injuries ran high and the riots left a sharp taste of bitterness that will take months—or years—to erase.

A Soviet Embassy official denied that Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev or any other high Russian official was here recently to check on the riots or oversee the change of leadership in the Polish party.

Glos Pracy, the Polish trade union newspaper, called the leadership change a "turning point...the moment of political decisions which take into account the situation that has arisen and which have met halfway the expectations of workers and of all the working people in general."

Ignacio Man Is Returned In Slaying Of Policeman

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The man accused of killing patrolman Richard P. Radetich of Ignacio has been returned here from the Midwest where he was arrested a month ago.

Wesley Allen Johnson, 26, accused of shooting Radetich, as the San Francisco officer wrote out a parking ticket arrived by plane Saturday manacled to a homicide inspector.

The suspect, also known as Joe Allen Johnson, was then whisked from the airport in an unmarked car to San Francisco County Jail.

He was booked on suspicion of murder, assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer, attempted armed robbery, and being in possession of a firearm as a convict.

Bail was set at $50,000, but no court appearance had been scheduled today.

Johnson, who has a long police record, was brought back from Dayton, Ohio, where he had been held since Nov. 7 on a federal warrant charging him with interstate flight to avoid prosecution. He was arrested in nearby Xenia by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, then resisted extradition.

Radetich of 468 Via Del Plano was shot in the head in the pre-dawn hours as he wrote out a ticket for a parked car. He died several hours later.

Father Of 3 Dies In Mill Valley Fire

An intense fire swept a stucco house in Mill Valley last night, killing its three occupants — a man and two pets.

The Marin County Coroner's Office identified the man as Edward Snyder, 44, a maintenance worker for the Tamalpais High School District. The family dog and a pet rabbit also died in the blaze.

Firemen said they responded to the alarm at 97 Lomita Drive at 8:05 p.m. to find the kitchen and living room "completely involved" in flames. The intense heat had exploded many of the windows, they said.

A fireman who entered a rear door found Snyder face down on the floor in the back bedroom. He was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage and rushed to Marin General Hospital by ambulance, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Deputy Coroner Jack Darblay said death apparently was due to smoke and carbon monoxide inhalation.

Snyder's wife, Jeanne, and their three children, Charles, Cookie and Jeanne, were attending a church service when the fire broke out, Darblay said.

Fire Chief Joseph E. Regalia said the fire apparently started near the fireplace, where the family reportedly had been burning magazines earlier in the day. He estimated damage to the house at $10,000.

Snyder, a former Mill Valley city employee, had lived six years in Marin and 20 years in California. Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Massive Storm Is Tapering Off

The season's latest massive storm, which whipped the entire state during the weekend, tapered off in Marin during this morning's commute hours after dumping more than two inches of rain on Sausalito.

The new storm piled about five feet of snow at some Southern California locations Saturday stranding 1,000 travelers on Highway 5 between Los Angeles and Bakersfield. The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department provided four-wheel drive vehicles and four helicopters to evacuate some travelers while others walked out after snow plows cleared a path.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said there would be partly clearing skies over Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties tonight, but predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers for tomorrow.

In Marin, the heavy downpour which began at about noon yesterday dumped more than two inches of rain on Sausalito, according to the fire department's 8 a.m. reading. San Rafael was washed by 1.55 inches during the 48 hours ending at noon today.

Other locations in Marin and Southern Sonoma reported 24-hour 8 a.m. readings as: Bolinas, 1.24 inches; Fairfax, 1.07; Larkspur, .74; Novato, 1.35; Petaluma, .75; Point Reyes Station, 1.55; Tiburon, 1.26; and Woodacre, 1.77 inches.

Only major storm damage reported occurred at Inverness where county public works crews worked from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. yesterday clearing slide rubble from county roads, the department said today. Additional information was not available. Elsewhere in Marin, cities reported some tree damage and clogged catch basins.

Travelers warnings continued for heavy snow in the Sierra Nevada and Southern California mountains. The forecast was for poor visibility and gusty winds.

Another storm from the Gulf of Alaska was predicted to hit Northern California by Wednesday and weather bureau predictions say Marin, Southern Sonoma and much of the state can expect a wet, windy Christmas Day.

CHICAGO (UPI) — George Keck, the personal choice of founder William A. Patterson to head United Air Lines in 1963, was replaced today in a surprise move that put the management of a West Coast hotel company in charge of the finncially ailing airline and its parent firm.

United is the world's second largest airline behind Aeroflot, the Soviet line. In 1969 it carried 30,109,000 passengers and reported 25,484,753,000 revenue passenger miles.

Western International, which operates 60 hotels in 14 countries, was acquired by UAL Aug. 10.

U.S. To Withdraw 17,000 Troops From Asian Bases

TOKYO (UPI) —The United States announced today it is withdrawing 12,000 American servicemen from Japan and 5,000 from Okinawa in a cutback of its military presence in northeast Asia.

Reduction of strength in Japan will bring U.S. forces to a level of about 27,000 from a present figure of 39,000, the lowest since U.S. armed forces came to Japan as conquerers at the end of World War II.

The American withdrawals from Japan and Okinawa were agreed on at a meeting of high level Japanese and American military and diplomatic officials at the Japanese foreign office.

Most of the changes will take effect before the middle of 1971.

Official U.S. sources in Tokyo did not disguise the fact that the cutbacks were inspired by American financial difficulties, since they involved the American relinquishment of bases which a short time ago were deemed irreplaceable for the U.S. military posture in the Far East.

Court Favors Parent Firm In Hughes Fight

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Tate murder trial broke into an uproar today when the three young women defendants began struggling with bailiffs and shouting at the judge that they were not being permitted to conduct their own defense.

Leslie Van Houten slapped a burly sheriff's deputy as he attempted to hold her in her chair on orders of Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older as the defendants were brought into the courtroom for the first time since Dec. 3.

The three young women—Miss Van Houten, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel—were finally pulled from the courtroom by bailiffs, screaming at the judge in defiance.

A few moments later, chief defendant Charles Manson also began shouting at Older and he was taken out of the courtroom.

Maxwell Keith had been appointed by the court to represent Miss Van Houten in place of missing attorney Ronald Hughes but before the new attorney could present a motion for a mistrial for the 20-year-old Miss Van Houten, she was on her feet demanding that another lawyer, Mary Fielder, be appointed in his place.

Crime Didn't Pay

The pair gave station attendant Albert Mitchell a $10 bill, asked for change and then told him it was a holdup when he unlocked the cash register.

Red Shells Explode Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) —The Cambodian Command said today Viet Cong and North Vietnamese units bombarded Cambodian positions slightly more than seven miles from downtown Phnom Penh Sunday night.

Communiques from Saigon said Viet Cong gunners shelled Da Nang Air Base and a nearby U.S. Marine unit and terrorists set off a bomb near a Saigon rail yard.

The Cambodian Command said the Communist mortar attack was against the village of Peam Oknha Ong on the east bank of the Mekong River.

In other parts of Cambodia, the Command said Viet Cong forces blew up another bridge on Highway 4 linking Phnom Penh to the port of Kompon Som.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said four rockets hit Da Nang Air Base early today.

Traffic Toll

CHICAGO (UPI) —The National Safety Council has estimated that between 550 and 650 persons will die in traffic accidents across the nation during this year's three-day Christmas weekend.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

NSA Refused

KENT, Ohio (UPI) —Kent State University has refused the National Student Association (NSA) permission to hold its annual leadership conference on campus next month.

Kent State Dean of Student Affairs Dr. Richard Bredemeir said Sunday University President Robert I. White desired a one-year moratorium fromsuch activities as the result of the May 4 shooting of four students by National Guardsmen.

GIs Fly Out

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. Air Force brought in a fleet of its own planes today to fly 376 American GIs home for Christmas after the South Vietnamese government refused to allow a chartered Pan American airways 747 jumbo jet to land at Tan Son Nhut airbase.

Military sources said the last of the temporarily stranded GIs left late today aboard four Air Force C141 Starlifter jet transport planes. The C141s were rushed to Vietnam after the 747 scheduled to arrive Sunday night failed to arrive.

The Pan Am 747 would have been the first 747 to land in South Vietnam. But the flight was canceled before it left San Francisco after the Saigon government refused permission to land at Tan Son Nhut.

"There are technical problems and the (Tan Son Nhut) landing strip is not available right now for jumbo (747s) jets," a South Vietnamese spokesman said.

Crime On Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sevrious crime climbed 10 per cent nationwide during the first nine months of 1970 with the largest increase reported in the sukburbs, Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced today.

The rate of increase was the lowest for the 9-month period since 1965 and was 1 per cent lower than for the corresponding period of 1969, according to the FBI's uniform crime reports.

Large cities of over 250,00 reported crime up 6 per cent, compared to a 14 per cent rise in the suburbs and 9 per cent in rural areas.

Inflation Burn

LONDON (UPI)—The average contents of a three pence (three cents) box of matches has gone down from 44 to 41,. Bryant and May, the nation's largest match manufacturer, said Wednesday.

Bumpers Blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Five law students organized under the name SMASH said today the government's plan to require better bumpers on cars is so weak it would not even insure a car would run after a five mile per hour crash.

The George Washington University Students said they would petition the transportation department to drop its plan in favor of one requiring that cars withstand crashes at 15 miles per hour without damage.

The Transportation Department proposed Nov. 21 that 1973 model cars be required to withstand a five mile per hour crash without damage to lights, reflectors, latching devices, or fuel, cooling and exhaust systems.

"The rules do not require that the car be able to be driven away following the test," SMASH said in a statement.

Cabs On Street

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yellow taxicabs dotted city streets for the first time in 15 days Sunday on approval of a contract dependent on the City Council authorization of a 40 per cent fare increase to give the drivers higher wages.

Most of the city's 11,700 taxis were cruising their beats today fueled by a shaky truce spelled out by Harry Van Arsdale Jr., president of Local 3036 of the Taxi Drivers Union, who warned there would be another walkout unless the council acted quickly and without "any undue delay."

He said the vote by some 4,500 union members during a tense meeting technically only was to "discontinue" the strike staged Dec. 12 by 36,000 fleet and independent cab drivers.

Heart Falters

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—The heart of Rep. L. Mendel Rivers faltered Sunday night but a quick-acting physician restored the heartbeat of the 65-year-old chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Rivers, recovering from open heart surgery, was listed in "serious condition" after the incident.

Dr. John Kirklin of University Hospital, the South Carolina Democrat's physician, said Rivers' heart stopped beating at 8:55 p.m. EST Sunday but "fortunately, a resident physician was just a few feet away and resuscitive measures were begun promptly."

High Court Rejects Angela Davis Appeal

class has in mind for Angela Davis — the gas chamber", the attorney said.

Miss Davis, a former instructor in philosphy at the University of California at Los Angeles, is accused of purchasing the guns used in the Aug. 7 escape attempt at the Marin Hall of Justice. Judge Harold J. Haley, Jonathon Jackson, who brought the guns to the courtroom and two San Quentin inmates, William Christmas and James McClain, died in the abortive escape.

Hallinan said officials "have sought from the first to lynch her (Miss Davis) and deny her right to a free trial. They are anxious to get her out here while there is still the hysteria in Marin, so they can be sure of a conviction," he continued.

Miss Jackson said she felt "It wasn't any more of a crime for Jon (her brother) to take guns into the courtroom than for the police to kill Fred Hampton or pay to have Malcolm X killed." Hampton was shot as he slept during a pre-dawn police raid on a Chicago Black Panthers headquarters, Malcolm X by black political rivals.

"Jon couldn't kill anyone — I know that," Miss Jackson continued, saying she could not think of the Aug. 7 incident as "a shoot-out. We don't even know if the guns the brothers were carrying were loaded."

She commented briefly on the charge that Miss Davis signed for the guns used and implied that her signature on the forms did not necessarily mean she had actually signed them. Miss Jackson noted Miss Davis had been arrested several times in the past 18 months, since she announced she was a Communist and began to speak publicly in defense of the Soledad Brothers, three black prisoners accused of stabbing a prison guard.

"When she began to speak out, the oppressor came down on her and we all know they will go to any lengths and use any means necessary to get what they want," Miss Jackson said. She pointed out that any person arrested must turn over his driver's license (which includes his signature) to police "who could easily make a photostatic copy of that signature."

Mrs. McLemore warned that "if Angela Davis is convicted, there isn't really any future for Marin City, which has already been put through much harassment because of the Civic Center thing."

Mrs. Jordan said Marin City "has to serve as an example to people in the rest of the world who are anxious to free Angela. She also decried the fact her sister had "been placed on the FBI's Most Wanted List and talked about as a dangerous criminal, when she wasn't even charged with committing any overt act of violence."

She went on to say that "Angela is dangerous and a threat, but not because she killed anyone. Angela didn't kill anyone and neither did Jonathon," she continued, "the only ones who killed on that day were the San Quentin guards and they should be charged with murder." The audience burst into applause.

"Angela has exposed the true criminals by talking about ending their exploitation of capitalism and racism; her fight is everyone's fight," Mrs. Jordan continued, "She has put her life on the line."

Shepherd said the decision to charge Angela Davis with murder "was part of the government's attempt to destroy the black liberation movement in this country. Her only crimes are her fight against terror and oppression in the black community, her exposure of prison conditions and her devotion to her people," he added.

Walter Turner, of the Marin Steering Committee to Defend Angela Davis, which arranged the rally, said a demonstration to free Miss Davis is scheduled for tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the Federal Building in San Francisco. On Wednesday, Miss Davis' supporters will march from San Francisco to Marin to begin a vigil.

The five claimed that a Sausalito man they identified as Jim Vincent had hired them to rescue political "friends in trouble" in the Middle East. They said that Vincent hired them to fly "highly placed Arab political refugees" to Europe.

They denied they knew there was 1,425 pounds of hashish in the toilet of the Martin 220 airplane police captured when they landed here for refueling on their way from Lebanon.

The prosecution said that the five were supposed to pick up 60 bags of the narcotic at a secret landing strip in Lebanon, but had to take off with only 13 bags after police suddenly arrived and began shooting at the Arab cargo handlers.

Greek police confiscated the $250,000 airplane and $52,000 found on the five men.

Black, the original contact with Vincent, told the court he had introduced the others to the Sausalitan. He testified that "Vincent" said the trip did not involve narcotics.

Greek police told the court that the five men "worked for the Mafia," and said that Moore had asked for protection for his family in California against Mafia retaliation for his cooperation with the police.

The vote on the residency requirements was 8 to 1, with Justice John M. Hartan dissenting.

Oregon and Texas asked the Court to declare the law an unconstitutional invasion of the right of states to set voter qualifications.

The Nixon administration opposed passage of the measure on constitutional grounds but was required to defend it under challenge in the high court.

The Justice Department had also asked that sections on residency rules to ban literacy tests be upheld.

The Court acted in its last session before taking a holiday recess. It returns Monday, Jan. 11.

TV Film Arguments At Trial

I-J Special Report

The TV station contends it should not be forced to show its "outs" — films not broadcast. The station's attorney, said such "outs" are similar to a reporter's confidential notes, and should be protected under the First Amendment of the Constitution.

Judge William E. Jensen ordered in-chambers showing of the "ins" — film actually broadcast. He said this would let defense attorneys see whether the film contain enough material for the case they are presenting.

Defense attorneys are trying to establish a foundation to put into evidence the film showing the arrest of John J. DeMartini, 46, of Mill Valley. He is vice president of International Typographical Union 21 which struck the I-J on Jan. 7.

AIRLINE

placement by Thomas F. Gleed, head of the UAL executive committee, came as a "bombshell."

Keck joined United Air Lines in 1946 from Owens-Illinois Can Co., and became a maintenance base executive. He was made president in 1963 and chief executive in 1966.

United prospered under Keck's management through 1969, but in the first-nine months of this year it had a $16.1 million loss compared with a profit of almost $50 million for 1969.

Keck will continue as a director of the airline and the parent firm. Gleed said he was sure the company would be able to utilize Keck's experience.

Keck attracted wide attention several weeks ago with a letter to the company's 51,000 employees, saying the airline's loss may reach $40 million for all of 1970, and that the domestic airline industry would have losses this year of between $100 million and $200 million.

The airline has laid off about 400 workers this year and by yearend its working force will be 2,400 under the number originally budgeted at the year's start.

Tallow Firm Gets Union Contract

Striking employees at the Royal Tallow and Soap Co., Petaluma, approved a new contract Saturday and returned to work today.

The terms of the contract were not revealed, but the signing ended a seven-day strike by the San Francisco Teamsters Union Local No. 85 and Sonoma-Marin Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Local No. 64.

Sonoma County health officials had hoped for an early end to the wage dispute because slaughter houses and ranchers had no other means of disposing of dead animals.

Only two weeks ago the Polish-West German treaty put Gomulka at the pinnacle of his career. Today he was out of a job—toppled by a week of riots and demonstrations protesting a 20 per cent rise in food prices and, more sweepingly, his government's entire economic policy.

The riots wracked six Polish cities, brought death and widespread destruction and led to strikes in Warsaw and other cities. A general strike was reported in Szczecin (Stettin), a riot center, and the nation waited to see if Gomulka's ouster would end the labor unrest.

Immediately after the announcement of his selection, Gierek went on television to call for "order and peace" in this tense nation. He admitted the "ill-considered economic policies," confessed that the party had not always been "in close contact with the...whole nation" and said Poland would receive an answer for the past week—"A self-critical one, but clear and true."

"There are many problems which...demand a solution," he said, citing the woes of working women, youth and housing. "These problems will be considered...and they will be solved."

The TV station contends it should not be forced to show its "outs" — films not broadcast. The station's attorney, said such "outs" are similar to a reporter's confidential notes, and should be protected under the First Amendment of the Constitution.

Judge William E. Jensen ordered in-chambers showing of the "ins" — film actually broadcast. He said this would let defense attorneys see whether the film contain enough material for the case they are presenting.

Defense attorneys are trying to establish a foundation to put into evidence the film showing the arrest of John J. DeMartini, 46, of Mill Valley. He is vice president of International Typographical Union 21 which struck the I-J on Jan. 7.

AIRLINE

placement by Thomas F. Gleed, head of the UAL executive committee, came as a "bombshell."

Keck joined United Air Lines in 1946 from Owens-Illinois Can Co., and became a maintenance base executive. He was made president in 1963 and chief executive in 1966.

United prospered under Keck's management through 1969, but in the first nine months of this year it had a $16.1 million loss compared with a profit of almost $50 million for 1969.

Keck will continue as a director of the airline and the parent firm. Gleed said he was sure the company would be able to utilize Keck's experience.

Keck attracted wide attention several weeks ago with a letter to the company's 51,000 employees, saying the airline's loss may reach $40 million for all of 1970, and that the domestic airline industry would have losses this year of between $100 million and $200 million.

The airline has laid off about 400 workers this year and by yearend its working force will be 2,400 under the number originally budgeted at the year's start.

Tallow Firm Gets Union Contract

Striking employees at the Royal Tallow and Soap Co., Petaluma, approved a new contract Saturday and returned to work today.

The terms of the contract were not revealed, but the signing ended a seven-day strike by the San Francisco Teamsters Union Local No. 85 and Sonoma-Marin Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Local No. 64.

Sonoma County health officials had hoped for an early end to the wage dispute because slaughter houses and ranchers had no other means of disposing of dead animals.

POLAND

Only two weeks ago the Polish-West German treaty put Gomulka at the pinnacle of his career. Today he was out of a job—toppled by a week of riots and demonstrations protesting a 20 per cent rise in food prices and, more sweepingly, his government's entire economic policy.

The riots wracked six Polish cities, brought death and widespread destruction and led to strikes in Warsaw and other cities. A general strike was reported in Szczecin (Stettin), a riot center, and the nation waited to see if Gomulka's ouster would end the labor unrest.

Immediately after the announcement of his selection, Gierek went on television to call for "order and peace" in this tense nation. He admitted the "ill-considered economic policies," confessed that the party had not always been "in close contact with the...whole nation" and said Poland would receive an answer for the past week—"A self-critical one, but clear and true."

"There are many problems which...demand a solution," he said, citing the woes of working women, youth and housing. "These problems will be considered...and they will be solved."

Civic Center Security To Be Studied

A series of new developments in the controversy over security provisions at the Civic Center will go before the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow morning.

The board will discuss these recent developments:

1. County Administrator Alan Bruce has assured women they will not be subjected to intensified body search.

2. Fireman's Fund American Insurance Co. will formally report a compromise proposal on insurance coverage for county buildings.

3. A group of county employees has asked officials to stop body searches, open the building to night meetings, and stop building alterations.

In addition, the county administrator's office is scheduled to report on bids received for burglar alarms to be placed on various parts of the building. This is another one of the "related physical changes which county supervisors authorized in a blanket order on Oct. 13 after the Hall of Justice courtroom explosion.

Also, the human rights commission will ask for a public hearing in early January to discuss the increased security. Commissioners want to know if the body searches infringe on civil rights.

CAFETERIA — Report of six bids received from various vendors who want to take over operation of the Civic Center cafeteria next month.

DEPUTIES — Jake W. Ehrlich, attorney for the Marin County Sheriff's Deputies Association, will ask for salary raises and a 1970-71 contract for the deputies.

WELFARE — The director of public social services will report on the number of high income families who are getting welfare aid, and on federal and state laws which allow families with $10,000 income to stay on public aid.

DRYDOCKS — Bids will be received for demolition of the huge drydocks in Richardson Bay. Bids on the work range from $75,000 to nearly $300,000.

TENNIS-SWIM — Karibuni Incorporated of Sausalito seeks county endorsement of a tennis-swim complex in Marin City.

FLOOD AID — County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost will report that a one or two-year delay is expected in federal reimbursement to property owners who removed flood debris on the assurance that federal reimbursement would be paid.

SIGN — Casa Marinwood Association will appeal, a 25-foot high Cala Foods sign approved for the former Lee Brother Market building in Marinwood.

San Rafael Submits Viaduct Parking Plan

Detailed plans for a proposed parking area under the Highway 101 viaduct have been submitted to the state Division of Highways by the City of San Rafael.

A letter from City Mgr. James H. McCown sent Friday contains preliminary plans for construction of 250 to 275 parking spaces under the highway between Second Street and Mission Avenue.

The letter also includes estimated construction and operation costs plus a tentative fee schedule so that the state can determine a lease arrangement.

The state, which, according to McCown, has looked favorably on leasing its land under the overpass to the city, had requested the cost figures.

The city has estimated the cost of laying as asphalt surface, lighting the area, and purchasing ticket dispensers and gates at $87,990. Yearly operating cost would be about $4,000, according to McCown's letter.

Proposed parking rates are 35 cents a day or $7.50 a month, the same rates charged at the city's Second and Lindaro streets lot.

McCown said the city is hoping for an annual lease at low cost because of the uncertainty of future use.

The old northbound viaduct is to be torn down whenever funds become available, maybe in five to ten years, McCown said.

San Rafael would start construction as soon as possible after approval is gained, McCown said.

Bobby Baker's Appeal Out; Ex-LBJ Aide Faces Prison

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today rejected an appeal by Robert G. "Bobby" Baker, former Senate Democratic secretary, who was convicted in 1967 of theft and income tax evasion.

The brief order meant that the former Lyndon B. Johnson protege, who now lives in Ocean City, Md., must soon start serving a jail term of one to three years.

After his conviction, the U. S. Court of Appeals here sent the case back to District Judge Oliver C. Gasch to determine whether the government's evidence was tainted by illegal eavesdropping.

Gasch held hearings and ruled in the negative. The appeals court then affirmed the conviction June 30, 1970.

The court's denial of Baker's appeal came as the Washington Post reported that Baker had emerged from a long period of relative privacy to develop a 25-story condominium at Ocean City, costing about $50 million.

The Post quoted Baker as saying in an interview that the new structure would be adjacent to his motel.

Baker, according to the Post, planned as a first step in the new development to sell the 77 units in the Carousel as individual condominiums.

The Post said Baker declined to discuss other than business matters in the interview. "I'm not in politics and I don't want to get involved in politics," the newspaper quoted him as saying.

Campaign For School Overseas

San Rafael High School students have launched a campaign to raise $1,000 for construction of a school overseas in conjunction with a Peace Corps School Partnership Program.

Lesley Belfor, 17, student action chairman of the school's student body executive board, who is coordinating the project, said fund raising should start early next year.

The project was initiated, she said, after the executive board saw a Peace Corps promotional film on the program, in which more than 1,000 other American schools have participated.

The $1,000 will be used for purchase of building materials, she said, the school will be built by villagers under the supervision of a Peace Corps volunteer.

The site of the school will be selected by the Peace Corps, she said.

Among projects being planned, she said, are a benefit dance for San Rafael High School students and the sale of small plastic bricks for construction of a model of the planned school in the high school's library.

Miss Belfor, of 208 McNear Drive, San Rafael, said the students hope to elicit community support of the project.

Student Policy Is On Agenda

The San Rafael Board of Education is to consider a revised district policy on student rights and responsibilities at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the district office.

Also to be considered is recommending that the City of San Rafael annex the San Pedro School site at 1565 Vendola Drive.

Revenue Sharing Study Revealed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin County would have received $859,390 in fiscal 1971-72 if Congress had acted on President Richard M. Nixon's proposal to share federal revenues with state and local governments, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

Flournoy said a U.S. Treasury Department study showed that the state would have received $370,550,670 and California cities and counties an additional $165,823,798.

Sonoma County would have received $1,072,080, he said.

Flournoy said the revenue sharing proposal probably will be reintroduced in Congress during 1971 but, even if approved, could not be expected to be effective before fiscal 1972-73.

Afghanistan became an independent state in 1747.

Civic Center Security To Be Studied

A series of new developments in the controversy over security provisions at the Civic Center will go before the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow morning.

The board will discuss these recent developments:

1. County Administrator Alan Bruce has assured women they will not be subjected to intensified body search.

2. Fireman's Fund American Insurance Co. will formally report a compromise proposal on insurance coverage for county buildings.

3. A group of county employees has asked officials to stop body searches, open the building to night meetings, and stop building alterations.

In addition, the county administrator's office is scheduled to report on bids received for burglar alarms to be placed on various parts of the building. This is another one of the "related physical changes which county supervisors authorized in a blanket order on Oct. 13 after the Hall of Justice courtroom explosion.

Also, the human rights commission will ask for a public hearing in early January to discuss the increased security. Commissioners want to know if the body searches infringe on civil rights.

CAFETERIA — Report of six bids received from various vendors who want to take-over operation of the Civic Center cafeteria next month.

DEPUTIES — Jake W. Ehrlich, attorney for the Marin County Sheriff's Deputies Association, will ask for salary raises and a 1970-71 contract for the deputies.

WELFARE — The director of public social services will report on the number of high income families who are getting welfare aid, and on federal and state laws which allow families with $10,000 income to stay on public aid.

DRYDOCKS — Bids will be received for demolition of the huge drydocks in Richardson Bay. Bids on the work range from $75,000 to nearly $300,000.

TENNIS-SWIM — Karibuni Incorporated of Sausalito seeks county endorsement of a tennis-swim complex in Marin City.

FLOOD AID — County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost will report that a one or two-year delay is expected in federal reimbursement to property owners who removed flood debris on the assurance that federal reimbursement would be paid.

SIGN — Casa Marinwood Association will appeal, a 25-foot high Cala Foods sign approved for the former Lee Brother Market building in Marinwood.

Revenue Sharing Study Revealed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin County would have received $859,390 in fiscal 1971-72 if Congress had acted on President Richard M. Nixon's proposal to share federal revenues with state and local governments, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

Flournoy said a U.S. Treasury Department study showed that the state would have received $370,550,670 and California cities and counties an additional $165,823,798.

Sonoma County would have received $1,072,080, he said.

Flournoy said the revenue sharing proposal probably will be reintroduced in Congress during 1971 but, even if approved, could not be expected to be effective before fiscal 1972-73.

Afghanistan became an independent state in 1747.

San Rafael Submits Viaduct Parking Plan

Detailed plans for a proposed parking area under the Highway 101 viaduct have been submitted to the state Division of Highways by the City of San Rafael.

A letter from City Mgr. James H. McCown sent Friday contains preliminary plans for construction of 250 to 275 parking spaces under the highway between Second Street and Mission Avenue.

The letter also includes estimated construction and operation costs plus a tentative fee schedule so that the state can determine a lease arrangement.

The state, which, according to McCown, has looked favorably on leasing its land under the overpass to the city, had requested the cost figures.

The city has estimated the cost of laying as asphalt surface, lighting the area, and purchasing ticket dispensers and gates at $87,990. Yearly operating cost would be about $4,000, according to McCown's letter.

Proposed parking rates are 35 cents a day or $7.50 a month, the same rates charged at the city's Second and Lindaro streets lot.

McCown said the city is hoping for an annual lease at low cost because of the uncertainty of future use.

The old northbound viaduct is to be torn down whenever funds become available, maybe in five to ten years, McCown said.

San Rafael would start construction as soon as possible after approval is gained, McCown said.

Bobby Baker's Appeal Out; Ex-LBJ Aide Faces Prison

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today rejected an appeal by Robert G. "Bobby" Baker, former Senate Democratic secretary, who was convicted in 1967 of theft and income tax evasion.

The brief order meant that the former Lyndc B. Johnson protege, who now lives in Ocean City, Md., must soon start serving a jail term of one to three years.

After his conviction, the U. S. Court of Appeals here sen the case back to District Judge Oliver C. Gasch to determine whether the government's evidence was tainted by illegal eavesdropping.

Gasch held earings and ruled in the negative. The appeals court then affirmed the conviction June 30, 1970.

Baker operates the plush Carousel Motel in Ocean City.

The court's denial of Baker's appeal came as the Washington Post reported that Baker had emerged from a long period of relative privacy to develop a 25-story condominium at Ocean City, costing about $50 million.

The Post quoted Baker as saying in an interview that the new structure would be adjacent to his motel.

Baker, according to the Post, planned as a first step in the new development to sell the 77 units in the Carousel as individual condominiums.

The Post said Baker declined to discuss other than business matters in the interview. "I'm not in politics and I don't want to get involved in politics," the newspaper quoted him as saying.

Campaign For School Overseas

San Rafael High School students have launched a campaign to raise $1,000 for construction of a school overseas in conjunction with a Peace Corps School Partnership Program.

Lesley Belfor, 17, student action chairman of the school's student body executive board, who is coordinating the project, said fund raising should start early next year.

The project was initiated, she said, after the executive board saw a Peace Corps promotional film on the program, in which more than 1,000 other American schools have participated.

The $1,000 will be used for purchase of building materials, she said, the school will be built by villagers under the supervision of a Peace Corps volunteer.

The site of the school will be selected by the Peace Corps, she said.

Among projects being planned, she said, are a benefit dance for San Rafael High School students and the sale of small plastic bricks for construction of a model of the planned school in the high school's library.

Miss Belfor, of 208 McNear Drive, San Rafael, said the students hope to elicit community support of the project.

Student Policy Is On Agenda

The San Rafael Board of Education is to consider a revised district policy on student rights and responsibilities at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the district office.

The original proposal had been accused in October of undermining parental authority.

Also to be considered is recommending that the City of San Rafael annex the San Pedro School site at 1565 Vendola Drive.

Four Treated After Accident

Four Marin City residents were treated Friday at Marin General Hospital for injuries sustained in a two-car accident in San Rafael.

The hospital said Gloria Ann Guice, 21, of 161 Drake Avenue, driver of one auto, was treated for cuts and bruises on her forehead and back pains following the 6 p.m. accident.

Shirley Townsel, 23, of 99 Cole Drive was treated for a bruised forehead as was Monica Harris, 4, of 161 Drake Avenue, the hospital said.

Teresa Townsel, 5, also of 99 Cole Drive, was treated for two loose teeth sustained in the accident at Fourth Street and East Crescent Drive. All were passengers in the Guice auto.

Police said Gloria Guice was attemtping to make a left turn from Fourth Street when her vehicle was struck from the rear by another driven by Freddie Lee Enright of 372 Bolinas Road, Fairfax.

Mekong Unit To Be Withdrawn

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command announced today the phasing out of the Navy's River Assault Squadron 15 in the Mekong River Delta as part of the Phase Five troop withdrawal. About 255 sailors are involved.

The unit, composed of armored patrol boats, armored transports and landing craft and various other support craft, was formed in 1968 as part of the combined Army-Navy "Riverine" assault force in the Mekong Delta.

The command said that some of the unit's boats had been transferred to other units in June and November and that the remaining vessels had been moved to the former U.S. base at Dong Tam in the Mekong Delta and would be turned over to the Vietnamese Navy later this month.

Australia Ballet To Tour U.S.

The ballet will visit 18 cities under American promoter Sol Hurok.

The tour will open in Los Angeles on Dec. 26 where the company will be joined by Rudolf Nureyev and Lucette Aldous as guest artists.

Cool Dip

LE MANS, France (UPI) — In a temperature of 34 degrees Fahrenheit about 20 persons whose ages ranged from 14 to 83 marked their annual tradition by diving into the waters of the River Deme Sunday. The bathers were all members of the "Frigodemes" club, founded 11 years ago by Fernand Pesson, mayor of nearby Beaumont Sur Deme.

Riot Held Spur To Army Spying

DETROIT (UPI)—The 1967 Detroit riot "came as a surprise" to Army intelligence officers and "touched off the whole increase" in its controversial domestic spying' a former Army agent said in a report published today.

In a telephone interview with the Detroit Free Press, Ralph M. Stein, Flushing, N.Y., said the size of the national intelligence collecting office was multiplied fivefold after the riot, which claimed 43 lives, brought out gaps in the Army's knowledge of civil disorders.

Prior to the Detroit riot, Stein said, "The Army had only a few people in Washington moitoring newspapers and reports." He said the riot "came as a surprise and the intelligence officers got up tight because they were unable to answer all the questions to the generals."

Stein, 27, said that in 1967-68 he was in charge of the Army intelligence "left-wing desk" in Washington, a national collection point for information about radical activity. He is one of three ex-intelligence officers who have recently revealed what they knew about the Army's surveillance of civilian dissenters, protesters and politicians.

Stein said in the Free Press interview that his superiors in intelligence "were very conspiracy-oriented. They felt like if they could just find out who organized the riots and who ran them, then they might be able to stop them."

He singled out the riot here as "what touched off the whole increase in Army intelligence surveillance."

After the riot, during which Stein had an open line to the Army's Detroit intelligence branch, he said, "The colonel who commanded the group called me over and said: 'I want you to be Mr. New Left. This will be the left-wing desk, and it will be the pilot desk for the other desks.'"

Two other desks were added, Stein said, one for right-wing activity and another for racial matters. The size of the intelligence section was increased from three men to 15, he said.

As "Mr. New Left," Stein said he became well informed on the activities of several radical groups, particularly the Students for a Democratic Society. He said most of the reports he received on the SDS came from FBI infiltrators of the group.

"Some of the reports were from public meetings, but others were from persons on the inside circle, or a penetrator," Stein said.

He said FBI reports were accepted as gospel by Army intelligence, with the Army making no cross-checks of its own.

"The Army was often called on to give reports and this (the FBI reports) would be the source material," he said.

Stein said the Army collected files and still may not have destroyed them on such public figures as Mrs. Martin Luther King, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and the Rev. Jesse Jackson of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, folk singers Joan Baez, Arlo Guthrie and Phil Ochs, actress Jane Fonda and Georgia state Rep. Julian Bond.

Squandering Charged In Pennsy Failure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The bankrupt Penn Central railroad lost almost all of its $21 million investment in a subsidiary airline whose chief officer squandered its assets on women and high living, congressional investigators have charged.

A report issued by the House Banking Committee Sunday said the money was lost over a six-year period by Executive Jet Aviation Inc. (EJA), a subsidiary of the railroad formed to provide transportation for flying business executives.

The congressional investigators charged retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Oibert F. Lassiter of Beverly Hills, Calif., "squandered millions of dollars" of the airline's resources. Lassiter was ousted as president of EJA last July.

"Lassiter consistently and insistently attempted to palm his monumental living expenses off on EJA through the credit card expense account route," the report said.

The investigators also quoted testimony of former EJA employes that Lassiter provided female companions for two men who played key roles in financing the airline. They were identified as David Bevan of Philadelphia, Penn Central's former chief financial officer and former Air Force Gen. Charles J. Hodge, a New York investment banker.

Contacted by API, Lassiter described the charges as "sensationalism" and "most absurd." He said EJA's legal and financial problems were the fault of Bruce Sundlun, a Washington lawyer who took over the presidency and served previously as EJA's general consul. Lassiter predicted he would win a legal fight to regain control of the airline.

Brazil Considers Kidnap Demands

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—President Emilio Medici met today with two cabinet ministers on antigovernment guerrillas' demands for freedom for 70 political prisoners in exchange for the life of kidnaped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher.

A military source today denied the government had already gathered the 70 prisoners at Rio's Galao International Airport to fly them out of the country.

Reliable sources said, however, authorities in the states of Sao Paulo, Minas Gerais and Rio Grande Do Sul had begun performing medical examinations on the prisoners listed by tha guerrillas who seized Bucher Dec. 7.

Hip Protest

BARNSLEY, England (UPI) —Workmen clearing a drain at the home of Mrs. Audrey Kenn, 34, found the blockage was caused by a grdle and a pair of tights. The local council sent her a bill for 19 pounds ($45.60) —but she and her husband have refused to pay it. She says the girdle, for 35-inch hips is not hers. Hers are 44 inches.

Fuel Supply Up, Lincoln Says

WASHINGTON UPI) —Increased coal production and good supplies of natural gas have ended the threat of an energy crisis this winter, barring extraordinary interruptions, according to the Nixon Administration.

George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, said during the weekend that adequate preplanning by the fuel industries plus warm fall weather have averted the energy crisis anticipated earlier this year.

He said the amount of natural gas in storage is higher than had been anticipated earlier this year, and the year's coal production will be the highest since 1947. He said the picture was also optimistic for butane and propane gas inventories.

Burglary Suspects Arrested

Two persons have been arrested on suspicion of attempted burglary in San Rafael according to police.

Herman Joseph Sanchez, 25, of 16 Meadow Avenue, was arrested Thursday after three witnesses heard a window break at Marin Metal Salvage, 718 A Francisco Boulevard. The three identified Sanchez after police caught him nearby at 6 p.m.

Sanchez, also known as Rivera, was booked into Marin County Jail and posted $1,250 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Carl D. (Buddy) Anger, 15, of 81 Graceland Drive was arrested after he allegedly kicked in a door at 275 Prospect Drive and was caught by the resident, Don T. Rademaker, police said.

He was booked into juvenile hall, police said.

Classic Case

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—A man walked into the Jefferson County clerk's office and demanded $8 for the four days he had spent confined in jail.

"You misunderstand, sir," a deputy clerk replied. "The four days was in lieu of payment of $8 to the county on your case. It's like board and room."

The man listened quietly and then answered: "Well, if that's the way it is, you can keep your $8. It's a lousy jail and a lousy way to earn $8."

Driver Reports He Was Robbed

John B. Sabris, 22, said the woman asked him to drive to Marin City last Wednesday but when they arrived there about 10:45 p.m., she asked to stop and pick up a woman friend.

As they stopped at a lot on Drake Avenue, the first woman pulled a gun and then two men also entered his car, one carrying a gun.

He said the four took his wallet containing about $15 and some stereo tapes.

ETHNIC MAKEUP OF MARIN SCHOOLS

An ethnic-racial breakdown of Marin schools indicates Caucasians outnumber others 42,510 to 3,206. This report, required by the state department of education, is forwarded each year by the Marin County Schools Office. Compared with last year's, it shows a drop in student population of about 800, primarily Caucasians. "Other White" listed above is defined as all those Caucasians not counted under "Spanish Surname." "Oriental" is limited to Chinese, Japanese or Korean descent, while "Other Nonwhite" includes Filipinos, Polynesians, Aleuts, Eskimos and Asians other than those listed under "Oriental." Breakdown for the county on a percentage basis shows Spanish, 2.13 per cent; white, 93.01; black, 2.92; oriental, 1.5; American Indian, .17 and other nonwhite, .27 of a per cent.

Innocent Pleas To Pot Charges

A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 12.

Drug agents who raided Susnow's home Dec. 11 said they found a half kilo of suspected pot.

Thirteen other persons arrested were not charged.

Riot Held Spur To Army Spying

DETROIT (UPI)—The 1967 Detroit riot "came as a surprise" to Army intelligence officers and "touched off the whole increase" in its controversial domestic spying' a former Army agent said in a report published today.

In a telephone interview with the Detroit Free Press, Ralph M. Stein, Flushing, N.Y., said the size of the national intelligence collecting office was multiplied fivefold after the riot, which claimed 43 lives, brought out gaps in the Army's knowledge of civil disorders.

Prior to the Detroit riot, Stein said, "The Army had only a few people in Washington moitoring newspapers and reports." He said the riot "came as a surprise and the intelligence officers got up tight because they were unable to answer all the questions to the generals."

Stein, 27, said that in 1967-68 he was in charge of the Army intelligence "left-wing desk" in Washington, a national collection point for information about radical activity. He is one of three ex-intelligence officers who have recently revealed what they knew about the Army's surveillance of civilian dissenters, protesters and politicians.

Stein said in the Free Press interview that his superiors in intelligence "were very conspiracy-oriented. They felt like if they could just find out who organized the riots and who ran them, then they might be able to stop them."

He singled out the riot here as "what touched off the whole increase in Army intelligence surveillance."

After the riot, during which Stein had an open line to the Army's Detroit intelligence branch, he said, "The colonel who commanded the group called me over and said: 'I want you to be Mr. New Left. This will be the left-wing desk, and it will be the pilot desk for the other desks.'"

Two other desks were added, Stein said, one for right-wing activity and another for racial matters. The size of the intelligence section was increased from three men to 15, he said.

As "Mr. New Left," Stein said he became well informed on the activities of several radical groups, particularly the Students for a Democratic Society. He said most of the reports he received on the SDS came from FBI infiltrators of the group.

"Some of the reports were from public meetings, but others were from persons on the inside circle, or a penetrator," Stein said.

He said FBI reports were accepted as gospel by Army intelligence, with the Army making no cross-checks of its own.

"The Army was often called on to give reports and this (the FBI reports) would be the source material," he said.

Stein said the Army collected files and still may not have destroyed them on such public figures as Mrs. Martin Luther King, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and the Rev. Jesse Jackson of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, folk singers Joan Baez, Arlo Guthrie and Phil Ochs, actress Jane Fonda and Georgia state Rep. Julian Bond.

Squandering Charged In Pennsy Failure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The bankrupt Penn Central railroad lost almost all of its $21 million investment in a subsidiary airline whose chief officer squandered its assets on women and high living, congressional investigators have charged.

A report issued by the House Banking Committee Sunday said the money was lost over a six-year period by Executive Jet Aviation Inc. (EJA), a subsidiary of the railroad formed to provide transportation for flying business executives.

The congressional investigators charged retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Oibert F. Lassiter of Beverly Hills, Calif., "squandered millions of dollars" of the airline's resources. Lassiter was ousted as president of EJA last July.

"Lassiter consistently and insistently attempted to palm his monumental living expenses off on EJA through the credit card expense account route," the report said.

The investigators also quoted testimony of former EJA employes that Lassiter provided female companions for two men who played key roles in financing the airline. They were identified as David Bevan of Philadelphia, Penn Central's former chief financial officer and former Air Force Gen. Charles J. Hodge, a New York investment banker.

Contacted by API, Lassiter described the charges as "sensationalism" and "most absurd." He said EJA's legal and financial problems were the fault of Bruce Sundlun, a Washington lawyer who took over the presidency and served previously as EJA's general consul. Lassiter predicted he would win a legal fight to regain control of the airline.

Brazil Considers Kidnap Demands

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—President Emilio Medici met today with two cabinet ministers on antigovernment guerrillas' demands for freedom for 70 political prisoners in exchange for the life of kidnaped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher.

A military source today denied the government had already gathered the 70 prisoners at Rio's Galao International Airport to fly them out of the country.

Reliable sources said, however, authorities in the states of Sao Paulo, Minas Gerais and Rio Grande Do Sul had begun performing medical examinations on the prisoners listed by tha guerrillas who seized Bucher Dec. 7.

Hip Protest

BARNSLEY, England (UPI) —Workmen clearing a drain at the home of Mrs. Audrey Kenn, 34, found the blockage was caused by a grdle and a pair of tights. The local council sent her a bill for 19 pounds ($45.60) —but she and her husband have refused to pay it. She says the girdle, for 35-inch hips is not hers. Hers are 44 inches.

Fuel Supply Up, Lincoln Says

WASHINGTON UPI) —Increased coal production and good supplies of natural gas have ended the threat of an energy crisis this winter, barring extraordinary interruptions, according to the Nixon Administration.

George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, said during the weekend that adequate preplanning by the fuel industries plus warm fall weather have averted the energy crisis anticipated earlier this year.

He said the amount of natural gas in storage is higher than had been anticipated earlier this year, and the year's coal production will be the highest since 1947. He said the picture was also optimistic for butane and propane gas inventories.

Burglary Suspects Arrested

Two persons have been arrested on suspicion of attempted burglary in San Rafael according to police.

Herman Joseph Sanchez, 25, of 16 Meadow Avenue, was arrested Thursday after three witnesses heard a window break at Marin Metal Salvage, 718 A Francisco Boulevard. The three identified Sanchez after police caught him nearby at 6 p.m.

Sanchez, also known as Rivera, was booked into Marin County Jail and posted $1,250 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Carl D. (Buddy) Anger, 15, of 81 Graceland Drive was arrested after he allegedly kicked in a door at 275 Prospect Drive and was caught by the resident, Don T. Rademaker, police said.

He was booked into juvenile hall, police said.

Classic Case

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—A man walked into the Jefferson County clerk's office and demanded $8 for the four days he had spent confined in jail.

"You misunderstand, sir," a deputy clerk replied. "The four days was in lieu of payment of $8 to the county on your case. It's like board and room."

The man listened quietly and then answered: "Well, if that's the way it is, you can keep your $8. It's a lousy jail and a lousy way to earn $8."

Driver Reports He Was Robbed

John B. Sabris, 22, said the woman asked him to drive to Marin City last Wednesday but when they arrived there about 10:45 p.m., she asked to stop and pick up a woman friend.

As they stopped at a lot on Drake Avenue, the first woman pulled a gun and then two men also entered his car, one carrying a gun.

He said the four took his wallet containing about $15 and some stereo tapes.

OEO Battle: Blackmail, Or Checks And Balances?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some might call it blackmail. Others might see it as an exercise in the checks and balances that stabilize the U.S. political process. But whatever the label, it certainly was a clear example of how things get done, or in this case undone, in Washington.

It really began 18 months ago when Donald Rumsfeld, the new Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), decided to pull the antipoverty agency's relatively small program of legal services for the poor out of the big community action division and give it standing of its own.

Rumsfeld made the change and chose Terry Lenzner, a soft-spoken former civil rights lawyer, to run the program. The young New Yorker made legal services the hottest OEO program with a series of lawsuits, some started in the previous administration, that challenged the treatment of poor people by federal, state and local governments, with emphasis on the politically volatile welfare field.

Legal services under Lenzner made lots of governors and mayors mad, and Rumsfeld repeatedly indicated it was better for government officials to be embarrassed by lawsuits than threatened by marching mobs. He successfully fought congressional efforts to hobble the program in 1969 and overrode several governors' vetoes of legal service projects in 1970. And, as never before, the big and prestigious bar associations threw full support to the program.

It may be worth noting that the vetoes Rumsfeld overrode were cast by Democratic governors and that the bar groups began to find the federal legal services program attractive about the time the legal profession was coming under heavy criticism for failing to help make good on the principle of equal justice for the poor as well as the rich. But the record was there: legal services was alive and well in Washington.

Then something happened. Rumsfeld and his tough operations chief, Frank Carlucci, decided it was time to push Lenzner's program out of the responsibility for its operations to the agency's regional directors.

Such decentralization is good Nixon administration doctrine, but Lenzner and the program's friends in Washington saw the plan as a move to deliver legal services into the clutches of bureaucrats who might hesitate to offend governors and mayors. They began fighting the "regionalization" plan inside OEO and finally brought the bar associations into the battle.

As a man who had instructed local antipoverty leaders to work with rather than against the power structure, Rumsfeld felt it best to bow to the legal establishment. He withdrew the plan.

Rumsfeld did not give up, however. He issued a set of policy guidelines that required the legal services Washington staff to work with the regional offices in working up new programs. Lenzner and his deputy, Frank Jones, took that to be "back door" regionalization. The bar was called to the rescue once again.

At that point, the battle no longer was one of those quiet bureaucratic knife fights that Washington is famous for. It was out in the open, and it became obvious that there were going to be public winners — Rumsfeld and Carlucci or Lenzner and Jones. Remsfeld made sure no one missed the point by dismissing Glenzner and Jones.

But the OEO director was far from victorious. Opposition now became loud and insistent. His opponents played their trump card: the Democratic-dominated House Education and Labor and Senate Labor and Welfare committees demanded an accounting.

Rumsfeld got through the House hearings without too much trouble, mainly because that committee was more interested in a Detroit community action program that Carlucci was closing down than the legal services battle. But the senators were another story. They were prepared to wash every stitch of legal services' linen publicly. On top of that, the Senate committee was sitting on several OEO appointments the administration wanted confirmed before adjournment.

The balance was tipped when Nixon decided to announce the appointment of Rumsfeld to the full-time job of counsellor to the President and his replacement as OEO director by Carlucci. He wanted Carlucci confirmed quickly, which meant within the week or so that Congress had left to run, and he didn't want a big nasty fight over legal services hitting the papers and television.

Rumsfeld surrendered. He had OEO issue a brief, unsigned notice that the legal services guidelines had been rescinded. Within an hour, the Senators called off their legal services investigation. The word was passed that the confirmation hearings might be held.

Lenzner and Jones called a news conference and expressed their happiness. But both men displayed a keen awareness of the real world and the irony of victory: they noted that they had won, but were no longer running legal servies Rumsfeld and Carlucci had lost, but one of them would be running OEO and through it, legal services.

AEC Reports Business Boom

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Oak Ridge National Laboratory reports a booming business in its enrichment services program under the Atomic Energy Commission.

Since the enrichment program started at the Oak Ridge Gaseious Diffusion Plant, about 3 million pounds of nuclear fuel has been processed for customers throughout the free world.

Soldiers Helping Bridge Gap Via Operation MARS

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (UPI) — Soldiers who staff the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS) station here are helping families bridge the miles between them and their men overseas.

Twenty-five men from the 176th Signal Co. operate the station which, through contact with similar stations in Vietnam, enables threa-minute conversations between soldiers and wives or parents.

The Ft. Lewis station, which will place about 80,000 calls this year, is known around the United States as "The King of MARS," because it makes about 20 per cent of all MARS calls to Southeast Asia, explains Sgt. Mike E. Philpott, who is in charge of the station.

Since it began operating in 1967, Philpott says, the station has put through about 175,000 calls.

By utilizing the MARS net, the price of a call is figured on the long distance rate from Tacoma, which is near Ft. Lewis, to the home town. By going through civilian channels, the price would be about $20 for three minutes and the quality often would be poor.

"We've had many calls that sound like the two parties are just across the street from each other," says Philpott.

Working 24 hours a day with three different radios, the Ft. Lewis station can contact any three of 49 radio outfits in Vietnam for MARS connections.

$400 In Play Equipment Set

New play equipment costing $400 has been voted by the Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission.

The purchase will include a $300 swing set for the Las Gallinas playground, to be installed in early January, and $100 in games and toy sets for the tiny tots program, reported William A. Gordon, director of parks and recreation.

The commission will hold its annual old fashioned Christmas caroling Monday for convalescent homes, senior citizens and shut-ins, he said. The caroling, open to everyone, will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the center.

ETHNIC MAKEUP OF MARIN SCHOOLS

An ethnic-racial breakdown of Marin schools indicates Caucasians outnumber others 42,510 to 3,206. This report, required by the state department of education, is forwarded each year by the Marin County Schools Office. Compared with last year's, it shows a drop in student population of about 800, primarily Caucasians. "Other White" listed above is defined as all those Caucasians not counted under "Spanish Surname." "Oriental" is limited to Chinese, Japanese or Korean descent, while "Other Nonwhite" includes Filipinos, Polynesians, Aleuts, Eskimos and Asians other than those listed under "Oriental." Breakdown for the county on a percentage basis shows Spanish, 2.13 per cent; white, 93.01; black, 2.92; oriental, 1.5; American Indian, .17 and other nonwhite, .27 of a per cent.

Innocent Pleas To Pot Charges

A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 12.

Drug agents who raided Susnow's home Dec. 11 said they found a half kilo of suspected pot.

Thirteen other persons arrested were not charged.

Soviets Haunted By Many Technological Hangups

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer, Managing Editor of the Financial Times of London, recently was in Moscow.

By CHRISTOPHER JOHNSON
London Financial Times-UPI

LONDON —The Russians have shown they can put a remote-controlled vehicle on the moon. A remarkable technological achievement. But in all sorts of more mundane ways their technology lags behind that of the West.

It does not make sense to consider the Soviet economy in isolation from Russia's world power role, any more than one can write about the United States economy without mentioning the Vietnam War.

As the Soviet leaders try to move nearer to parity with America, they are finding the economic burdens of world power status increasingly onerous.

The Czech crisis reopened the prospect of trouble in Central Europe. The Middle East turmoil is a drain on Russian military and economic aid. The frontier clashes with China have raised the spectre of a war in Siberia. And it is a constant struggle for the Russians to keep up with the Americans in advanced nuclear hardware.

The importance of the German-Soviet treaty signed this summer is that it brings stability on one of Russia's many fronts. Talks between the Russians and the Chinese also are proceeding, and an ambassador has gone to Peking. The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Helsinki also hold out some hope of a deal with the Americans on nuclear weapons.

Soviet military spending is running at nearly 10 per cent of Gross National Product (GNP), and it is absorbing an important share of the country's best technological brainpower. Until the Russian leaders know how this key element in their allocation of resources is going to develop, it is difficult for them to plan the rest of the economy meaningfully.

This must be one of the reasons why the next Five-Year Plan, for 1971-75, still has not seen the light of day, and the 24th Party Congress, at which the plan would be a showpiece, was postponed from the Lenin Centenary last April to March 1971.

According to one school of thought, the Soviet leadership's main objective is to get more rapid economic growth so as to catch up with the West, thus proving that Communist economic methods are more effective than capitalist ones, and silencing opposition on the home front by telling Soviet citizens they never have had it so good.

Another, more familiar, hard-line view is that the Soviet leadership's main concern is to keep itself in power and to build up the satellite empire around its frontiers wherever a power vacuum develops.

In the collective leadership system which superseded Khrushchev, there must be a constant tension between these two approaches, and it is anyone's guess which way the emphasis will shift from one year to another.

The long-run result is likely to be a compromise. The Soviet economy doubtless will be allowed to go on expanding at about the same rate as the Common Market —in the region of 4 to 5 per cent real growth of GNP per annum —so that living standards continue to improve just enough to stave off the sort of widespread political discontent that could involve the authorities in a return to the repression of the Stalin era.

The demands of defense and foreign policy are, however, unlikely to be relaxed enough to permit the sort of double-figure growth rate which would allow the Soviet Union to follow the example of Japan and catch up with the West in a generation or so.

In trying to catch up with the West, the Russians do it by means of gigantic investment projects which have the prestige bonus of being bigger than any similar Western project. The Bratsk power station is the world's most powerful; the Fiat car plant at Togliattigrad one day may produce a million cars a year; the truck factory on the Kama River, with help from Daimler-Benz and Renault, is to be the world's biggest with a capacity of 150,000 vehicles a year; the Rossiya Hotel in Moscow is said to have 6,000 beds —and so on.

These projects nearly always take longer to build and cost more than is allowed for in the original plan. The Russians lack the managerial and technological capacity to carry them all out; hence their eagerness for co-operation agreements with Western companies, particularly for the largest-scale operations.

Some of their Western friends are advising them, however, that the cost advantages of large-scale production taper off after a certain point and that the current vogue for "gigantism" leads to a wasteful use of investment resources.

The Russians clearly are prepared to take advice from the West, but the Soviet leaders are anxious to rebut the "convergence" theory. This theory predicts that Communism and capitalism will become more and more like each other, and eventually meet at a mid-point somewhat similar to that which Yugoslavia already has reached.

It would be a great blow to the prestige of the world Communist movement if it was ever admitted the differences between the two systems were unimportant. More positively, the Russians still believe in the virtues of central planning on grounds of economic efficiency and social justice.

The Soviet system still gives power to the ministries to decide who should produce what, how much of it and at what price. Variations from the norms often are negotiated by agreement at local level, but there still is too little scope for initiative by enterprising managers, too little wholesale trade of producer goods and too little feedback from the market to indicate what consumers actually want.

The main difficulty the planners have is allocation of scarce investment resources between competing economic priorities —quite apart from the military burden. The Soviet Union invests about 27 per cent of GNP somewhere, between the average Western rate and the very high Japanese rate. The real debate is about the allocation of investment as between making machinery for consumer goods industries and other, more long-run, priorities.

Some Kremlinologists see this as a tussle between agriculture, championed by party chief Leonid Brezhnev, and industry, represented by the more technocratic Premier, Alexei N. Kosygin.

Agriculture still absorbs about a quarter of the Soviet work force and yet it still cannot guarantee self-sufficiency in basic foodstuffs. Brezhnev thus has been arguing in favor of more mechanization and modernization on the farms.

In deciding to what extent to help the Soviet Union speed up its economic development, the West always has been in a dilemma, which is becoming more acute as Western technology becomes more advanced and thus more desirable to the Russians. Cocom, the Paris committee handling embargoes on trade with Communist countries, is split between the hard American line —which would be softened in the event of a political thaw —and the more permissive attitude of Britain and other Western European countries.

The argument for helping the Russians is that we shall do good both to our own exports and to the living standards of the Soviet people, thus, either making their lack of democratic freedom more tolerable or making it possible for the leadership to give in more easily to pressure for liberalization.

The argument against helping them too much is that if their economy grows faster they will be able to afford to spend more on defense, and that if the Communist system takes on too prosperous an image it may become more tempting than it now looks to the developing countries of the Third World.

It is an argument which is unlikely to be resolved in a hurry.

OEO Battle: Blackmail, Or Checks And Balances?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some might call it blackmail. Others might see it as an exercise in the checks and balances that stabilize the U.S. political process. But whatever the label, it certainly was a clear example of how things get done, or in this case undone, in Washington.

It really began 18 months ago when Donald Rumsfeld, the new Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), decided to pull the antipoverty agency's relatively small program of legal services for the poor out of the big community action division and give it standing of its own.

Rumsfeld made the change and chose Terry Lenzner, a soft-spoken former civil rights lawyer, to run the program. The young New Yorker made legal services the hottest OEO program with a series of lawsuits, some started in the previous administration, that challenged the treatment of poor people by federal, state and local governments, with emphasis on the politically volatile welfare field.

Legal services under Lenzner made lots of governors and mayors mad, and Rumsfeld repeatedly indicated it was better for government officials to be embarrassed by lawsuits than threatened by marching mobs. He successfully fought congressional efforts to hobble the program in 1969 and overrode several governors' vetoes of legal service projects in 1970. And, as never before, the big and prestigious bar associations threw full support to the program.

It may be worth noting that the vetoes Rumsfeld overrode were cast by Democratic governors and that the bar groups began to find the federal legal services program attractive about the time the legal profession was coming under heavy criticism for failing to help make good on the principle of equal justice for the poor as well as the rich. But the record was there: legal services was alive and well in Washington.

Then something happened. Rumsfeld and his tough operations chief, Frank Carlucci, decided it was time to push Lenzner's program out of the responsibility for its operations to the agency's regional directors.

Such decentralization is good Nixon administration doctrine, but Lenzner and the program's friends in Washington saw the plan as a move to deliver legal services into the clutches of bureaucrats who might hesitate to offend governors and mayors. They began fighting the "regionalization" plan inside OEO and finally brought the bar associations into the battle.

As a man who had instructed local antipoverty leaders to work with rather than against the power structure, Rumsfeld felt it best to bow to the legal establishment. He withdrew the plan.

Rumsfeld did not give up, however. He issued a set of policy guidelines that required the legal services Washington staff to work with the regional offices in working up new programs. Lenzner and his deputy, Frank Jones, took that to be "back door" regionalization. The bar was called to the rescue once again.

At that point, the battle no longer was one of those quiet bureaucratic knife fights that Washington is famous for. It was out in the open, and it became obvious that there were going to be public winners — Rumsfeld and Carlucci or Lenzner and Jones. Remsfeld made sure no one missed the point by dismissing Glenzner and Jones.

But the OEO director was far from victorious. Opposition now became loud and insistent. His opponents played their trump card: the Democratic-dominated House Education and Labor and Senate Labor and Welfare committees demanded an accounting.

Rumsfeld got through the House hearings without too much trouble, mainly because that committee was more interested in a Detroit community action program that Carlucci was closing down than the legal services battle. But the senators were another story. They were prepared to wash every stitch of legal services' linen publicly. On top of that, the Senate committee was sitting on several OEO appointments the administration wanted confirmed before adjournment.

The balance was tipped when Nixon decided to announce the appointment of Rumsfeld to the full-time job of counsellor to the President and his replacement as OEO director by Carlucci. He wanted Carlucci confirmed quickly, which meant within the week or so that Congress had left to run, and he didn't want a big nasty fight over legal services hitting the papers and television.

Rumsfeld surrendered. He had OEO issue a brief, unsigned notice that the legal services guidelines had been rescinded. Within an hour, the Senators called off their legal services investigation. The word was passed that the confirmation hearings might be held.

Lenzner and Jones called a news conference and expressed their happiness. But both men displayed a keen awareness of the real world and the irony of victory: they noted that they had won, but were no longer running legal servies Rumsfeld and Carlucci had lost, but one of them would be running OEO and through it, legal services.

AEC Reports Business Boom

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Oak Ridge National Laboratory reports a booming business in its enrichment services program under the Atomic Energy Commission.

Since the enrichment program started at the Oak Ridge Gaseious Diffusion Plant, about 3 million pounds of nuclear fuel has been processed for customers throughout the free world.

Soldiers Helping Bridge Gap Via Operation MARS

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (UPI) — Soldiers who staff the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS) station here are helping families bridge the miles between them and their men overseas.

Twenty-five men from the 176th Signal Co. operate the station which, through contact with similar stations in Vietnam, enables threa-minute conversations between soldiers and wives or parents.

The Ft. Lewis station, which will place about 80,000 calls this year, is known around the United States as "The King of MARS," because it makes about 20 per cent of all MARS calls to Southeast Asia, explains Sgt. Mike E. Philpott, who is in charge of the station.

Since it began operating in 1967, Philpott says, the station has put through about 175,000 calls.

By utilizing the MARS net, the price of a call is figured on the long distance rate from Tacoma, which is near Ft. Lewis, to the home town. By going through civilian channels, the price would be about $20 for three minutes and the quality often would be poor.

"We've had many calls that sound like the two parties are just across the street from each other," says Philpott.

Working 24 hours a day with three different radios, the Ft. Lewis station can contact any three of 49 radio outfits in Vietnam for MARS connections.

$400 In Play Equipment Set

New play equipment costing $400 has been voted by the Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission.

The purchase will include a $300 swing set for the Las Gallinas playground, to be installed in early January, and $100 in games and toy sets for the tiny tots program, reported William A. Gordon, director of parks and recreation.

The commission will hold its annual old fashioned Christmas caroling Monday for convalescent homes, senior citizens and shut-ins, he said. The caroling, open to everyone, will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the center.

Soviets Haunted By Many Technological Hangups

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer, Managing Editor of the Financial Times of London, recently was in Moscow.

By CHRISTOPHER JOHNSON
London Financial Times-UPI

LONDON —The Russians have shown they can put a remote-controlled vehicle on the moon. A remarkable technological achievement. But in all sorts of more mundane ways their technology lags behind that of the West.

It does not make sense to consider the Soviet economy in isolation from Russia's world power role, any more than one can write about the United States economy without mentioning the Vietnam War.

As the Soviet leaders try to move nearer to parity with America, they are finding the economic burdens of world power status increasingly onerous.

The Czech crisis reopened the prospect of trouble in Central Europe. The Middle East turmoil is a drain on Russian military and economic aid. The frontier clashes with China have raised the spectre of a war in Siberia. And it is a constant struggle for the Russians to keep up with the Americans in advanced nuclear hardware.

The importance of the German-Soviet treaty signed this summer is that it brings stability on one of Russia's many fronts. Talks between the Russians and the Chinese also are proceeding, and an ambassador has gone to Peking. The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Helsinki also hold out some hope of a deal with the Americans on nuclear weapons.

Soviet military spending is running at nearly 10 per cent of Gross National Product (GNP), and it is absorbing an important share of the country's best technological brainpower. Until the Russian leaders know how this key element in their allocation of resources is going to develop, it is difficult for them to plan the rest of the economy meaningfully.

This must be one of the reasons why the next Five-Year Plan, for 1971-75, still has not seen the light of day, and the 24th Party Congress, at which the plan would be a showpiece, was postponed from the Lenin Centenary last April to March 1971.

According to one school of thought, the Soviet leadership's main objective is to get more rapid economic growth so as to catch up with the West, thus proving that Communist economic methods are more effective than capitalist ones, and silencing opposition on the home front by telling Soviet citizens they never have had it so good.

Another, more familiar, hard-line view is that the Soviet leadership's main concern is to keep itself in power and to build up the satellite empire around its frontiers wherever a power vacuum develops.

In the collective leadership system which superseded Khrushchev, there must be a constant tension between these two approaches, and it is anyone's guess which way the emphasis will shift from one year to another.

The long-run result is likely to be a compromise. The Soviet economy doubtless will be allowed to go on expanding at about the same rate as the Common Market —in the region of 4 to 5 per cent real growth of GNP per annum —so that living standards continue to improve just enough to stave off the sort of widespread political discontent that could involve the authorities in a return to the repression of the Stalin era.

The demands of defense and foreign policy are, however, unlikely to be relaxed enough to permit the sort of double-figure growth rate which would allow the Soviet Union to follow the example of Japan and catch up with the West in a generation or so.

In trying to catch up with the West, the Russians do it by means of gigantic investment projects which have the prestige bonus of being bigger than any similar Western project. The Bratsk power station is the world's most powerful; the Fiat car plant at Togliattigrad one day may produce a million cars a year; the truck factory on the Kama River, with help from Daimler-Benz and Renault, is to be the world's biggest with a capacity of 150,000 vehicles a year; the Rossiya Hotel in Moscow is said to have 6,000 beds —and so on.

These projects nearly always take longer to build and cost more than is allowed for in the original plan. The Russians lack the managerial and technological capacity to carry them all out; hence their eagerness for co-operation agreements with Western companies, particularly for the largest-scale operations.

Some of their Western friends are advising them, however, that the cost advantages of large-scale production taper off after a certain point and that the current vogue for "gigantism" leads to a wasteful use of investment resources.

The Russians clearly are prepared to take advice from the West, but the Soviet leaders are anxious to rebut the "convergence" theory. This theory predicts that Communism and capitalism will become more and more like each other, and eventually meet at a mid-point somewhat similar to that which Yugoslavia already has reached.

It would be a great blow to the prestige of the world Communist movement if it was ever admitted the differences between the two systems were unimportant. More positively, the Russians still believe in the virtues of central planning on grounds of economic efficiency and social justice.

The Soviet system still gives power to the ministries to decide who should produce what, how much of it and at what price. Variations from the norms often are negotiated by agreement at local level, but there still is too little scope for initiative by enterprising managers, too little wholesale trade of producer goods and too little feedback from the market to indicate what consumers actually want.

The main difficulty the planners have is allocation of scarce investment resources between competing economic priorities —quite apart from the military burden. The Soviet Union invests about 27 per cent of GNP somewhere, between the average Western rate and the very high Japanese rate. The real debate is about the allocation of investment as between making machinery for consumer goods industries and other, more long-run, priorities.

Some Kremlinologists see this as a tussle between agriculture, championed by party chief Leonid Brezhnev, and industry, represented by the more technocratic Premier, Alexei N. Kosygin.

Agriculture still absorbs about a quarter of the Soviet work force and yet it still cannot guarantee self-sufficiency in basic foodstuffs. Brezhnev thus has been arguing in favor of more mechanization and modernization on the farms.

In deciding to what extent to help the Soviet Union speed up its economic development, the West always has been in a dilemma, which is becoming more acute as Western technology becomes more advanced and thus more desirable to the Russians. Cocom, the Paris committee handling embargoes on trade with Communist countries, is split between the hard American line —which would be softened in the event of a political thaw —and the more permissive attitude of Britain and other Western European countries.

The argunent for helping the Russians is that we shall do good both to our own exports and to the living standards of the Soviet people, thus, either making their lack of democratic freedom more tolerable or making it possible for the leadership to give in more easily to pressure for liberalization.

The argument against helping them too much is that if their economy grows faster they will be able to afford to spend more on defense, and that if the Communist system takes on too prosperous an image it may become more tempting than it now looks to the developing countries of the Third World.

It is an argument which is unlikely to be resolved in a hurry.

TORTE OR LOAVES

Banana Cake Ideas For Holiday Eating

One recipe — start-from-scratch version or quick mix marvel — makes a whole variety of holiday goodies. With one batch of banana batter you can layer a spectacular torte, turn out two nutty loaf cakes, or make close to three dozen cupcakes.

BANANA BATTER

1 package yellow cake mix
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 cup mashed bananas

Place cake mix in large bowl of electric mixer. Stir in baking soda. Add buttermilk, eggs and bananas. Beat according to the package mix directions.

BUNDT CAKE

Grease a nine-inch bundt or tube pan. Dust with flour. Fill with one recipe of banana cake batter. Bake at 350°F. for 50 minutes or until a toothpick or straw inserted in center of cake comes out dry. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Invert onto wire rack and while still warm add orange glaze. If you wish, when glaze is cool decorate further with sour cream drip frosting. Serves 12.

ORANGE GLAZE

½ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup orange juice
3 teaspoons grated orange peel
Peel of one orange cut into very thin strips (optional)

Heat syrup, orange juice and grated peel to boiling point. Pierce cake all over with a skewer, then spoon glaze on top and sides. If you don't add frosting, set aside about two tablespoons of the glaze before covering cake. Now stir in peel strips and arrange in a circle on top.

SOUR CREAM DRIP FROSTING

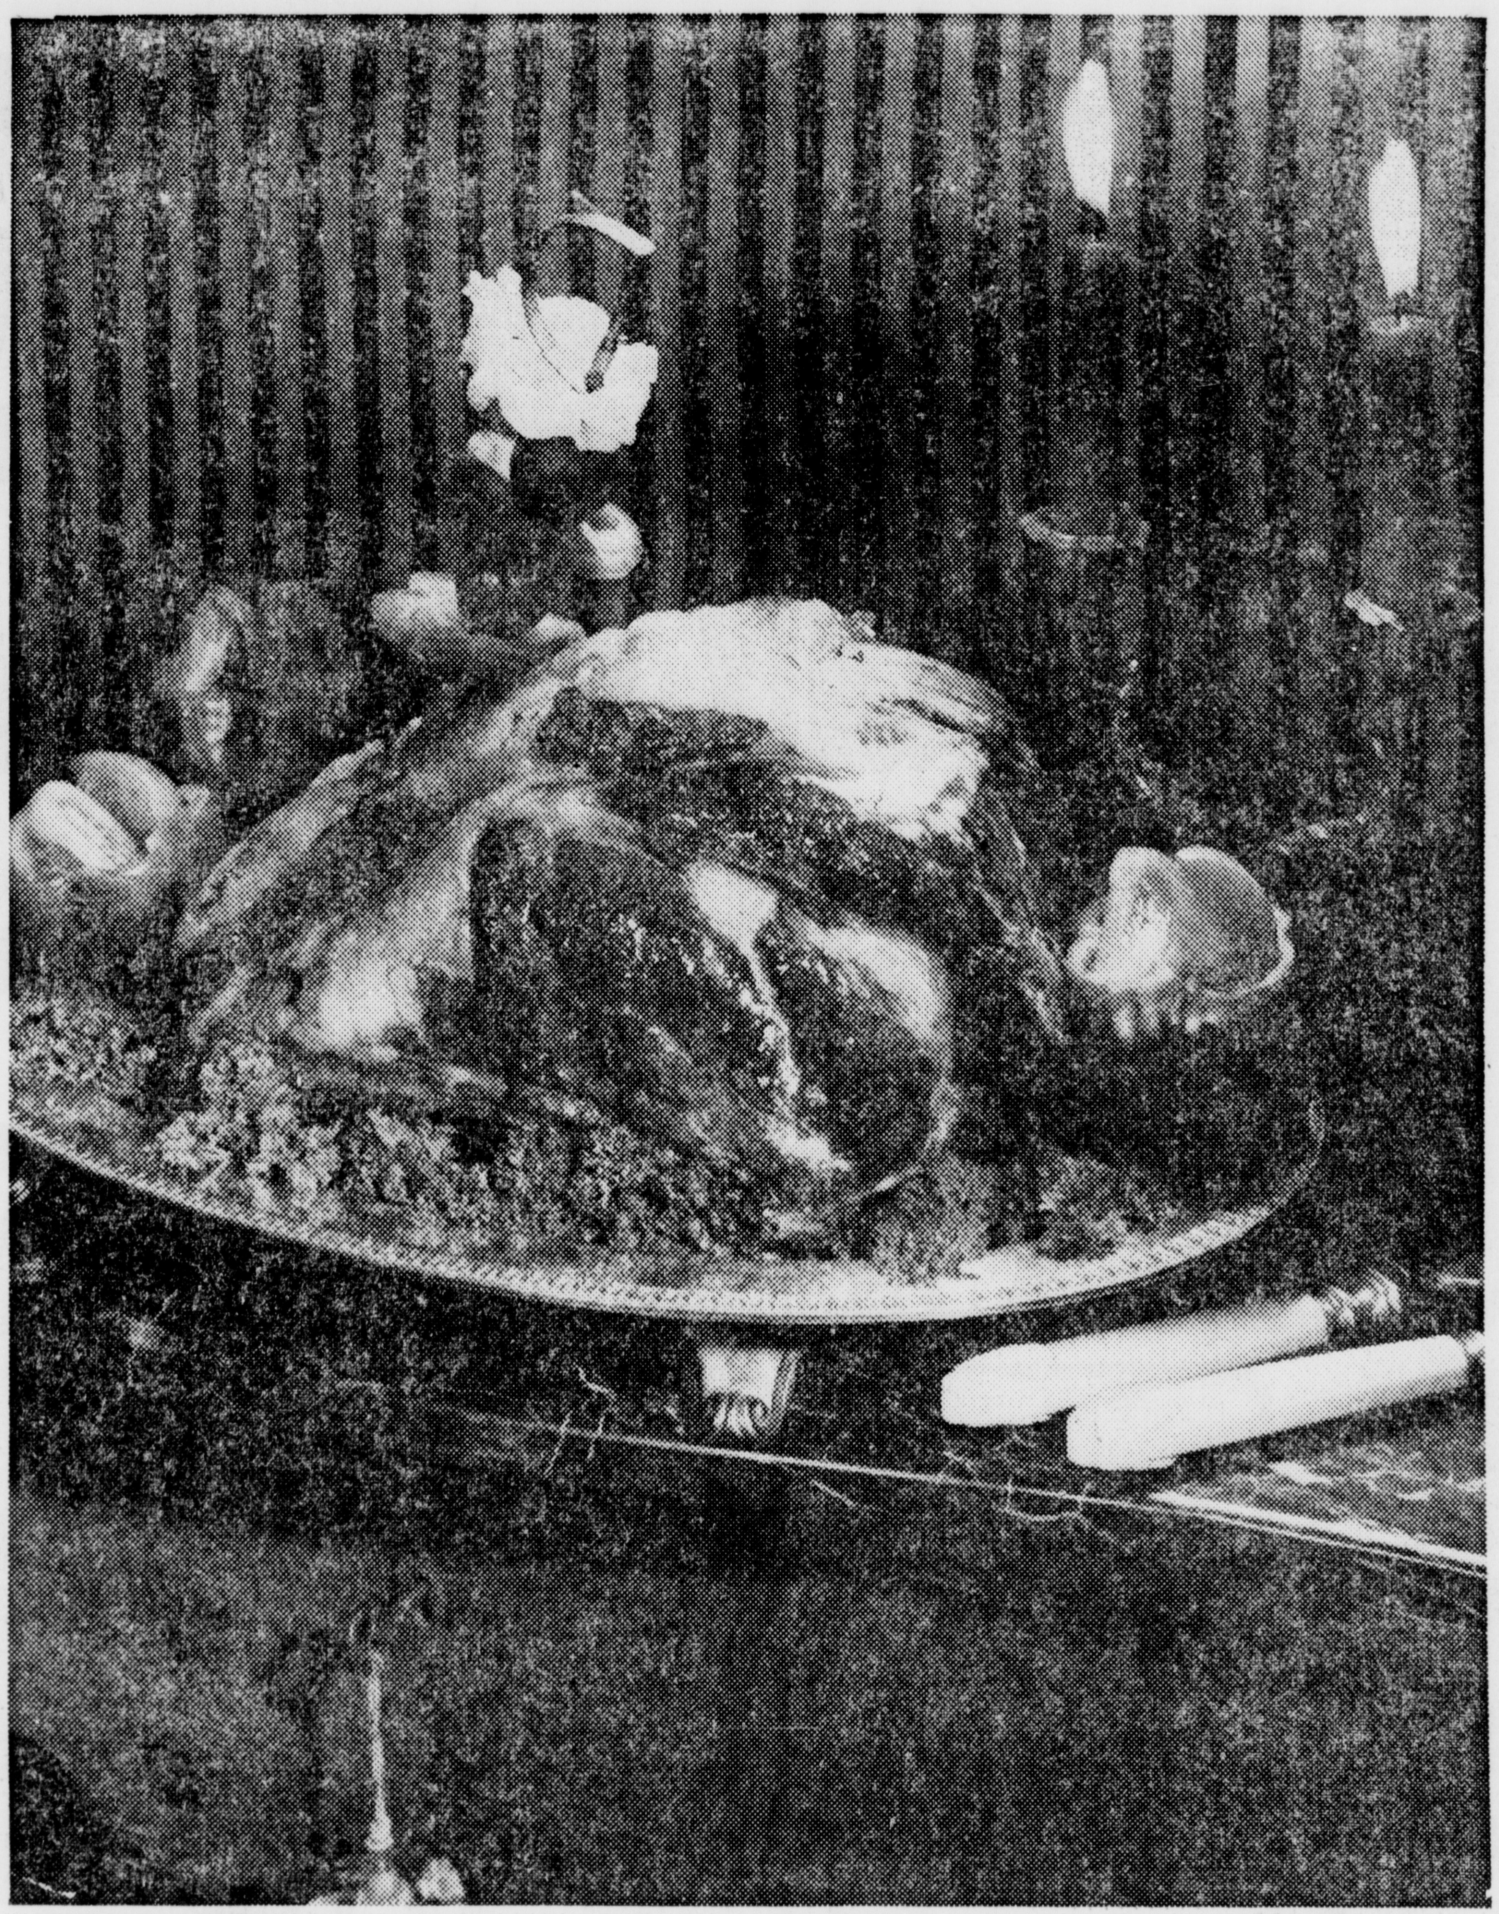
1 package (13 oz.) sour cream frosting mix
1 tablespoon soft butter
1 tablespoon hot water
1 tablespoon milk

Open frosting mix and take out one cup only. Put it in small mixing bowl, add ingredients listed above. Beat at high speed until smooth and creamy - still slightly liquid but not runny. Pour over cake in attractive drips. While frosting is still sticky, you might decorate with nuts, pieces of candied cherries and silver dragees. Note: You will still have two-thirds of the frosting mix in the box. Save it to use later (with two-thirds of the amounts of other ingredients listed on package).

OLD-FASHIONED BANANA CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup vegetable shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas

Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and spices; sift into bowl, using an electric mixer or wooden spoon, beat shortening until fluffy and gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time, then vanilla. Now add about three-fourths cup of the sifted dry ingredients and beat in just enough to combine. Add one-fourth cup of mashed bananas and a tablespoon of buttermilk and beat again. Repeat until all ingredients are added alternately. Bake in greased and floured bundt pan, at 350°F., one hour or until the center is springy to the touch. Glaze and frost as above.



TIMING THE roast to perfection with a meat thermometer is the safest way to get those cheers when the prime rib roast is carved at the holiday dinner table. Remember that the meat continues cooking for some 20 minutes after it is removed from the oven and placed in a warm place. Use leftover roast in thin strips for hors d'oeuvres.

How To Get That Perfect 'Do' On Prime Rib Roast

Plan a beautiful beef roast for a holiday buffet dinner. A succulent prime rib roast of beef goes with anything and everything. Make the menu simple or elaborate as the occasion demands.

For a colorful garnish in traditional red and green colors, skewer the beef with a dagger threaded with a flouncy ruffle of western iceberg lettuce and alternating cherry tomatoes and end slices of crisp green pepper. Repeat the idea alongside the roast by using small scopped out green pepper shells to be filled with wedges of rosy red tomatoes.

A timely reminder recommends using a meat thermometer to judge doneness of the roast. Insert the tip of the thermometer into the center of the large center muscle. Remove the beef from the moderately slow oven when the thermometer registers about 10 degrees lower than ready-to-eat temperature. To please Californians who enjoy rare beef, internal temperature will be about 130 degrees. During a 20 minute resting period in a warm place, the beef will continue to cook after having been taken from the oven. Include this extra time when estimating when the standing beef ribs should be put into the oven.

Leftover roast beef makes popular hors d'oeuvres. Spread thin strips of beef lightly with mayonnaise seasoned with Dijon style mustard. Roll around a crisp vegetable stick — carrot, cucumber or zucchini. Skewer with picks and sprinkle with salt and pepper.

BUFFET STANDING RIB ROAST

3 to 4 rib beef roast, about 8 pounds

One pound of beef will serve no more than 2. Stand beef ribs in shallow pan, fat side up. Insert meat thermometer with tip in center of large muscle. Roast in moderately slow oven (325° F.) to desired degree of doneness. Let beef stand 20 minutes in warm place to settle juices and finish cooking. During this time the internal temperature will rise 5 to 10 degrees. Many Californians prefer roast beef done to the rare stage.

Remove from Oven
Internal Temperature
130 degrees .... Rare
140 degrees .. Medium Rare
150 degrees . ...Well Done

After 20 minute resting period cut across grain with a sharp knife.

Mini Grilled Beef Sandwiches: Trim crusts from thin bread slices. Spread bread lightly with horseradish. Put together, sandwich fashion, with thin roast beef slices sprinkling lightly with seasoned salt and pepper. Brush outside of bread with melted butter. Grill in sandwich grill until golden brown. Cut into quarters and serve hot.

Mince Meat Topping

BAKED PEARS WITH MINCE MEAT

(Makes 6 servings)

3 firm, fresh Barlett pears
1-1/3 cups (½ of 28-oz. jar) Mince Meat
½ cup Marsala wine

Cut pears in half lengthwise, through stem end. With melon baller or teaspoon, carefully remove cores, leaving stems intact. Sprinkle cut surfaces with lemon juice. Place pear halves in 10-inch pie plate or shallow baking dish; fill with mince meat. Spoon any remaining mince meat around pears. Carefully pour wine over and around pears. Bake in moderate (350°F.) oven 45 to 60 minutes, or until pears are tender. Remove from oven; cool. Serve slightly warm with sauce from baking dish.

OLD-FASHIONED brandied plum puddings are presented in a new fashion this holiday season. Made of the traditional suet and flavored with brandy and spices, these individual puddings are nevertheless a 1970 confection. They do not require long aging and the brandy in the pudding batter and in the accompanying sauce give them excellent flavor.

Little Plum Puddings For Each Guest

Brandy has a beautiful image. We think of it being poured in the living room with or after the coffee that tops a very special dinner. But in these changing times a lot of it is being used to enhance the flavor of the food.

In the festive season ahead, brandy will enhance mince pies, mellow fruit cakes, season sauces, flame desserts and spark the cup of hot chocolate or hot coffee that is so welcome on a winter evening.

More, in individual plum puddings, it creates a depth of flavor that is usually attributed only to time. Like most steamed puddings, these may be made well in advance, then wrapped and stored for later serving or for gift-giving. However, their greatest contribution to the holiday season may well be the fact that they need not be made in advance. With brandy to blend all the flavors in this old-fashioned recipe, the puddings will be mellow and pungent in a day or two.

BRANDIED HOLIDAY PUDDINGS

1 cup candied cherries, halved
1 cup pitted dates, sliced
1 cup golden raisins
2 cups diced mixed candied fruits
1 cup sifter all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 cups ground or very finely chopped suet (about ½ lb.)
5 eggs
1¼ cups brown sugar (packed)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger
½ cup brandy
3 cups soft fine bread crumbs

Prepare fruits. Resift flour with salt and baking powder onto fruits. Add suet and mix well. Beat eggs; beat in brown sugar and spices until light. Pour over fruit mixture, add brandy and bread crumbs, and mix well. Spoon ¼ cup batter into small greased molds, about ½ cup capacity (3½ oz. individual gelatin molds are ideal). Cover each tightly with foil. Set molds on rack in large kettle with boiling water to half the depth of the molds. Cover kettle, and steam for 2 hours, replenishing water, if necessary. Serve warm with Brandy Lemon-Butter Sauce or Creamy Brandy Hard Sauce. Makes 2 dozen tiny puddings.

To Serve As Shown in Photograph: Pyramid hot puddings in tree shape on serving plate. Garnish with glace cherries, walnut halves and small leaves.

BRANDY LEMON-BUTTER SAUCE

½ cup sugar
1-1/3 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ cup brandy

Combine sugar, water, salt and cornstarch in saucepan. Boil stirring constantly, until thickened, about 5 minutes. Add all remaining ingredients; heat a few minutes longer. Serve warm. Makes about 1½ cups.

CREAM BRANDY HARD SAUCE

Beat 2/3 cup softened butter, 2 cups sifted powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 tablespoons brandy together until well blended. Makes about 1½ cups sauce.

TORTE OR LOAVES

Banana Cake Ideas For Holiday Eating

One recipe — start-from-scratch version or quick mix marvel — makes a whole variety of holiday goodies. With one batch of banana batter you can layer a spectacular torte, turn out two nutty loaf cakes, or make close to three dozen cupcakes.

BANANA BATTER

1 package yellow cake mix
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 cup mashed bananas

Place cake mix in large bowl of electric mixer. Stir in baking soda. Add buttermilk, eggs and bananas. Beat according to the package mix directions.

BUNDT CAKE

Grease a nine-inch bundt or tube pan. Dust with flour. Fill with one recipe of banana cake batter. Bake at 350°F. for 50 minutes or until a toothpick or straw inserted in center of cake comes out dry. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Invert onto wire rack and while still warm add orange glaze. If you wish, when glaze is cool decorate further with sour cream drip frosting. Serves 12.

ORANGE GLAZE

½ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup orange juice
3 teaspoons grated orange peel
Peel of one orange cut into very thin strips (optional)

Heat syrup, orange juice and grated peel to boiling point. Pierce cake all over with a skewer, then spoon glaze on top and sides. If you don't add frosting, set aside about two tablespoons of the glaze before covering cake. Now stir in peel strips and arrange in a circle on top.

SOUR CREAM DRIP FROSTING

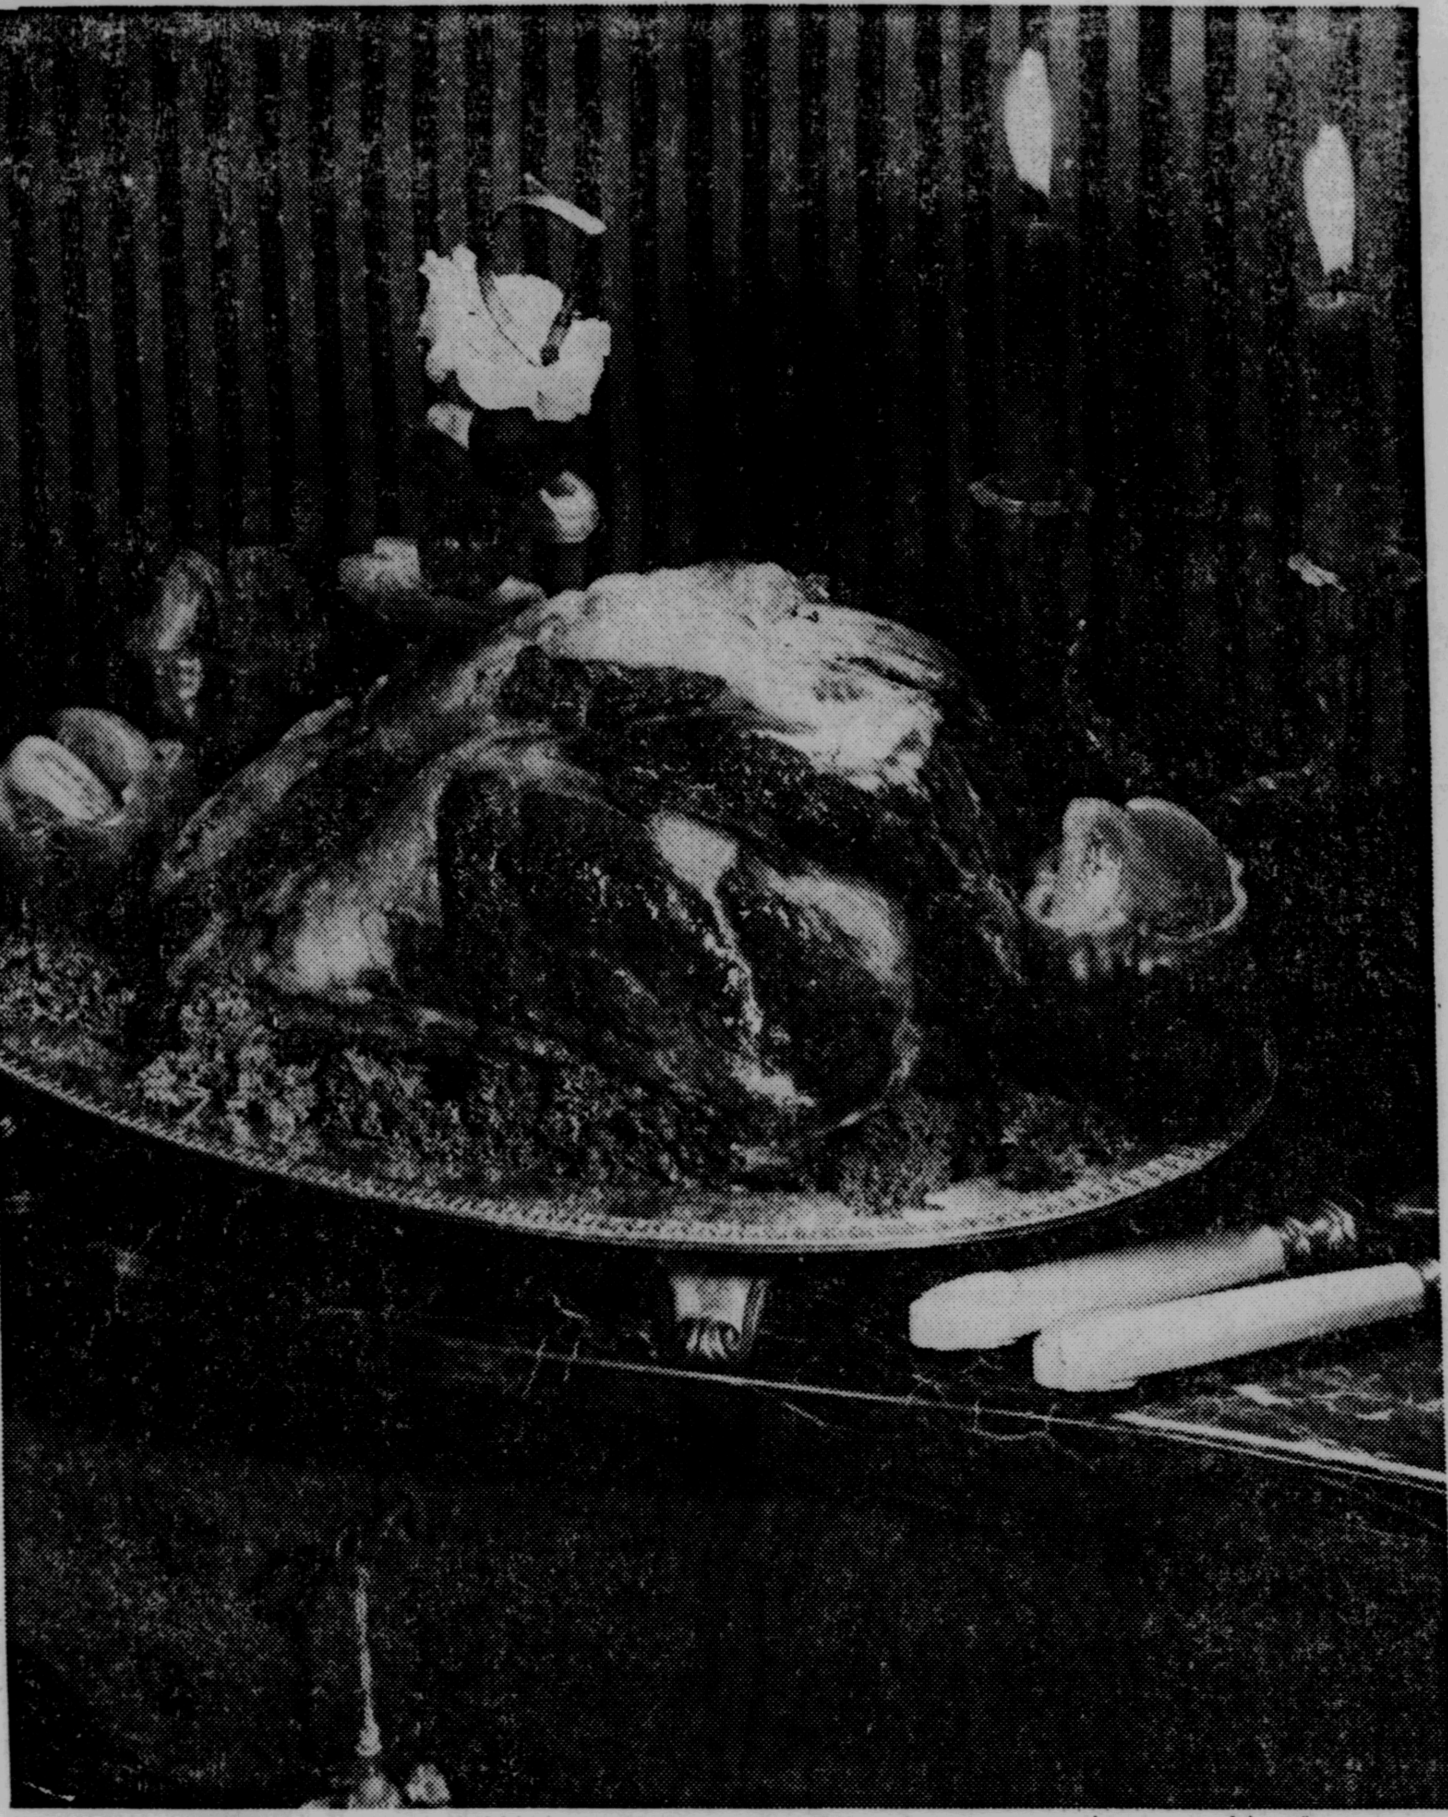
1 package (13 oz.) sour cream frosting mix
1 tablespoon soft butter
1 tablespoon hot water
1 tablespoon milk

Open frosting mix and take out one cup only. Put it in small mixing bowl, add ingredients listed above. Beat at high speed until smooth and creamy - still slightly liquid but not runny. Pour over cake in attractive drips. While frosting is still sticky, you might decorate with nuts, pieces of candied cherries and silver dragees. Note: You will still have two-thirds of the frosting mix in the box. Save it to use later (with two-thirds of the amounts of other ingredients listed on package).

OLD-FASHIONED BANANA CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup vegetable shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas

Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and spices; sift into bowl, using an electric mixer or wooden spoon, beat shortening until fluffy and gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time, then vanilla. Now add about three-fourths cup of the sifted dry ingredients and beat in just enough to combine. Add one-fourth cup of mashed bananas and a tablespoon of buttermilk and beat again. Repeat until all ingredients are added alternately. Bake in greased and floured bundt pan, at 350°F., one hour or until the center is springy to the touch. Glaze and frost as above.



TIMING THE roast to perfection with a meat thermometer is the safest way to get those cheers when the prime rib roast is carved at the holiday dinner table. Remember that the meat continues cooking for some 20 minutes after it is removed from the oven and placed in a warm place. Use leftover roast in thin strips for hors d'oeuvres.

Plan a beautiful beef roast for a holiday buffet dinner. A succulent prime rib roast of beef goes with anything and everything. Make the menu simple or elaborate as the occasion demands.

For a colorful garnish in traditional red and green colors, skewer the beef with a dagger threaded with a flouncy ruffle of western iceberg lettuce and alternating cherry tomatoes and end slices of crisp green pepper. Repeat the idea alongside the roast by using small scopped out green pepper shells to be filled with wedges of rosy red tomatoes.

A timely reminder recommends using a meat thermometer to judge doneness of the roast. Insert the tip of the thermometer into the center of the large center muscle. Remove the beef from the moderately slow oven when the thermometer registers about 10 degrees lower than ready-to-eat temperature. To please Californians who enjoy rare beef, internal temperature will be about 130 degrees. During a 20 minute resting period in a warm place, the beef will continue to cook after having been taken from the oven. Include this extra time when estimating when the standing beef ribs should be put into the oven.

Leftover roast beef makes popular hors d'oeuvres. Spread thin strips of beef lightly with mayonnaise seasoned with Dijon style mustard. Roll around a crisp vegetable stick — carrot, cucumber or zucchini. Skewer with picks and sprinkle with salt and pepper.

BUFFET STANDING RIB ROAST

3 to 4 rib beef roast, about 8 pounds

One pound of beef will serve no more than 2. Stand beef ribs in shallow pan, fat side up. Insert meat thermometer with tip in center of large muscle. Roast in moderately slow oven (325° F.) to desired degree of doneness. Let beef stand 20 minutes in warm place to settle juices and finish cooking. During this time the internal temperature will rise 5 to 10 degrees. Many Californians prefer roast beef done to the rare stage.

Remove from Oven
Internal Temperature

130 degrees	Rare
140 degrees	Medium Rare
150 degrees	Well Done

After 20 minute resting period cut across grain with a sharp knife.

Mini Grilled Beef Sandwiches: Trim crusts from thin bread slices. Spread bread lightly with horseradish. Put together, sandwich fashion, with thin roast beef slices sprinkling lightly with seasoned salt and pepper. Brush outside of bread with melted butter. Grill in sandwich grill until golden brown. Cut into quarters and serve hot.

Mince Meat Topping

BAKED PEARS WITH MINCE MEAT

(Makes 6 servings)

3 firm, fresh Barlett pears
1-1/3 cups (½ of 28-oz. jar) Mince Meat
½ cup Marsala wine

Cut pears in half lengthwise, through stem end. With melon baller or teaspoon, carefully remove cores, leaving stems intact. Sprinkle cut surfaces with lemon juice. Place pear halves in 10-inch pie plate or shallow baking dish; fill with mince meat. Spoon any remaining mince meat around pears. Carefully pour wine over and around pears. Bake in moderate (350°F.) oven 45 to 60 minutes, or until pears are tender. Remove from oven; cool. Serve slightly warm with sauce from baking dish.

OLD-FASHIONED brandied plum puddings are presented in a new fashion this holiday season. Made of the traditional suet and flavored with brandy and spices, these individual puddings are nevertheless a 1970 confection. They do not require long aging and the brandy in the pudding batter and in the accompanying sauce give them excellent flavor.

Little Plum Puddings For Each Guest

Brandy has a beautiful image. We think of it being poured in the living room with or after the coffee that tops a very special dinner. But in these changing times a lot of it is being used to enhance the flavor of the food.

In the festive season ahead, brandy will enhance mince pies, mellow fruit cakes, season sauces, flame desserts and spark the cup of hot chocolate or hot coffee that is so welcome on a winter evening.

More, in individual plum puddings, it creates a depth of flavor that is usually attributed only to time. Like most steamed puddings, these may be made well in advance, then wrapped and stored for later serving or for gift-giving. However, their greatest contribution to the holiday season may well be the fact that they need not be made in advance. With brandy to blend all the flavors in this old-fashioned recipe, the puddings will be mellow and pungent in a day or two.

BRANDIED HOLIDAY PUDDINGS

1 cup candied cherries, halved
1 cup pitted dates, sliced
1 cup golden raisins
2 cups diced mixed candied fruits
1 cup sifter all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 cups ground or very finely chopped suet (about ½ lb.)
5 eggs
1¼ cups brown sugar (packed)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger
½ cup brandy
3 cups soft fine bread crumbs

Prepare fruits. Resift flour with salt and baking powder onto fruits. Add suet and mix well. Beat eggs; beat in brown sugar and spices until light. Pour over fruit mixture, add brandy and bread crumbs, and mix well. Spoon ¼ cup batter into small greased molds, about ½ cup capacity (3½ oz. individual gelatin molds are ideal). Cover each tightly with foil. Set molds on rack in large kettle with boiling water to half the depth of the molds. Cover kettle, and steam for 2 hours, replenishing water, if necessary. Serve warm with Brandy Lemon-Butter Sauce or Creamy Brandy Hard Sauce. Makes 2 dozen tiny puddings.

To Serve As Shown in Photograph: Pyramid hot puddings in tree shape on serving plate. Garnish with glace cherries, walnut halves and small leaves.

BRANDY LEMON-BUTTER SAUCE

½ cup sugar
1-1/3 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ cup brandy

Combine sugar, water, salt and cornstarch in saucepan. Boil stirring constantly, until thickened, about 5 minutes. Add all remaining ingredients; heat a few minutes longer. Serve warm. Makes about 1½ cups.

CREAM BRANDY HARD SAUCE

Beat 2/3 cup softened butter, 2 cups sifted powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 tablespoons brandy together until well blended. Makes about 1½ cups sauce.

DOMINICAN STUDENTS

Last Year Christmas Was Different

Five Dominican College students who spent last year in France studying at the University of Aix-en-Provence are happy to be back with their families during the Christmas holidays this year.

The quintet are the first students to participate in Dominican's new study-abroad program in conjunction with the California State College Program of International Study. Six other students are at Aix and the Unitersity of Madrid this academic year.

The group back on campus in San Rafael includes two young women from Marin County, Mary Frances Jeffrey of San Rafael and Ealish McCarthy of Sausalito. The others are Barbara Dudley of Honolulu, Hawaii; Jeanne-Marie Grabarczyk of Oakland, and Nan Farasyn of Los Altos. Patricia Langlais of Hillsborough who spent the year with them has returned to Aix for a second year, and the seventh student, Ingrid Marcantoni, has returned to her home in Puerto Rico.

THE STUDENTS all agree that Christmas is not the same outside of the United States. Last year they missed their families, traditional Christmas trees, and the exchange of gifts but found substitutes in various parts of Europe: Mary Frances spent the holidays in Aix and Marseilles, Nan Farasyn in Thessaloniki, Greece; Ealish McCarthy in Rome and Barbara and Jeanne-Marie in Le Super-Sauze, France, skiing near the Italian border. Jeanne-Marie flew to Brussels for New Year's when her mother, Mrs. Zygmunt Grabarczyk arrived from Oakland, unexpectedly, to spend the holidays with Jeanne-Marie's grandmother, who lives in Belgium.

Nan Farasyn, who traveled by train to Thessaloniki, Greece, was the only student in the group who spent the holidays within a family circle. Nan found her Greek Christmas a formal affair that started at midnight Christmas Eve when the women, in long dresses, and men, in dinner jackets, left their homes to call at friend's houses, eat various types of food "like a progressive dinner", and collect their friends who went on with them to the next house.

"Each individual was welcomed in each home with a special berry drink," Nan said. "A single cup on a tray was brought by the hostess to each guest, who drank it immediately as a symbol of a kind of close tie with the family." When all the friends had gathered together, Nan explained that they arrived at a large hotel at the "top of the hill" where "everyone in the city seemed to be dancing" until sunrise.

NAN NOTED that there was no exchange of gifts until New Year's Eve when the family gathered for presents, "mostly clothing" for the coming year. Nan found that French was the language that she had in common with her hosts and most of their friends. She is happy to be back in Los Altos this year with her own family, that includes four brothers and sisters, but would like to go back to France again.

Mary Frances and Nan will both be graduated from Dominican College this month. All the students are majoring in French except Mary Frances whose special field is English.

For Mary Frances, Christmas in Aix was as different as it could be. For one thing, she is one of 11 children of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Jeffrey in San Rafael. She remained in the University town of Aix for the holidays because she had not been well enough to travel.

"THE HOLIDAYS are not the time to be away from your family," Mary Frances declares. "I had to remind myself that it was Christmas. There were no lighted trees in the stores or homes, no Christmas caroling, decorations or flowers in the church on Christmas day though there was a small nativity scene."

Mary Frances and some friends were the Christmas Eve guests of the owners of a Greek restaurant in Marseilles where a tree was decorated for them. "The Greeks seem to think that if you have a good time, you break dishes. So we danced and threw dishes," said Mary Frances.

"New Year's seemed to be a greater time of celebration in France," according to the San Rafael girl. "And gifts are exchanged on Jan. 6, the Feast of the Epiphany, or Little Christmas." By that date the students were all back in their classes but were the guests at a family party where the special wreath cake of the season was cut and distributed with two little crowns baked into it. The two who found the crowns in their slices of cake were presented with paper crowns and reigned as Kings or Queens for the evening.

Ealish McCarthy traveled with a group of University students to Rome for Christmas where the Swiss manager of their pension decorated a Christmas tree "specially for the Americans" with "real candles on the tree and fresh fruit tied to the branches with ribbons. I'd never seen one like it," said Ealish, "but my mother has told me about them."

Ealish found many green branches decorating the homes or buildings with green trees outside the stores but did not see any of the lighted trees or ornaments associated with Christmas "at home."

ON CHRISTMAS day, Ealish and her friends attended services at St. Peter's where the Pope celebrated the Mass at 11 a.m. She happened to meet old friends of her family, some French girls from the train, and "the whole world seemed to be at the Vatican that day. After Mass, the bells rang for about twenty minutes and everyone seemed so happy greeting one another. The Pope delivered his Christmas greetings in eight languages."

The students bought bread, cheese, salami and wine and had their lunch by one of Rome's great fountains. Ealish spent New Year's Eve in Venice before returning to Aix for the new semester. She noted that Venice celebrated the evening with firecrackers and loud horns. Ealish and Barbara Dudley are both seniors at Dominican this year.

CHRISTMAS IN the snow was an entirely new experience for Barbara Dudley who has lived all her life in Honolulu where Christmas is an outdoor affair which begins on Christmas Eve with a traditional Portuguese dinner with her parents and two sisters and brother.

Barbara and Jeanne-Marie traveled with a University bus-load of students to the skiing slopes of Le Super-Sauze near Gap on the Italian border. Barbara had never seen snow until she came to Dominican College and went skiing in her freshman year. The students "were mostly

LISTENING TO songs of popular French singer Guy Beart are Barbara Dudley, left, and Jeanne-Marie Grabarczyk, who spent last Christmas in France skiing near the Italian border.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Now A Young 50 She Wants A New Life With Handsome Man

DEAR HELEN:

I have been separated 10 years, and was finally divorced last year. In all that time, I never dated, as I was busy raising the children. But now they're grown and married, and I'm a young 50, ready for still another life.

My son-in-law brought over his business partner, thinking to help me out. My daughter also has a man in mind for me. But Helen, they aren't exactly my ideals. One is short, the other looks 20 years older than me, though he's only 55. My loving children tell me I'm too particular, but I know what I want. He should be at least five feet nine, fairly good looking, and must have hair. I met such a man at a bowling party. We danced together, but he didn't get my phone number. I'm afraid he is married, just having an evening out. He was so handsome.

With him in mind, I can't bring myself to go out with those ordinaries my kids bring around. Am I really living in a dream world, searching for a fairy tale man, as they say? — GINA

DEAR GINA:

If a tall handsome man with hair is all you want, then I don't think you've learned much in your "single" years. My IGAP tells me you divorced such a man, right?

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it that men can go hunting in the wilderness, and survive just great without their little wives ministering to their every want? But at home —they're lost souls without Mama.

I can't go on a short vacation unless I prepare weeks in advance, write down instructions for turning on the oven, arrange for the laundry to be done and the house cleaned. My husband can't even prepare a TV dinner by himself — at home.

When I get back, there are dirty dishes piled in the sink and all over the kitchen. The bed is unmade and the garbage hasn't been taken out in a week. Husband? He's lost in the shuffle of old newspapers: unshaven, dirty, hungry — with the television log in his hand.

What makes men so self-sufficient on camping trips and so helpless when they are wifeless in their own domain? — HUNTING AND FISHING WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW:

Maybe it's because they want to let wives know how important we are to them. Or maybe it's just more fun (a matter of survival perhaps) fending for themselves in the wilderness. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Pants suits to work? Great. Even nurses are allowed to wear white pants suits now. With all the bending, etc. it's high time they lowered the requirements. (The thigh's the limit for sick men.)

Recently the leading door-to-door cosmetic sales company okayed pants suits for its saleswomen — and when sellers of beauty supplies are allowed such wear, it must be accepted universally.

A few banks and government offices are still holdouts, but they'll come to pants before long. This is a style that is feminine and practical — and so much better looking than the midi-boot monstrosities.

CHRISTMAS

French" but there were three Americans and three Canadians at the ski chalet where the students enjoyed a Fondue party on Christmas Eve and skiied all Christmas Day.

"For me, it wasn't Christmas because my family wasn't there," said Barbara but she also noted that all her life she had seen photographs of Christmas in the snow and the mountains were white and beautiful. Barbara also said that she did not see any Christmas decorations or hear any carols during the holiday season.

JEANNE-MARIE is a citizen of Belgium though her family has lived in Oakland for 15 years. She said that the ski chalet management welcomed the two Dominican students with the information that they knew all about the college because their "sister-in-law or aunt" lived in San Anselmo. She felt that May Day was a bigger holiday celebration in France than Christmas. With the unexpected arrival of her mother, Jeanne-Marie, an only child, did fly to Brussels to spend the New Year's holidays with her mother, grandmother and great aunt, where the family enjoyed a holiday specialty which she described as a loaf cake "like a shepherd's bread," with special religious decorations which the family shares for the holiday.

Jeanne-Marie and her family will spend Christmas in the snow at Heavenly Valley before she returns to college next semester to complete work on her teaching credential and master's degree in French. Jeanne-Marie has been a student teacher this semester at Davidson Junior High School in San Rafael.

The students are unanimous in their appreciation for their year's study abroad. All of them would like to return but "not at Christmas time."

THE FIRST Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo was the settin for the wedding of Debera Sullins and Frederick Lepage. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sullins of San Anselmo and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Lepage of San Anselmo. The couple will live in San Rafael.

Phillip DeMaria Will Wed Virginia C. King

At a small party given by her parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert West of Belvedere, the engagement of Virginia Curtis King of Belvedere and Phillip Anthony DeMaria of Greenbrae was announced recently.

Ginny, a Marin Debutante in 1967, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. King and sister of Mrs. John P. Nutting, all of Belvedere. She was graduated from San Domenico High School in San Anselmo. Ginny attended Stephen's College in Columbia, Mo. and was graduated from California State Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeMaria of Greenbrae are Phillips's parents and his brother is John DeMaria. His local grandmother is Mrs. John DeMaria of San Rafael. Phillip was graduated from Bellarmine High School in San Jose and attends University of Santa Clara.

The couple plan a June 26 wedding.

When Toothpaste Is Harmful

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — For many years dentists have been distrubed about the possibility that some toothpastes may do more harm than good because of excessive abrasiveness.

People who brush their teeth after every meal, as they are told to do by most dentists, sometimes find that they destroy tooth enamel which they are trying to preserve in the fight against decay.

Dentists have known that some toothpastes are more abrasive than others, but until recently they have not been able to pinpoint the problem and cite scientific evidence on the matter.

That absence of evidence is no longer. The American Dental Association has announced results of a study showing that tooth enamel is indeed destroyed by some toothpastes more than others. It is the first time the association conducted such a study.

Abrasiveness is only one of the matters to be considered in buying toothpaste. Others are germ-fighting ability, presence or absence of fluoride and, of course, taste and general acceptability to the user.

But abrasiveness has become increasingly important because of the new emphasis on whiteness, which, according to one company, can give your mouth "sex appeal."

Give a compulsive brusher a very abrasive toothpaste, and the result may be the destruction of more tooth enamel that would occur from cavities without any brushing. The dental Association puts it this way: "Dental enamel is hard and resistant to abrasion. It is likely that significant amounts of enamel will not be lost by the judicious use of most of the dentifrices marketed today.

"It should be noted, however, that the compulsive brusher may wear away significant amounts of dental enamel, especially with the more highly abrasive formulations.

"A dentifrice should be more abrasive then is necessary to keep the teeth clean — that is, free of accessible plaque (the film that forms ridges of tartar) debris and superficial stain."

The Association concedes that the needs of each individual vary, that some people may be able to clean their teeth with a toothbrush and water alone. Most dentists also recommend use of dental floss or ribbon.

People who should be most concerned are those with gum problems which have exposed the softer portions of the teeth normally protected by the gum.

The study listed the relative abrasivity of 21 toothpastes, from lowest to highest, as follows:

T-Lak 20, Listerine 26, Pepsodent with zirconium silicate 26, Ammi-dent 33, Colgate with MFP 51, Ultra-Brite 64, Macleans spearmint 66, Macleans regular 70, Pearl Drops 72, Crest mint 81, Close-up 87, old formula Macleans spearmint and regular, both 93, Crest regular 95, Gleen II 106, Plus White 110, Phillips 114, Plus White Plus 132, Vote 134, Iodent #2 174 and Smokers Tooth Paste 202.

Any questions should be addressed to your dentist.

CoupleWed In Tiburon Saturday

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Ann Henry of Los Angeles and Philip J. Neisingh of Santa Rosa, had as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Gene Pickrill of Vallejo.

Best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nelson of Mill Valley, was Richard Geissinger of Fairfax.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. On their return from a wedding trip to Disneyland and Lake Tahoe the couple will live in Mill Valley, where the bride is employed at the Wells Fargo Bank.

Both of the couple were graduated from Tamalpais High School and attended the College of Marin.

Slightly enlarged to show detail.

DOMINICAN STUDENTS

Last Year Christmas Was Different

Five Dominican College students who spent last year in France studying at the University of Aix-en-Provence are happy to be back with their families during the Christmas holidays this year.

The quintet are the first students to participate in Dominican's new study-abroad program in conjunction with the California State College Program of International Study. Six other students are at Aix and the Unitersity of Madrid this academic year.

The group back on campus in San Rafael includes two young women from Marin County, Mary Frances Jeffrey of San Rafael and Ealish McCarthy of Sausalito. The others are Barbara Dudley of Honolulu, Hawaii; Jeanne-Marie Grabarczyk of Oakland, and Nan Farasyn of Los Altos. Patricia Langlais of Hillsborough who spent the year with them has returned to Aix for a second year, and the seventh student, Ingrid Marcantoni, has returned to her home in Puerto Rico.

THE STUDENTS all agree that Christmas is not the same outside of the United States. Last year they missed their families, traditional Christmas trees, and the exchange of gifts but found substitutes in various parts of Europe: Mary Frances spent the holidays in Aix and Marseilles, Nan Farasyn in Thessaloniki, Greece; Ealish McCarthy in Rome and Barbara and Jeanne-Marie in Le Super-Sauze, France, skiing near the Italian border. Jeanne-Marie flew to Brussels for New Year's when her mother, Mrs. Zygmunt Grabarczyk arrived from Oakland, unexpectedly, to spend the holidays with Jeanne-Marie's grandmother, who lives in Belgium.

Nan Farasyn, who traveled by train to Thessaloniki, Greece, was the only student in the group who spent the holidays within a family circle. Nan found her Greek Christmas a formal affair that started at midnight Christmas Eve when the women, in long dresses, and men, in dinner jackets, left their homes to call at friend's houses, eat various types of food "like a progressive dinner", and collect their friends who went on with them to the next house.

"Each individual was welcomed in each home with a special berry drink," Nan said. "A single cup on a tray was brought by the hostess to each guest, who drank it immediately as a symbol of a kind of close tie with the family." When all the friends had gathered together, Nan explained that they arrived at a large hotel at the "top of the hill'' where "everyone in the city seemed to be dancing" until sunrise.

NAN NOTED that there was no exchange of gifts until New Year's Eve when the family gathered for presents, "mostly clothing" for the coming year. Nan found that French was the language that she had in common with her hosts and most of their friends. She is happy to be back in Los Altos this year with her own family, that includes four brothers and sisters, but would like to go back to France again.

Mary Frances and Nan will both be graduated from Dominican College this month. All the students are majoring in French except Mary Frances whose special field is English.

For Mary Frances, Christmas in Aix was as different as it could be. For one thing, she is one of 11 children of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Jeffrey in San Rafael. She remained in the University town of Aix for the holidays because she had not been well enough to travel.

"THE HOLIDAYS are not the time to be away from your family,'' Mary Frances declares. "I had to remind myself that it was Christmas. There were no lighted trees in the stores or homes, no Christmas caroling, decorations or flowers in the church on Christmas day though there was a small nativity scene."

Mary Frances and some friends were the Christmas Eve guests of the owners of a Greek restaurant in Marseilles where a tree was decorated for them. "The Greeks seem to think that if you have a good time, you break dishes. So we danced and threw dishes," said Mary Frances.

"New Year's seemed to be a greater time of celebration in France," according to the San Rafael girl. "And gifts are exchanged on Jan. 6, the Feast of the Epiphany, or Little Christmas." By that date the students were all back in their classes but were the guests at a family party where the special wreath cake of the season was cut and distributed with two little crowns baked into it. The two who found the crowns in their slices of cake were presented with paper crowns and reigned as Kings or Queens for the evening.

Ealish McCarthy traveled with a group of University students to Rome for Christmas where the Swiss manager of their pension decorated a Christmas tree "specially for the Americans" with "real candles on the tree and fresh fruit tied to the branches with ribbons. I'd never seen one like it," said Ealish, "but my mother has told me about them."

Ealish found many green branches decorating the homes or buildings with green trees outside the stores but did not see any of the lighted trees or ornaments associated with Christmas "at home."

ON CHRISTMAS day, Ealish and her friends attended services at St. Peter's where the Pope celebrated the Mass at 11 a.m. She happened to meet old friends of her family, some French girls from the train, and "the whole world seemed to be at the Vatican that day. After Mass, the bells rang for about twenty minutes and everyone seemed so happy greeting one another. The Pope delivered his Christmas greetings in eight languages."

The students bought bread, cheese, salami and wine and had their lunch by one of Rome's great fountains. Ealish spent New Year's Eve in Venice before returning to Aix for the new semester. She noted that Venice celebrated the evening with firecrackers and loud horns. Ealish and Barbara Dudley are both seniors at Dominican this year.

CHRISTMAS IN the snow was an entirely new experience for Barbara Dudley who has lived all her life in Honolulu where Christmas is an outdoor affair which begins on Christmas Eve with a traditional Portuguese dinner with her parents and two sisters and brother.

Barbara and Jeanne-Marie traveled with a University bus-load of students to the skiing slopes of Le Super-Sauze near Gap on the Italian border. Barbara had never seen snow until she came to Dominican College and went skiing in her freshman year. The students ''were mostly

LISTENING TO songs of popular French singer Guy Beart are Barbara Dudley, left, and Jeanne-Marie Grabarczyk, who spent last Christmas in France skiing near the Italian border. Now back on the Dominican College campus, five of six girls who studied in France last year, compared their away-from-home Christmas experiences as celebrated in other countries.

Change In National Diet Could Lower Heart Disease

NEW YORK (UPI) — A change in the national diet — now one of the highest in the world measured in fats and cholesterol —could lower the rate of heart disease in the United States by as much as 30 per cent, a panel of medical experts reported last week.

They recommended "safe and reasonable" changes in Americans' eating habits to reduce the "epidemic" of fatal heart attacks. Of a million people who suffer heart attacks in this country each year, half a million die quickly, and a third of that group is younger than 65 years old.

"Premature death from heart seizures occurs three times as often among men as among women.

The medical men, a federally-funded panel of 115 experts from medical and nursing societies, recommended action to curb the "three major risk factors" in artery and heart disease: high-fat diets, high blood pressure and smoking.

The group said the tobacco industry should be taxed, to provide funds for smoking control programs and treatment, and finally put through an "orderly phase out" to eradicate smoking as a "national habit."

Regarding fats, cholesterol and blood pressure, the physicians said the body of scientific evidence does not include enough scrutiny of the suspected connection to heart attacks and hardening of the arteries. They asked for a long-term program of national research into the American diet and, in the meantime, these "suggestive" changes until the "conclusive" results are in:

—Less consumption of fatty meats, egg yolks, butter, bacon, lard and baked goods and dairy products which have high levels of saturated fats and cholesterol.

— Development of leaner meat animals by the meat industry, and initiatives by the dairy industry to lower or eliminate saturated fats in its products.

—Revision of federal laws and regulations to require labeling indicating the precise fat content of foods: also, revision of certain regulations that prohibit producers' attempts to modify the fat content, as in the case where dairy firms are unable to substitute unsaturated vegetable oils for butterfat in milk without calling it "artificial milk."

These changes were recommended last week in a summary report from the Inter-society Commission for Heart Disease Resources, set up under the government's Regional Medical Programs to formulate policy guidelines to prevent heart disease and improve its treatment.

Accidents Can Be Prevented

CHICAGO (UPI) — Last year. 5,900 children under 15 years old were killed in all types of motor vehicle accidents.

"If any of the several types of approved restraining devices available for young children had been used, many of these children would not have died," says Howard Pyle, head of the National Safety Council.

FLEXIBLE FURNITURE

NEW YORK (UPI) —Furniture designers must give the American consumer furniture pieces that can be used in any room, in any size home, in any way the consumer chooses, says a leading case goods manufacturer. A. H. White, vice president of furniture marketing, Lea Industries, Inc., said in this era of "new functionalism and freedom of choice in home furnishings" traditional furniture categories are no longer valid.

Quality Is Pearl Factor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The factors to consider when buying cultured pearls include size, shape, color, luster and surface smoothness, says the Cultured Pearl Association.

Fine quality can come in any size and usually the bigger the pearl, the higher the prices. Shape varies from perfectly round to semi-round and baroque. The more perfectly circular, the more valuable and, again, the higher the price.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Now A Young 50 She Wants A New Life With Handsome Man

DEAR HELEN:

I have been separated 10 years, and was finally divorced last year. In all that time, I never dated, as I was busy raising the children. But now they're grown and married, and I'm a young 50, ready for still another life.

My son-in-law brought over his business partner, thinking to help me out. My daughter also has a man in mind for me. But Helen, they aren't exactly my ideals. One is short, the other looks 20 years older than me, though he's only 55. My loving children tell me I'm too particular, but I know what I want. He should be at least five feet nine, fairly good looking, and must have hair. I met such a man at a bowling party. We danced together, but he didn't get my phone number. I'm afraid he is married, just having an evening out. He was so handsome.

With him in mind, I can't bring myself to go out with those ordinaries my kids bring around. Am I really living in a dream world, searching for a fairy tale man, as they say? — GINA

DEAR GINA:

If a tall handsome man with hair is all you want, then I don't think you've learned much in your "single" years. My IGAP tells me you divorced such a man, right?

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it that men can go hunting in the wilderness, and survive just great without their little wives ministering to their every want? But at home —they're lost souls without Mama.

I can't go on a short vacation unless I prepare weeks in advance, write down instructions for turning on the oven, arrange for the laundry to be done and the house cleaned. My husband can't even prepare a TV dinner by himself — at home.

When I get back, there are dirty dishes piled in the sink and all over the kitchen. The bed is unmade and the garbage hasn't been taken out in a week. Husband? He's lost in the shuffle of old newspapers: unshaven, dirty, hungry — with the television log in his hand.

What makes men so self-sufficient on camping trips and so helpless when they are wifeless in their own domain? — HUNTING AND FISHING WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW:

Maybe it's because they want to let wives know how important we are to them. Or maybe it's just more fun (a matter of survival perhaps) fending for themselves in the wilderness. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Pants suits to work? Great. Even nurses are allowed to wear white pants suits now. With all the bending, etc. it's high time they lowered the requirements. (The thigh's the limit for sick men.)

Recently the leading door-to-door cosmetic sales company okayed pants suits for its saleswomen — and when sellers of beauty supplies are allowed such wear, it must be accepted universally.

A few banks and government offices are still holdouts, but they'll come to pants before long. This is a style that is feminine and practical — and so much better looking than the midi-boot monstrosities.

French" but there were three Americans and three Canadians at the ski chalet where the students enjoyed a Fondue party on Christmas Eve and skiied all Christmas Day.

"For me, it wasn't Christmas because my family wasn't there," said Barbara but she also noted that all her life she had seen photographs of Christmas in the snow and the mountains were white and beautiful. Barbara also said that she did not see any Christmas decorations or hear any carols during the holiday season.

JEANNE-MARIE is a citizen of Belgium though her family has lived in Oakland for 15 years. She said that the ski chalet management welcomed the two Dominican students with the information that they knew all about the college because their "sister-in-law or aunt" lived in San Anselmo. She felt that May Day was a bigger holiday celebration in France than Christmas. With the unexpected arrival of her mother, Jeanne-Marie, an only child, did fly to Brussels to spend the New Year's holidays with her mother, grandmother and great aunt, where the family enjoyed a holiday specialty which she described as a loaf cake "like a shepherd's bread," with special religious decorations which the family shares for the holiday.

Jeanne-Marie and her family will spend Christmas in the snow at Heavenly Valley before she returns to college next semester to complete work on her teaching credential and master's degree in French. Jeanne-Marie has been a student teacher this semester at Davidson Junior High School in San Rafael.

The students are unanimous in their appreciation for their year's study abroad. All of them would like to return but "not at Christmas time."

THE FIRST Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo was the settin for the wedding of Debera Sullins and Frederick Lepage. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sullins of San Anselmo and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Lepage of San Anselmo. The couple will live in San Rafael.

Phillip DeMaria Will Wed Virginia C. King

VIRGINIA CURTIS KING

At a small party given by her parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert West of Belvedere, the engagement of Virginia Curtis King of Belvedere and Phillip Anthony DeMaria of Greenbrae was announced recently.

Ginny, a Marin Debutante in 1967, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. King and sister of Mrs. John P. Nutting, all of Belvedere. She was graduated from San Domenico High School in San Anselmo. Ginny attended Stephen's College in Columbia, Mo. and was graduated from California State Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeMaria of Greenbrae are Phillips's parents and his brother is John DeMaria. His local grandmother is Mrs. John DeMaria of San Rafael. Phillip was graduated from Bellarmine High School in San Jose and attends University of Santa Clara.

The couple plan a June 26 wedding.

When Toothpaste Is Harmful

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — For many years dentists have been distrubed about the possibility that some toothpastes may do more harm than good because of excessive abrasiveness.

People who brush their teeth after every meal, as they are told to do by most dentists, sometimes find that they destroy tooth enamel which they are trying to preserve in the fight against decay.

Dentists have known that some toothpastes are more abrasive than others, but until recently they have not been able to pinpoint the problem and cite scientific evidence on the matter.

That absence of evidence is no longer. The American Dental Association has announced results of a study showing that tooth enamel is indeed destroyed by some toothpastes more than others. It is the first time the association conducted such a study.

Abrasiveness is only one of the matters to be considered in buying toothpaste. Others are germ-fighting ability, presence or absence of fluoride and, of course, taste and general acceptability to the user.

But abrasiveness has become increasingly important because of the new emphasis on whiteness, which, according to one company, can give your mouth "sex appeal."

Give a compulsive brusher a very abrasive toothpaste, and the result may be the destruction of more tooth enamel that would occur from cavities without any brushing. The dental Association puts it this way: "Dental enamel is hard and resistant to abrasion. It is likely that significant amounts of enamel will not be lost by the judicious use of most of the dentifrices marketed today.

"It should be noted, however, that the compulsive brusher may wear away significant amounts of dental enamel, especially with the more highly abrasive formulations.

"A dentifrice should be more abrasive then is necessary to keep the teeth clean — that is, free of accessible plaque (the film that forms ridges of tartar) debris and superficial stain."

The Association concedes that the needs of each individual vary, that some people may be able to clean their teeth with a toothbrush and water alone. Most dentists also recommend use of dental floss or ribbon.

People who should be most concerned are those with gum problems which have exposed the softer portions of the teeth normally protected by the gum.

The study listed the relative abrasivity of 21 toothpastes, from lowest to highest, as follows:

T-Lak 20, Listerine 26, Pepsodent with zirconium silicate 26, Ammi-dent 33, Colgate with MFP 51, Ultra-Brite 64, Macleans spearmint 66, Macleans regular 70, Pearl Drops 72, Crest mint 81, Close-up 87, old formula Macleans spearmint and regular, both 93, Crest regular 95, Gleen II 106, Plus White 110, Phillips 114, Plus White Plus 132, Vote 134, Iodent #2 174 and Smokers Tooth Paste 202.

Any questions should be addressed to your dentist.

RUBBISH FOR REUSE IN RECYCLING DRIVE

Breaking glass with a hammer, Mrs. Earl Stanley helped fill one of the barrels used for collection of reusable material Saturday at the Coop parking lot on Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera. Glass, of separate colors, is one of the items collected in the drive by the Marin Ecology Center. It also collects tin cans and aluminum cans, but not cans of mixed metals. Boy Scouts have a permanent newspaper drop at Prime Market, Camino Alto and East Blithedale where bundles of tied newspapers may be left at any time. The next recycling collection will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Ali Baba Cafe at the Tam Junction in Mill Valley.

Forgotten Candle Was Fire's Cause

A fire which gutted a Tiburon apartment early Saturday and sent a woman occupant to the hospital was caused by a peculiar and dangerous type of candle, fire investigators said today.

Inspector Ken Howie of the Tiburon Fire Department said the blaze has been traced to a snowball candle which ignited a coffee table in the living room.

Elaine Griffiths, 59, who was carried from the burning apartment at 15 Harbor Oak Drive, was reported in fair condition today in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital suffering from first and second degree burns. Her husband John, 58, was treated for smoke inhalation.

Howie said the couple apparently went to bed leaving the round snowball candle burning on the living room table. The candle is made of whipped wax and the wick is designed to burn down into the middle, he said.

"With the flame hidden from sight it's easy to forget to blow it out when you retire," Howie said.

The candle probably touched off the blaze when it burned through the bottom, releasing a pool of melted wax and then igniting it, Howie said.

Bomb Threat, Armed Theft Mar Concert By Joan Baez

The Joan Baez concert at Pepperland Saturday night was sprinkled with hidden excitement of a bomb threat and armed robbery, unknown to the crowd, San Rafael police reported.

"There's a bomb set to go off in Pepperland at 10 o'clock; we don't dig Joan Baez around here," a male voice telephoned the amusement place at 9:25 p.m., according to police.

Nathaniel Erskin Weathers, head of security, searched the building without interrupting the concert, police reported.

Outside the building, Thomas Robert Smiley of 25 Melville Avenue, San Anselmo, was robbed at knife point of $35 by three men in their early 20's, he reported to police. He ran from the parking lot to a phone several blocks away before alerting police who were unable to locate the men.

Youth, Pageantry At 'Nutcracker'

By MARIE RAMEAU

The Marin Civic Ballet's Sunday afternoon performance of "Nutcracker" revealed thorough and painstaking preparation on the part of the entire cast, complemented by tasteful costuming and well-proportioned sets.

Although Act I of "Nutcracker" usually leaves one impatiently awaiting some serious dancing, the pantomime, which forms its essence, was carried out with a good deal of character within the general framework. The act, culminating in the famous Snow Scene, featured a very poised pas de deux performed by Jane Thelan and Rocky White. Miss Thelan, although rather mechanical, showed a fine sense of line.

In Act II, however, the real potential of the company came to the fore. Out of the colorful pageantry of the Candy Kingdom proceeded a number of colorful divertissements. Outstanding among these were Becky Jones' Spanish dance and Carol Brannan's Arabian, both of which were permeated with a strong sense of style and humor. But speaking of humor, the buffoonery in the Russian dance appeared exaggerated to the point of distorting the "Russian" style.

The grand pas de deux, the highlight of the ballet, was staged in the traditional manner and was thereby a refreshing experience. Cindy Lucas as the Sugar Plum Fairy demonstrated lightness, precision and classical style and was elegantly partnered by Charles Perrier, whose natural stage presence was truly impressive.

As a vivid artistic experience displaying a wealth of young talent, the company's "Nutcracker" makes an important contribution to the cultural life of the Marin community. The Marin Civic Ballet is directed by Mrs. Leona Norman.

2 Kent Staters Get Suspended

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—Two Kent State University students have been disciplined for selling underground newspapers on campus without a permit to raise money for the legal defense of 25 persons indicted in the May disorders.

Jerry Persky, 21, a senior from South Euclid, Ohio, and president of the KSU chapter of the Youth International Party, and Gerald Alter, 20, a sophomore from Westfield, N.J., were put on probation for one quarter.

Alter was also suspended for one quarter for giving campus police false information when arrested.

Change In National Diet Could Lower Heart Disease

NEW YORK (UPI) — A change in the national diet — now one of the highest in the world measured in fats and cholesterol —could lower the rate of heart disease in the United States by as much as 30 per cent, a panel of medical experts reported last week.

They recommended "safe and reasonable" changes in Americans' eating habits to reduce the "epidemic" of fatal heart attacks. Of a million people who suffer heart attacks in this country each year, half a million die quickly, and a third of that group is younger than 65 years old.

"Premature death from heart seizures occurs three times as often among men as among women.

The medical men, a federally-funded panel of 115 experts from medical and nursing societies, recommended action to curb the "three major risk factors" in artery and heart disease: high-fat diets, high blood pressure and smoking.

The group said the tobacco industry should be taxed, to provide funds for smoking control programs and treatment, and finally put through an "orderly phase out" to eradicate smoking as a "national habit."

Regarding fats, cholesterol and blood pressure, the physicians said the body of scientific evidence does not include enough scrutiny of the suspected connection to heart attacks and hardening of the arteries. They asked for a long-term program of national research into the American diet and, in the meantime, these "suggestive" changes until the "conclusive" results are in:

—Less consumption of fatty meats, egg yolks, butter, bacon, lard and baked goods and dairy products which have high levels of saturated fats and cholesterol.

— Development of leaner meat animals by the meat industry, and initiatives by the dairy industry to lower or eliminate saturated fats in its products.

—Revision of federal laws and regulations to require labeling indicating the precise fat content of foods: also, revision of certain regulations that prohibit producers' attempts to modify the fat content, as in the case where dairy firms are unable to substitute unsaturated vegetable oils for butterfat in milk without calling it "artificial milk."

These changes were recommended last week in a summary report from the Inter-society Commission for Heart Disease Resources, set up under the government's Regional Medical Programs to formulate policy guidelines to prevent heart disease and improve its treatment.

Accidents Can Be Prevented

CHICAGO (UPI) — Last year. 5,900 children under 15 years old were killed in all types of motor vehicle accidents.

"If any of the several types of approved restraining devices available for young children had been used, many of these children would not have died," says Howard Pyle, head of the National Safety Council.

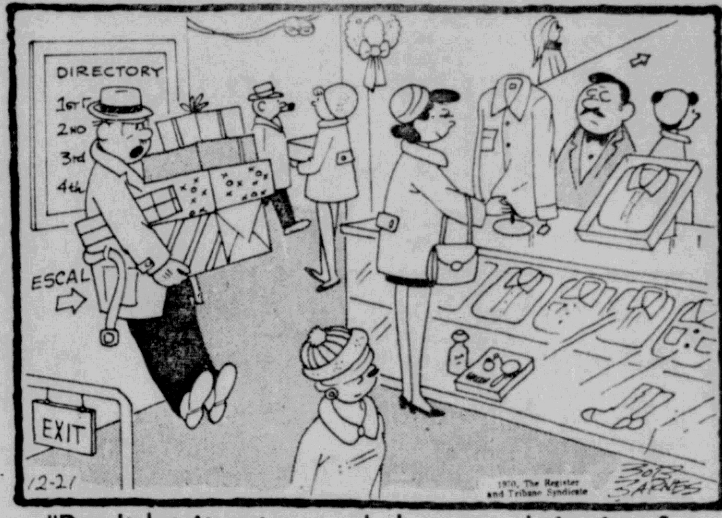
Pantyhose Sales

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Sales of pantyhose are still going up in Holland and other stockings are going down. A total of 55 million pairs of pantyhouse were sold in the first half of 1970, compared with 31 million in the first half of 1969. Other stocking sales dropped from 33 million to 8 million pairs.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes



"Don't let it get around, but my admiration for Ebeneezer Scrooge is growing by leaps and bounds."

FLEXIBLE FURNITURE

NEW YORK (UPI) —Furniture designers must give the American consumer furniture pieces that can be used in any room, in any size home, in any way the consumer chooses, says a leading case goods manufacturer. A. H. White, vice president of furniture marketing, Lea Industries, Inc., said in this era of "new functionalism and freedom of choice in home furnishings" traditional furniture categories are no longer valid.

Quality Is Pearl Factor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The factors to consider when buying cultured pearls include size, shape, color, luster and surface smoothness, says the Cultured Pearl Association.

Fine quality can come in any size and usually the bigger the pearl, the higher the prices. Shape varies from perfectly round to semi-round and baroque. The more perfectly circular, the more valuable and, again, the higher the price.

RUBBISH FOR REUSE IN RECYCLING DRIVE

Breaking glass with a hammer, Mrs. Earl Stanley helped fill one of the barrels used for collection of reusable material Saturday at the Coop parking lot on Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera. Glass, of separate colors, is one of the items collected in the drive by the Marin Ecology Center. It also collects tin cans and aluminum cans, but not cans of mixed metals. Boy Scouts have a permanent newspaper drop at Prime Market, Camino Alto and East Blithedale where bundles of tied newspapers may be left at any time. The next recycling collection will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Ali Baba Cafe at the Tam Junction in Mill Valley.

Forgotten Candle Was Fire's Cause

A fire which gutted a Tiburon apartment early Saturday and sent a woman occupant to the hospital was caused by a peculiar and dangerous type of candle, fire investigators said today.

Inspector Ken Howie of the Tiburon Fire Department said the blaze has been traced to a snowball candle which ignited a coffee table in the living room.

Elaine Griffiths, 59, who was carried from the burning apartment at 15 Harbor Oak Drive, was reported in fair condition today in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital suffering from first and second degree burns. Her husband John, 58, was treated for smoke inhalation.

Howie said the couple apparently went to bed leaving the round snowball candle burning on the living room table. The candle is made of whipped wax and the wick is designed to burn down into the middle, he said.

"With the flame hidden from sight it's easy to forget to blow it out when you retire," Howie said.

The candle probably touched off the blaze when it burned through the bottom, releasing a pool of melted wax and then igniting it, Howie said.

Bomb Threat, Armed Theft Mar Concert By Joan Baez

The Joan Baez concert at Pepperland Saturday night was sprinkled with hidden excitement of a bomb threat and armed robbery, unknown to the crowd, San Rafael police reported.

"There's a bomb set to go off in Pepperland at 10 o'clock; we don't dig Joan Baez around here," a male voice telephoned the amusement place at 9:25 p.m., according to police.

Nathaniel Erskin Weathers, head of security, searched the building without interrupting the concert, police reported.

Outside the building, Thomas Robert Smiley of 25 Melville Avenue, San Anselmo, was robbed at knife point of $35 by three men in their early 20's, he reported to police. He ran from the parking lot to a phone several blocks away before alerting police who were unable to locate the men.

MUSIC REVIEW

Youth, Pageantry At 'Nutcracker'

By MARIE RAMEAU

The Marin Civic Ballet's Sunday afternoon performance of "Nutcracker" revealed thorough and painstaking preparation on the part of the entire cast, complemented by tasteful costuming and well-proportioned sets.

Although Act I of "Nutcracker" usually leaves one impatiently awaiting some serious dancing, the pantomime, which forms its essence, was carried out with a good deal of character within the general framework. The act, culminating in the famous Snow Scene, featured a very poised pas de deux performed by Jane Thelan and Rocky White. Miss Thelan, although rather mechanical, showed a fine sense of line.

In Act II, however, the real potential of the company came to the fore. Out of the colorful pageantry of the Candy Kingdom proceeded a number of colorful divertissements. Outstanding among these were Becky Jones' Spanish dance and Carol Brannan's Arabian, both of which were permeated with a strong sense of style and humor. But speaking of humor, the buffoonery in the Russian dance appeared exaggerated to the point of distorting the "Russian" style.

The grand pas de deux, the highlight of the ballet, was staged in the traditional manner and was thereby a refreshing experience. Cindy Lucas as the Sugar Plum Fairy demonstrated lightness, precision and classical style and was elegantly partnered by Charles Perrier, whose natural stage presence was truly impressive.

As a vivid artistic experience displaying a wealth of young talent, the company's "Nutcracker" makes an important contribution to the cultural life of the Marin communit[illegible] The Marin Civic Ballet [illegible] directed by Mrs. Leona Norman.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Vel Phillips, Milwaukee's only alderwoman, has won permission for women to swim in city swimming pools on Saturdays.

Saturdays used to be restricted to men in the city's five pools, Mrs. Phillips told a committee, a practic begun when men worked during the week and could only swim on Saturdays.

2 Kent Staters Get Suspended

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—Two Kent State University students have been disciplined for selling underground newspapers on campus without a permit to raise money for the legal defense of 25 persons indicted in the May disorders.

Jerry Persky, 21, a senior from South Euclid, Ohio, and president of the KSU chapter of the Youth International Party, and Gerald Alter, 20, a sophomore from Westfield, N.J., were put on probation for one quarter.

Alter was also suspended for one quarter for giving campus police false information when arrested.

San Anselmo Planners To Hear Commercial Zoning Arguments

The San Anselmo Planning Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall, will hear arguments against rezoning four commercial properties at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Oak Knoll Avenue.

The commission initiated the action last month claiming there is no need for commercial zoning at that location. It has indicated it favors single-family residential use of the property.

Property owners, however, have objected saying the property was approved for commercial use by the city council in 1956. A review of city council minutes shows the original zoning for commercial use was rejected twice by the full council in 1955 and 1956 but then passed at a meeting which only three councilmen attended.

The 1956 council's 2-to-1 vote, the commission's staff has been told by city attorney John Buresh "may have been unethical but probably not illegal."

The commission's staff will recommend tonight that the commission consider residential zoning for the property other than single family.

Other agenda items the commission will consider include a rezoning request from Sunny Hills Children's Services for one parcel of land, continued consideration of a use permit for dance instruction at 205 The Alameda and a public hearing on rezoning property at 800 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from general commercial use to single family residential as proposed by the planning commission.

Water Board To Accept Land Deed

The Marin Municipal Water District board, meeting Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the district office, will accept a deed from George Kappas for land at his houseboat colony at Waldo Point on which the district will build a water main.

Also on the agenda is a report on the lease of the Jumpin' Bean Restaurant in San Rafael. The water district's attorney has notified the firm that the lease is being terminated for nonpayment of rent.

Car Struck, Driver Charged

A 21-year-old Tamalpais Valley man was injured yesterday at 7:30 p.m. when his parked car was struck by another vehicle in front of 222 Evergreen Avenue, Tamalpais Valley.

Albert Von Der Werth III, of 515 Browning Street, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised forehead.

The California Highway Patrol said Von Der Werth was working in his car when it was struck by a vehicle driven by William Strode, 43, of Los Gatos.

Strode was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of drunken driving and released on $360 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Wednesday.

Tools Taken

Tools and camera equipment valued at $280 were stolen sometime between 8 p.m. Friday and 3 a.m. Saturday from an auto owned by Dean W. Court of Walnut Creek, San Rafael police reported Saturday. The auto was parked at Front Street and Hoag Avenue.

Span Cycling Set Next Week

The east sidewalk of the Golden Gate Bridge is expected to be opened to bicyclists on weekdays sometime this week.

Bridge directors voted Dec. 11 to make use of the sidewalks toll-free and to open the east walk to cyclists on weekdays. Cyclists now are limited to the west walk and on weekends and holidays only.

The toll barriers were eliminated early this week, but yellow striping has yet to be added on the east walk to keep cyclists away from the roadway. Poor weather prevented the painting of the stripes this past week.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

A Second Chance Or A Head Start

By ERIC M. INGRAM

Michael Henry Mills is 25, in reasonably good health, married and the father of one. He also is unemployed and scrapes by each month thanks to county welfare checks. Since leaving high school eight years ago with no employable skill, he has in his words "been through the route and out the wringer."

George Bodenhamer, in contrast, is 17 and a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School from which he will graduate next month a semester early. He thinks a little about the draft and wonders whether he'll be accepted by the College of Marin this spring. He hasn't been "the route."

However opposite their lives may appear, both Mills and Bodenhamer have a similar goal for the future. Both want to be auto mechanics. Both are working toward that goal through a new county program.

For Mills, the Marin Career Education Program sponsored by the county schools office is an opportunity to learn a much needed trade, a trade in which he has always been interested but had no opportunity for training.

The two year automotive mechanic's course they attend from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. weekdays at San Rafael High School is part of a fledgling vocational training program started in September.

Besides the mechanics course, the county offers six other fields of training at various Marin high schools. They include marine technology, food service, welding, office occupations, plastics technology, and a second mechanics course dealing specifically with brakes and wheel alignment.

The courses have an enrollment of about 270, according to county schools office officials, who say the program is open to anyone from students to dropouts to hard-core unemployables, as long as they show a combination of need and desire.

The program, jointly financed by the county and state, is guided by an advisory board of educators and businessmen.

It is through the melding of experience and needs on the advisory board that the program has achieved its success, according to Lyle O. Wright and William Sovel of the schools office.

"Purpose of the program is to give students entry level skills into occupations that interest them," said Sovel, work experience coordinator, adding that the county's new program should not be confused with high school industrial arts courses. He said in the county's new program students learn specific jobs, how to find them and how to keep them.

Goals of the program are to give college-bound students a trade which they can use to aid them financially through college and immediate employment to the others upon completion of the course they choose, he said.

The seven courses are individually broken up into units so that students may gain one skill, such as radiator repair or several, which after two years would give a student in the mechanic's course for instance, immediate skills in service station, muffler, radiator, electrical, engine and transmission work.

Both Wright and Sovel agreed this type of program is overdue and may represent a trend away from the great emphasis on college preparatory studies in high school. However, both indicated it would be years, if ever, before vocational training will receive the emphasis at the high school level that it deserves.

"On a national average," Wright said, "80 per cent of the high school students do not go on to college and 50 per cent of those that do, don't graduate . . . As far as vocational training goes, high school students have been short changed."

The program, which Wright and Sovel judge to be successful and ahead of schedule after four months of operation, is costing Marin taxpayers about $200,000 per year.

Under a regional county wide concept, each program is centered at a high school and interested students from other high schools in Marin (as well as adults) travel to the course which interests them.

The courses also can be taken for credit towards high school graduation, Wright said.

Such is the case with Sue Krudop of San Anselmo, a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School and Billie J. Wright of Novato, a junior at San Marin High School, who are attending the office occupations course at Sir Francis Drake.

Both agreed the county's program is more stimulating than business courses offered at their high schools.

Since the program is not compulsory, the girls said, it attracts those that want to learn and does not become a dumping ground for uninspired students.

"I would rather come here all day than to regular school," said Miss Wright adding that the rate of learning is much faster because the students want to learn.

Her instructor, David J. Anderson, agreed that the students are stimulated but added that students are allowed to set their own pace. Thus a slow learner does not receive pressure which can be defeating.

Cash, Supplies Reported Stolen

Tools, supplies and cash totaling about $950 in value were stolen sometime between closing Friday and 5:07 a.m. Saturday from the Cerutte Brothers Service Station at Third and C streets, San Rafael, police said Saturday.

The items were later recovered abandoned in a truck parked near the station.

"My husband works harder than he should. He hardly ever wants anything for himself but, for some reason, he really wants that car."

"I think he should get it.
After all, it's Christmas."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

How The Tournament Player Gets Extra No-Trump Trick

Today's hand will be of greater interest to tournament players than to rubber bridge players. There is no great problem in winning nine tricks, and that is all the rubber bridge player would care about. The match-point tournament player would work hard to get a 10th trick, since overtricks are the most important factor in tournament championships.

SLIGHT OVERBID

South's jump to two notrump was a slight overbid by American standards, but this didn't matter since South was not an American. Jose Le Dentu, the great Parisian expert who held the South cards in an international tournament, didn't mind stretching a point or two to reach a desirable contract.

West opened the ten of spades, and East ducked to South's jack. Declarer counted 26 points for his side, which left 14 points for the opponents. Obviously, East held at least 12 of these high-card points for his first-hand opening bid. West might have a stray queen, but he could not have either of the missing aces.

NINTH TRICK

Le Dentu was sure of two spades, two hearts and four clubs. He developed his ninth trick by leading a club to dummy and returning a diamond to the queen. East had to play low to avoid giving declarer two diamond tricks instead of just one.

Declarer next led another club to dummy and returned a spade. East took the ace of spades and got out safely with a spade.

Now declarer took his clubs and dummy's high hearts. East had been forced to discard a spade and a heart on the clubs and was therefore reduced to one high heart and the A-J of diamonds.

THIRD HEART

When declarer led a third heart, East had to win and lead diamonds, thus yielding a 10th trick to dummy's king of diamonds. It was a routine exercise for a fine tournament player, but a rubber bridge player might have taken his nine tricks and conceded the rest in the interest of saving time.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- K J 7
♥- 9 8 4
♦- Q 7 6
♣- K Q 9 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

Since you have 11 points in high cards, your hand is too strong for a simple raise to two spades. Show your suit, such as it is, and await developments.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

A Second Chance Or A Head Start

By ERIC M. INGRAM

Michael Henry Mills is 25, in reasonably good health, married and the father of one. He also is unemployed and scrapes by each month thanks to county welfare checks. Since leaving high school eight years ago with no employable skill, he has in his words "been through the route and out the wringer."

George Bodenhamer, in contrast, is 17 and a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School from which he will graduate next month a semester early. He thinks a little about the draft and wonders whether he'll be accepted by the College of Marin this spring. He hasn't been "the route."

However opposite their lives may appear, both Mills and Bodenhamer have a similar goal for the future. Both want to be auto mechanics. Both are working toward that goal through a new county program.

For Mills, the Marin Career Education Program sponsored by the county schools office is an opportunity to learn a much needed trade, a trade in which he has always been interested but had no opportunity for training.

The two year automotive mechanic's course they attend from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. weekdays at San Rafael High School is part of a fledgling vocational training program started in September.

Besides the mechanics course, the county offers six other fields of training at various Marin high schools. They include marine technology, food service, welding, office occupations, plastics technology, and a second mechanics course dealing specifically with brakes and wheel alignment.

The courses have an enrollment of about 270, according to county schools office officials, who say the program is open to anyone from students to dropouts to hard-core unemployables, as long as they show a combination of need and desire.

The program, jointly financed by the county and state, is guided by an advisory board of educators and businessmen.

It is through the melding of experience and needs on the advisory board that the program has achieved its success, according to Lyle O. Wright and William Sovel of the schools office.

"Purpose of the program is to give students entry level skills into occupations that interest them," said Sovel, work experience coordinator, adding that the county's new program should not be confused with high school industrial arts courses. He said in the county's new program students learn specific jobs, how to find them and how to keep them.

Goals of the program are to give college-bound students a trade which they can use to aid them financially through college and immediate employment to the others upon completion of the course they choose, he said.

The seven courses are individually broken up into units so that students may gain one skill, such as radiator repair or several, which after two years would give a student in the mechanic's course for instance, immediate skills in service station, muffler, radiator, electrical, engine and transmission work.

Both Wright and Sovel agreed this type of program is overdue and may represent a trend away from the great emphasis on college preparatory studies in high school. However, both indicated it would be years, if ever, before vocational training will receive the emphasis at the high school level that it deserves.

"On a national average," Wright said, "80 per cent of the high school students do not go on to college and 50 per cent of those that do, don't graduate . . . As far as vocational training goes, high school students have been short changed."

The program, which Wright and Sovel judge to be successful and ahead of schedule after four months of operation, is costing Marin taxpayers about $200,000 per year.

Under a regional county wide concept, each program is centered at a high school and interested students from other high schools in Marin (as well as adults) travel to the course which interests them.

The courses also can be taken for credit towards high school graduation, Wright said.

Such is the case with Sue Krudop of San Anselmo, a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School and Billie J. Wright of Novato, a junior at San Marin High School, who are attending the office occupations course at Sir Francis Drake.

Both agreed the county's program is more stimulating than business courses offered at their high schools.

Since the program is not compulsory, the girls said, it attracts those that want to learn and does not become a dumping ground for uninspired students.

"I would rather come here all day than to regular school," said Miss Wright adding that the rate of learning is much faster because the students want to learn.

Her instructor, David J. Anderson, agreed that the students are stimulated but added that students are allowed to set their own pace. Thus a slow learner does not receive pressure which can be defeating.

Cash, Supplies Reported Stolen

Tools, supplies and cash totaling about $950 in value were stolen sometime between closing Friday and 5:07 a.m. Saturday from the Cerutte Brothers Service Station at Third and C streets, San Rafael, police said Saturday.

The items were later recovered abandoned in a truck parked near the station.

Car Struck, Driver Charged

A 21-year-old Tamalpais Valley man was injured yesterday at 7:30 p.m. when his parked car was struck by another vehicle in front of 222 Evergreen Avenue, Tamalpais Valley.

Albert Von Der Werth III, of 515 Browning Street, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised forehead.

The California Highway Patrol said Von Der Werth was working in his car when it was struck by a vehicle driven by William Strode, 43, of Los Gatos.

Strode was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of drunken driving and released on $360 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Wednesday.

Tools Taken

Tools and camera equipment valued at $280 were stolen sometime between 8 p.m. Friday and 3 a.m. Saturday from an auto owned by Dean W. Court of Walnut Creek, San Rafael police reported Saturday. The auto was parked at Front Street and Hoag Avenue.

"Stop Worrying! I'm telling you . . . everything will fit!"

Span Cycling Set Next Week

The east sidewalk of the Golden Gate Bridge is expected to be opened to bicyclists on weekdays sometime this week.

Bridge directors voted Dec. 11 to make use of the sidewalks toll-free and to open the east walk to cyclists on weekdays. Cyclists now are limited to the west walk and on weekends and holidays only.

The toll barriers were eliminated early this week, but yellow striping has yet to be added on the east walk to keep cyclists away from the roadway. Poor weather prevented the painting of the stripes this past week.

San Anselmo Planners To Hear Commercial Zoning Arguments

The San Anselmo Planning Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall, will hear arguments against rezoning four commercial properties at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Oak Knoll Avenue.

The commission initiated the action last month claiming there is no need for commercial zoning at that location. It has indicated it favors single-family residential use of the property.

Property owners, however, have objected saying the property was approved for commercial use by the city council in 1956. A review of city council minutes shows the original zoning for commercial use was rejected twice by the full council in 1955 and 1956 but then passed at a meeting which only three councilmen attended.

The 1956 council's 2-to-1 vote, the commission's staff has been told by city attorney John Buresh "may have been unethical but probably not illegal."

The commission's staff will recommend tonight that the commission consider residential zoning for the property other than single family.

Other agenda items the commission will consider include a rezoning request from Sunny Hills Children's Services for one parcel of land, continued consideration of a use permit for dance instruction at 205 The Alameda and a public hearing on rezoning property at 800 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from general commercial use to single family residential as proposed by the planning commission.

Water Board To Accept Land Deed

The Marin Municipal Water District board, meeting Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the district office, will accept a deed from George Kappas for land at his houseboat colony at Waldo Point on which the district will build a water main.

Also on the agenda is a report on the lease of the Jumpin' Bean Restaurant in San Rafael. The water district's attorney has notified the firm that the lease is being terminated for nonpayment of rent.

"My husband works harder than he should. He hardly ever wants anything for himself but, for some reason, he really wants that car."

"I think he should get it. After all, it's Christmas."

Opening lead — ♠ 10

SLIGHT OVERBID

South's jump to two notrump was a slight overbid by American standards, but this didn't matter since South was not an American. Jose Le Dentu, the great Parisian expert who held the South cards in an international tournament, didn't mind stretching a point or two to reach a desirable contract.

West opened the ten of spades, and East ducked to South's jack. Declarer counted 26 points for his side, which left 14 points for the opponents. Obviously, East held at least 12 of these high-card points for his first-hand opening bid. West might have a stray queen, but he could not have either of the missing aces.

NINTH TRICK

Le Dentu was sure of two spades, two hearts and four clubs. He developed his ninth trick by leading a club to dummy and returning a diamond to the queen. East had to play low to avoid giving declarer two diamond tricks instead of just one.

Declarer next led another club to dummy and returned a spade. East took the ace of spades and got out safely with a spade.

Now declarer took his clubs and dummy's high hearts. East had been forced to discard a spade and a heart on the clubs and was therefore reduced to one high heart and the A-J of diamonds.

THIRD HEART

When declarer led a third heart, East had to win and lead diamonds, thus yielding a 10th trick to dummy's king of diamonds. It was a routine exercise for a fine tournament player, but a rubber bridge player might have taken his nine tricks and conceded the rest in the interest of saving time.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-K J 7
♥-9 8 4
♦-Q 7 6
♣-K Q 9 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

Since you have 11 points in high cards, your hand is too strong for a simple raise to two spades. Show your suit, such as it is, and await developments.

When Indians attacked the town of Deerfield, Mass., every building, except a church and one house, was burned.

A message to I-J newspaperboys and their parents

During the past 10 days or so I-J carriers have faced difficulties which would try anyone's patience and devotion to duty - and so have their parents.

It was hard enough that the paper was late, forcing the boys to wait and their parents to wonder just when they'd get through with delivery. But on top of that it rained day after day with record intensity. It was a time of trial for both newspaperboys and parents. (Many parents even helped their youngsters out on the route).

As you probably know the lateness of the I-J has been due to a major technological change-over here in the I-J plant.

The transition has brought problems which can only be solved by actually producing the paper with the new facilities, similar to "road testing" an advanced automobile.

This was temporary but we have been greatly concerned with the inconvenience it has brought you . . . the waiting, the cold and the rain.

As we overcame these production problems we will remember how you continued to deliver the I-J under the most trying conditions. It was an admirable effort . . . when time ran short and the rains came down.

We also appreciate the letters and comments from parents encouraging us, too, during this difficult period.

Our sincere thanks to all.

Military Academies Strapped

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) —Like the cadets of Gascoyne, those "defenders of old homes, old names, old splendors," the sons of Southern gentry once were schooled early in the use of bugles and gunpowder.

Military academies flourished across Dixie. Their histories — or legends —are filled with stories of how boy soldiers fought and died in the Yankee onslaught.

Time mutilates tradition. Values are sometimes reversed.

Faced with a wave of anti-military sentiment, growing permissiveness in the home, and a general shortage of money, the nation's military prep schools are struggling to keep their doors open.

SOME CLOSE

Some have succumbed and closed. Others are staying alive on the strength of endowments and cutbacks. A few have obliterated tradition by admitting girls.

"In today's world, children don't want to go to a place and be under rules and regulations where they can't have cars and do what they want all the time," said Capt. Earl M. Clark, headmaster at Admiral Farragut Academy in St. Petersburg.

And some parents, according to Jack Natcher of Miami Military Academy, "feel military training is a passport to Vietnam."

ENROLLMENT DOWN

The National Association of Independent Schools said 14 military prep schools responding to a recent survey reported their enrollments down this year. Kentucky Military Institute recently closed its winter facilities in Venice, Fla., and prestigious old Culver Military Academy in Indiana is now accepting coeds as day students.

Goergia Military Academy at Milledgeville, Ga., McCallie School at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bolles in Jacksonville, Fla., have dropped their military programs.

Gordon Military College at Barnesville, Ga., having experienced a 15 per cent enrollment slump since the start of the Vietnam War, has started admitting girls and letting its boys grow longer hair.

While Farragut's Clark admits enrollment at most military schools is dropping, he is optimistic about the future. "I think the pendulum has begun to swing the other way."

A notable exception to the current trend is Sanford Naval Academy, sister institution of Castle Heights Military Academy in Lebanon, Tenn., which has shown steady growth since it first opened here seven years ago. This year it has 319 midshipmen in grades 6-12.

"We believe a young man with college acceptance on his mind will concentrate and succeed in a strictly masculine environment," Turner said. "Occassionallz we lose a boy who wants to be home with his girl friend, but the Sanford battalion is generally willing to work harder for weekend furloughs."

Miami Military Academy enrolled 17 coeds as day students for the first time this year to help ease the economic pinch. Natcher, executive vice president, says he is "gratified" with the result.

Conspiracy Trial Set Precedent

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The Seattle conspiracy trial is over for the moment, but the legal implications of its sudden end may strongly affect future trials where disruptive courtroom tactics are employed.

U.S. District Judge George Boldt's declaration of a mistrial and his ruling that the defendants must serve their contempt sentences before a new trial can be held may chill the hopes of radicals who plan to use the courts as a political platform.

But the "Boldt doctrine," which the judge said came as an answer to his "daily prayers," must first be upheld in the appeal courts.

In essence, the "Boldt doctrine" involves calling a mistrial when the actions of the defendants have, in the opinion of the judge, prejudiced their own case with the jury.

Then, the judge would sentence the defendants for contempt of court and uphold the beginning of a new trial until the contempt terms had been served.

If disruptions continue to occur in subsequent trials, the procedure could be repeated, apparently endlessly.

Not only could the use of such a plan have a direct effect on limiting courtroom outbursts, but it would deny radical defendants news exposure and fund-raising appearances between trials.

In short, Boldt's plan has considerably upped the ante for those defendants who consider their strongest defense to be a direct attack on the court system-in the courtroom itself.

However, attorneys for the seven defendants, charged with conspiring to damage federal property at a Feb. 1 demonstration at the U.S. Courthouse in Seattle, have already started vigorous appeal.

Attorney Michael Tigar said he knew of no case where a mistrial had been called on such grounds.

Tigar, a law professor at UCLA, said it was possible there never will be another trial for the Seattle Seven. His appeal will attempt to show the mistrial order was not justified and a second trial would be double jeopardy.

Boldt called the mistrial Dec. 10 after the six male defendants held up the start of the court session for nearly 30 minutes to protest part of the overflow crowd of spectators being forced to wait outside in the rain.

Last Monday, when the judge announced the contempt sentences of six months each for the male defendants, Susan Stern, the only female defendant, insisted on addressing the court, even though illness had prevented her from being in court when the disruption occurred.

The judge warned her that if she spoke during the contempt hearing, she, too, would be found in contempt. She spoke anyway and a near-riot broke out in the courtroom when deputy marshals attempted to physically cut short her emotional, 25-minute speech.

In all, defendants Marshall, Jeffrey Dowd, Michael Abeles, Joseph Kelly and Roger Lippman were sentenced to a total of one year in jail on two separate contempt charges each. Lerner and Mrs. Stern were sentenced to six-month jail terms on one charge of contempt each.

Five-Year-Old Hurt By Car In Petaluma

Richard Stilwell, 5, of 124 Howard Street, Petaluma has been treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts of the hands and arms suffered when he was struck by a car near his home.

Police said he darted from between parked cars Thursday into the path of a car driven by Ralph L. Duncan, 40, of 1265 Tamales Road, Petaluma.

Military Academies Strapped

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) —Like the cadets of Gascoyne, those "defenders of old homes, old names, old splendors," the sons of Southern gentry once were schooled early in the use of bugles and gunpowder.

Military academies flourished across Dixie. Their histories — or legends —are filled with stories of how boy soldiers fought and died in the Yankee onslaught.

Time mutilates tradition. Values are sometimes reversed.

Faced with a wave of anti-military sentiment, growing permissiveness in the home, and a general shortage of money, the nation's military prep schools are struggling to keep their doors open.

SOME CLOSE

Some have succumbed and closed. Others are staying alive on the strength of endowments and cutbacks. A few have obliterated tradition by admitting girls.

"In today's world, children don't want to go to a place and be under rules and regulations where they can't have cars and do what they want all the time," said Capt. Earl M. Clark, headmaster at Admiral Farragut Academy in St. Petersburg.

And some parents, according to Jack Natcher of Miami Military Academy, "feel military training is a passport to Vietnam."

ENROLLMENT DOWN

The National Association of Independent Schools said 14 military prep schools responding to a recent survey reported their enrollments down this year. Kentucky Military Institute recently closed its winter facilities in Venice, Fla., and prestigious old Culver Military Academy in Indiana is now accepting coeds as day students.

Goergia Military Academy at Milledgeville, Ga., McCallie School at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bolles in Jacksonville, Fla., have dropped their military programs.

Gordon Military College at Barnesville, Ga., having experienced a 15 per cent enrollment slump since the start of the Vietnam War, has started admitting girls and letting its boys grow longer hair.

While Farragut's Clark admits enrollment at most military schools is dropping, he is optimistic about the future. "I think the pendulum has begun to swing the other way."

A notable exception to the current trend is Sanford Naval Academy, sister institution of Castle Heights Military Academy in Lebanon, Tenn., which has shown steady growth since it first opened here seven years ago. This year it has 319 midshipmen in grades 6-12.

"We believe a young man with college acceptance on his mind will concentrate and succeed in a strictly masculine environment," Turner said. "Occassionallz we lose a boy who wants to be home with his girl friend, but the Sanford battalion is generally willing to work harder for weekend furloughs."

Miami Military Academy enrolled 17 coeds as day students for the first time this year to help ease the economic pinch. Natcher, executive vice president, says he is "gratified" with the result.

Conspiracy Trial Set Precedent

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The Seattle conspiracy trial is over for the moment, but the legal implications of its sudden end may strongly affect future trials where disruptive courtroom tactics are employed.

U.S. District Judge George Boldt's declaration of a mistrial and his ruling that the defendants must serve their contempt sentences before a new trial can be held may chill the hopes of radicals who plan to use the courts as a political platform.

But the "Boldt doctrine," which the judge said came as an answer to his "daily prayers," must first be upheld in the appeal courts.

In essence, the "Boldt doctrine" involves calling a mistrial when the actions of the defendants have, in the opinion of the judge, prejudiced their own case with the jury.

Then, the judge would sentence the defendants for contempt of court and uphold the beginning of a new trial until the contempt terms had been served.

If disruptions continue to occur in subsequent trials, the procedure could be repeated, apparently endlessly.

Not only could the use of such a plan have a direct effect on limiting courtroom outbursts, but it would deny radical defendants news exposure and fund-raising appearances between trials.

In short, Boldt's plan has considerably upped the ante for those defendants who consider their strongest defense to be a direct attack on the court system-in the courtroom itself.

However, attorneys for the seven defendants, charged with conspiring to damage federal property at a Feb. 1 demonstration at the U.S. Courthouse in Seattle, have already started vigorous appeal.

Attorney Michael Tigar said he knew of no case where a mistrial had been called on such grounds.

Tigar, a law professor at UCLA, said it was possible there never will be another trial for the Seattle Seven. His appeal will attempt to show the mistrial order was not justified and a second trial would be double jeopardy.

Boldt called the mistrial Dec. 10 after the six male defendants held up the start of the court session for nearly 30 minutes to protest part of the overflow crowd of spectators being forced to wait outside in the rain.

Last Monday, when the judge announced the contempt sentences of six months each for the male defendants, Susan Stern, the only female defendant, insisted on addressing the court, even though illness had prevented her from being in court when the disruption occurred.

The judge warned her that if she spoke during the contempt hearing, she, too, would be found in contempt. She spoke anyway and a near-riot broke out in the courtroom when deputy marshals attempted to physically cut short her emotional, 25-minute speech.

In all, defendants Marshall, Jeffrey Dowd, Michael Abeles, Joseph Kelly and Roger Lippman were sentenced to a total of one year in jail on two separate contempt charges each. Lerner and Mrs. Stern were sentenced to six-month jail terms on one charge of contempt each.

Five-Year-Old Hurt By Car In Petaluma

Richard Stilwell, 5, of 124 Howard Street, Petaluma has been treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts of the hands and arms suffered when he was struck by a car near his home.

(Water Code Sections 72,000 and following)

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors of Marin Municipal Water District, by Resolution No. 4659 dated November 12, 1970, declared its intention to create an improvement district to make a study of sewerage facilities for the Southern Marn area; and

The extent of this proposed study is set forth in a "Work Outline," a copy of which is on file with the Secretary.

3. That the estimated cost of carrying out the aforesaid purpose is $190,000.

Police Use Radio To Talk Car In

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The Los Angeles County sheriff's department lost one of its patrol cars Sunday but a persuasive radio dispatcher talked a 16-year-old youth into bringing the auto back.

"You've got problems," dispatcher Roy Beattie told the young thief, explaining things would go easier for him if he returned the car.

Thirty minutes later, the youth drove up to the place where he had stolen the vehicle from deputy George Leake. Leake was waiting. The teenager was booked under the juvenile code for grand theft auto.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Permanent Damage Results From Neglected Arthritis

Approximately 50 per cent of persons with rheumatoid arthritis get well spontaneously. Exceptions occur when the disease is neglected or deformities develop. Arthritics never should assume a wait-and-see attitude because the condition is painful and neglect may result in permanent damage to the involved tissues.

More than a dozen remedies are capable of bringing relief. Home physical therapy — warm baths, massage and gentle manipulation -- keeps the joints flexible and the muscles in good tone. The majority of arthritics get along well so long as they continue to take their medicine and keep up their resistance. When treatment is stopped, symptoms may recur, but improvement often lasts for months or years.

THE EARLY care of rheumatoid arthritis is stressed because surgery is becoming an encouraging alternate treatment. Best results are obtained when the involved tissues are removed early in the course of the disease. In rheumatoid arthritis, the membranes lining and surrounding the bony joint are swollen and inflamed. Removal of these membranes theoretically results in cure, but total success depends upon whether the bony tissue is undamaged and whether the joint will function normally without them. Better results can be expected when the operation is done early because at this point the damage is usually minimal. Paradoxically the victim is less inclined to consider surgery when his symptoms are not severe.

ASPIRIN AND other salicylates are most useful, regardless of the severity of the arthritis. Those who develop gastric irritation should use a buffered aspirin, a coated product or an acetaminophen. Other standard rheumatoid arthritis remedies include gold salts, antimalarial drugs, the corticosteroids, Butazolidin and Indocin. These are potent drugs and frequently cause side reactions.

Meanwhile, we can expect more news concerning the experimental drugs. In the past, most of these have enjoyed a period of initial enthusiasm, succeeded by one of caution, and then, after several years of use, they find a true niche in the treatment regimens.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

GERM PHOBIA

Miss J. G. writes: I would like to know how to cure germophobia. Can I accomplish this without psychiatric help? I am 22 years old and single.

REPLY

Much depends on the severity of the problem, your emotional status and what precipitates this abnormal fear of germs. If you cannot answer these questions or gain an insight into your problem, a psychiatrist may be needed. Most victims of this phobia are able to live with it even tho they constantly wipe off dinnerware, door knobs, telephones, and avoid close contact with others.

A CARROT A DAY

REPLY

Carrots provide roughage, minerals, vitamins A and C, and carotene. Furthermore, you have selected an item that is virtually free of calories.

TB OF BONE

L. B. writes: How is tuberculosis of a leg bone treated?

REPLY

With anti-tuberculosis agents, such as PAS, streptomycin, and isoniazid.

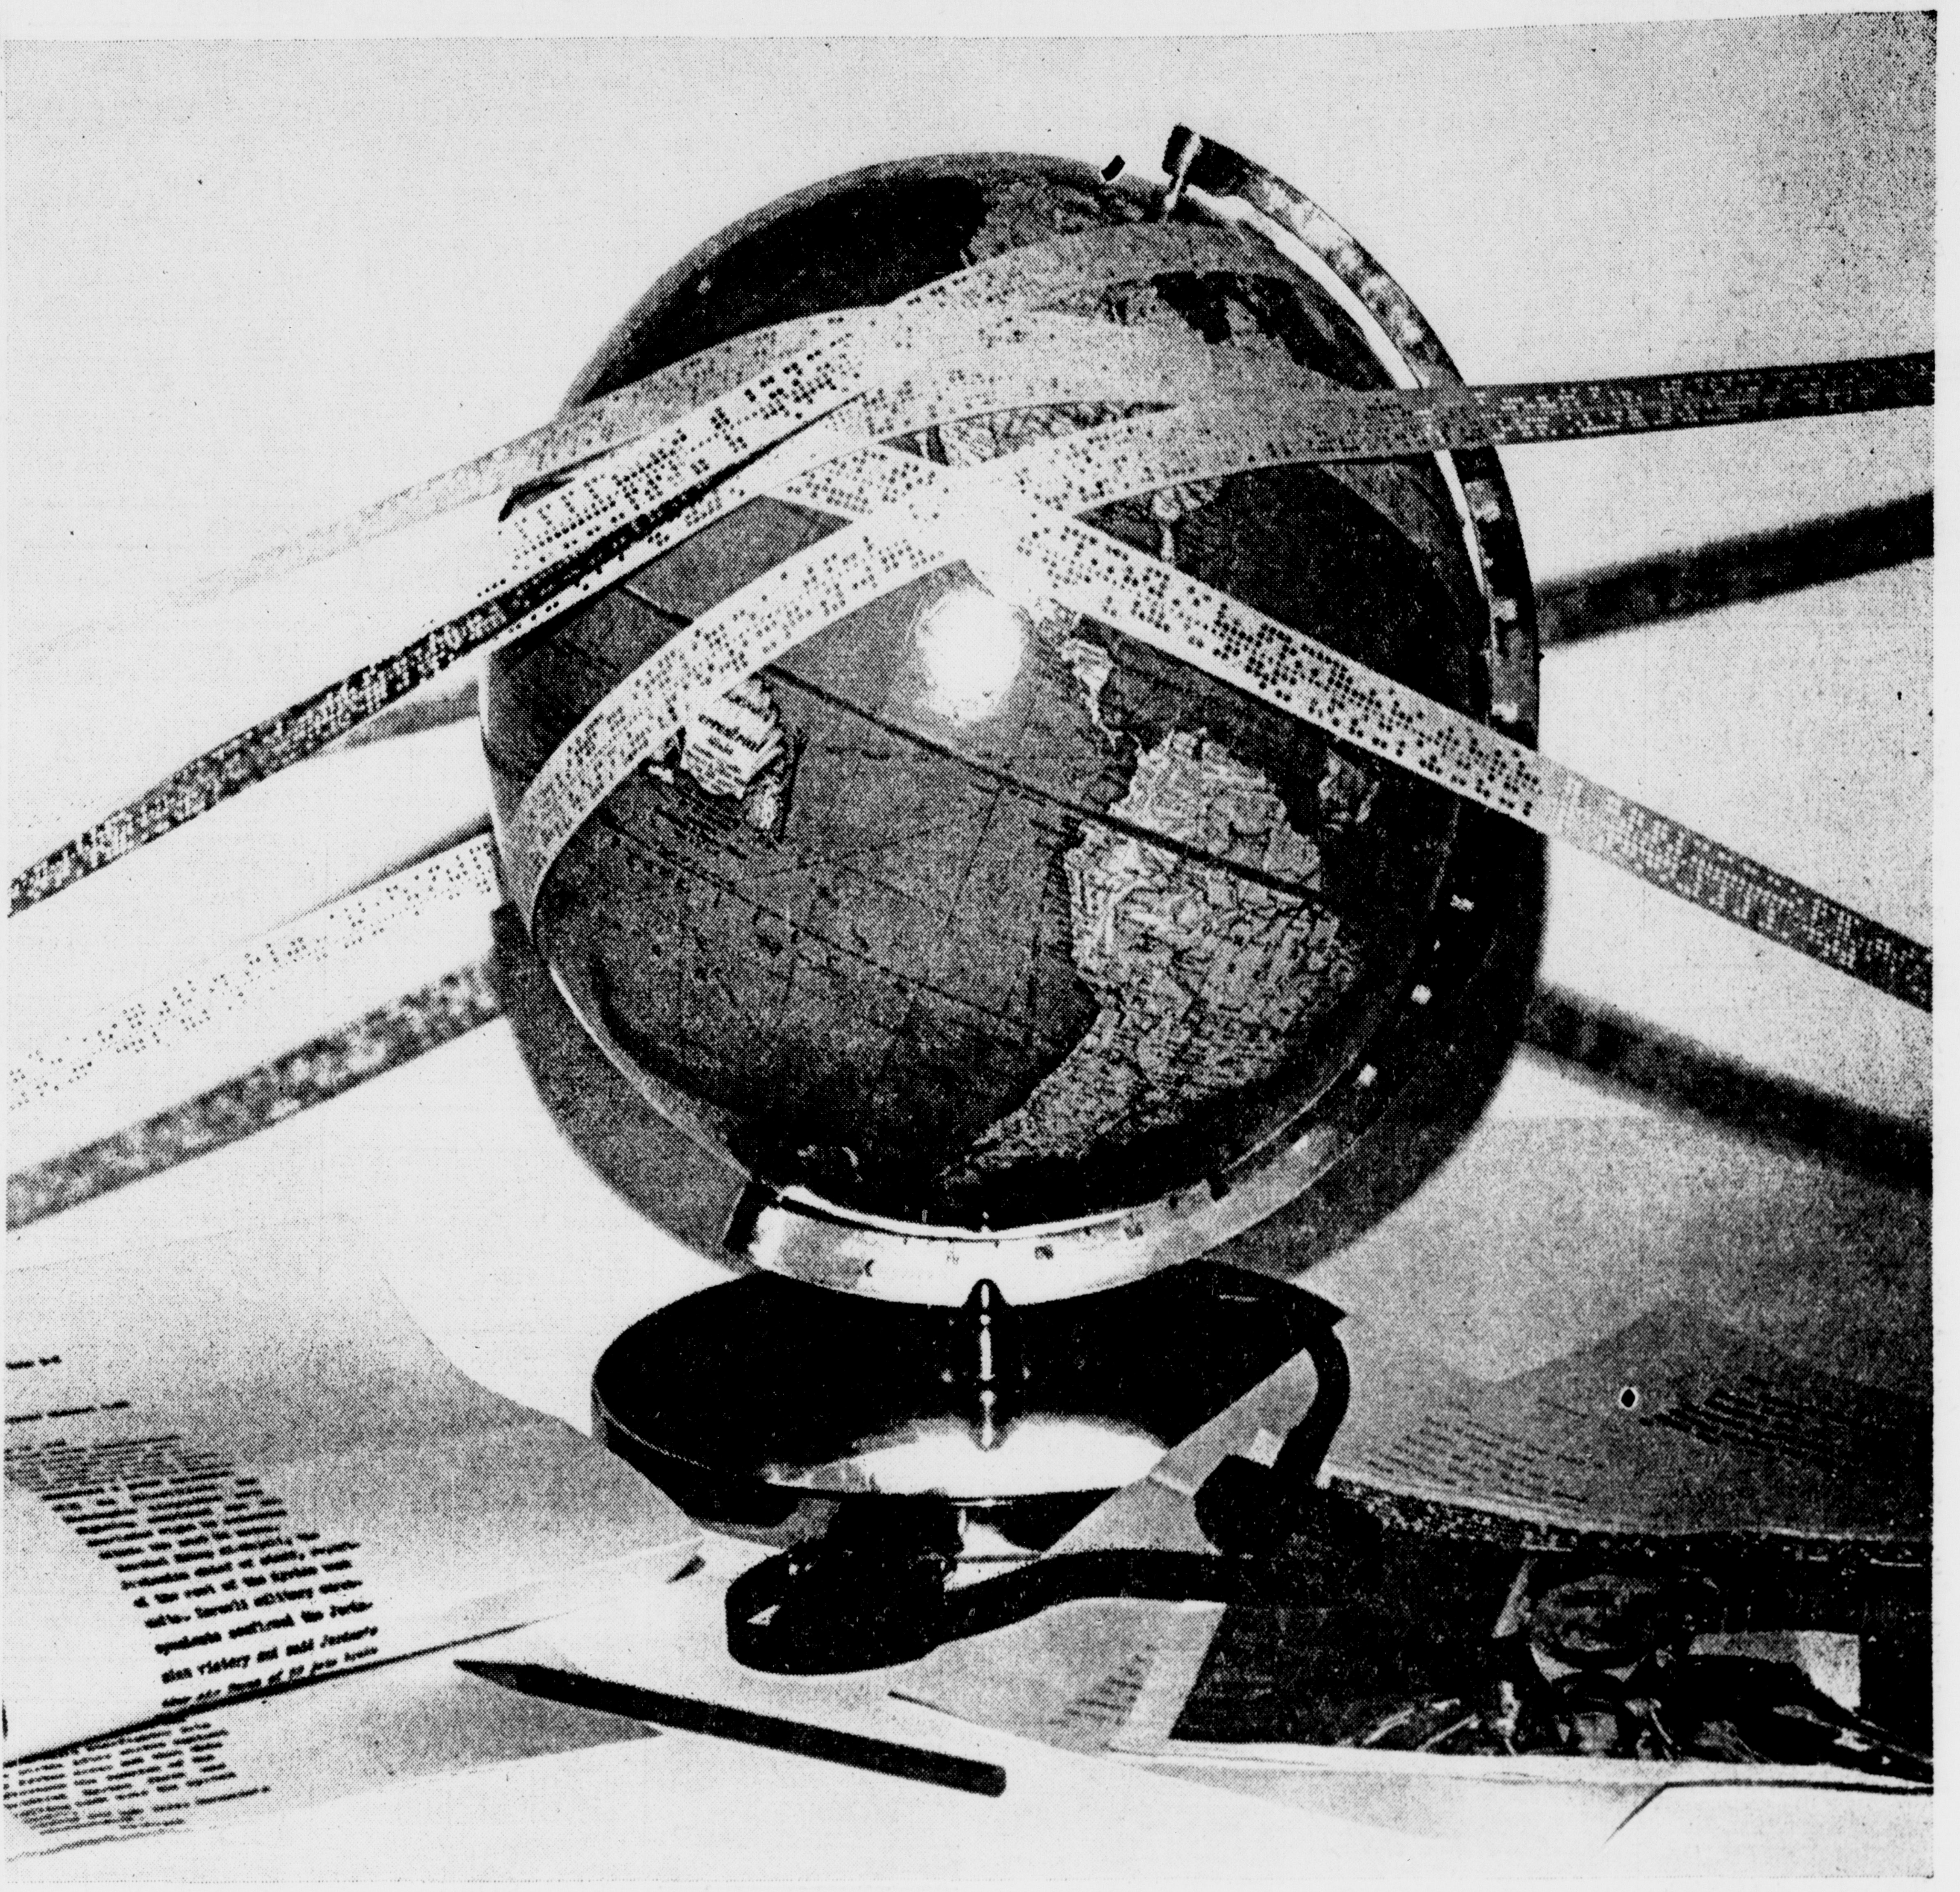
Christmas Tree Fire Kills Boy

LA PUENTE (UPI)—Jeffrey Fosdick, 9, La Puente, was killed Sunday when a Christmas tree caught fire in his family's home and flames engulfed the residence.

The boy's mother and two other children escaped. Firemen said the $25,000 home was heavily damaged. The cause of the blaze was under investigation.



The world is 8 columns wide

To place the "world" in readable form before you the I-J and United Press International draw upon some rather fantastic facilities

At the I-J we extend your subscription to the entire globe of events daily . . . with an almost magical assist from United Press International.

As the world's largest "nervous system" for communicating news, UPI links the I-J newsroom (and you) with virtually every place on earth. The nerves are 658,000 miles of cable and telegraph circuits and another 110,000 miles of intercontinental radio teleprinter channels. It is a two-way complex that speeds news to and from even the most remote part of the world in a matter of seconds.

To gather and write the news UPI employs an army of more than 10,000 reporters, correspondents, editors and technicians . . . operating from 238 bureaus in 62 nations. Whether the source is Moscow, Saigon, Madrid or Chicago, UPI is literally there in person.

With the news come pictures, sent electronically to the I-J where a UPI Unifax machine creates an exact image of a photograph which may have been taken within the hour in Cairo or London.

The point of course is that you are kept informed. You gain perspective on the world . . . on events which are always in the process of happening. Welcome to the world . . . 8 columns wide in the I-J, daily.

Police Use Radio To Talk Car In

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The Los Angeles County sheriff's department lost one of its patrol cars Sunday but a persuasive radio dispatcher talked a 16-year-old youth into bringing the auto back.

"You've got problems," dispatcher Roy Beattie told the young thief, explaining things would go easier for him if he returned the car.

Thirty minutes later, the youth drove up to the place where he had stolen the vehicle from deputy George Leake. Leake was waiting. The teenager was booked under the juvenile code for grand theft auto.

Electricity Magnet Passes Test

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI)—A massive magnet capable of heating gases to temperatures 20 times hotter than the sun for one-second periods has passed its first tests.

The 13-ton "Baseball II" magnet is designed to meet two of the three requirements for harnessing the power of the hydrogen bomb for generation of electricity.

The three criteria for achieving a controlled thermonuclear reaction—in which light atoms such as hydrogen and helium are fused with a tremendous outpouring of energy—are time, temperature and density.

Scientists at Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, an Atomic Energy Commission facility operated by the University of California, said Sunday that Baseball II will form a "magnetic bottle" in which the temperature and time requirements are met.

This will allow concentration in building up the density of hot gases—or plasmas—trapped inside the magnetic field of the six-foot diameter, superconducting magnet which got its name because it is shaped like the seam of a baseball.

After minor modifications and further engineering tests, the magnet will be hooked up in March to Livermore's thermonuclear fusion experiment.

The new apparatus will not meet all the requirements for a full fusion reaction, but scientists expect it to significantly advance their research on the problem.

They indicated the unique combination of large size and high strength made it an important predecessor of a potential reactor.

A number of fusion devices have met different combinations of two of the requirements, but none has achieved all three. A Russian device called tomamak has come the closest so far.

The first engineering tests on Baseball II were conducted under the direction of Dr. Carl Henning, project engineer. Dr. Charles Damm is physicist in charge of the overall experiment and Dr. Richard Post, who pioneered the "mirror" fusion approach used in the program, is the group leader for the research.

Public Affairs, Sports On Tap

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Christmas week on television will be marked by an outpouring of sports, entertainment and public affairs specials.

Tuesday night, Bill Cosby and Shirley MacLaine are hosts of an hour entertainment salute to youngsters around the globe, "A World Of Love," presented in conjunction with the United Nations Children's Fund.

Other stars on the CBS-TV hour include Barbra Streisand, Audrey Hepburn, Richard Burton, Julie Andrews, Harry Belafonte and Paul Sills' "Story Theatre" performers.

There is also a notable documentary rerun Tuesday night—"The Journey of Robert F. Kennedy," to be seen on ABC-TV's "Movie of the Week." And, same night, NBC-TV offers another repeat of its Bing Crosby-Danny Kaye movie musical, "White Christmas," which includes 15 Irving Berlin songs.

On Thursday, Christmas Eve, there will be three midnight services from New York City houses of worship: St. Patrick's Cathedral (NBC-TV); the Chapel of the United Nations Church Center (CBS-TV) and the Church of the Epiphany (ABC-TV).

In addition, CBS-TV will present a half-hour Christmas Eve special with folksinger Pete Seeger, who once had trouble getting on commercial television at all because of his social views.

On Christmas Day, NBC-TV's "Today" program offers Yule music that underscores paintings and drawings of religious festivals, churches and Christmas scenes by famous artists, including Norman Rockwell, Andrew Wyeth and Grandma Moses. The same network will also air an hour Christmas Day service from the Washington (D.C.) National Cathedral.

There will be an hour Christmas Day concert on CBS-TV, "Sol Hurok Presents—Part IV," with violinist David Oistrakh and pianist Sviatoslav Richter performing chamber music duets by Beethoven and Brahms.

ABC-TV, meanwhile, will have two Christmas Day sports events: A pro basketball game between the Atlanta Hawks and Phoenix Suns; and the North-South Shrine All-Star football contest, with top college seniors of the 1970 season participating.

On Christmas night, CBS-TV will present the movie version of the renowned comedy "Life With Father," about the eccentric head of a family with four redhaired sons that lived in a New York brownstone in 1880. The stars are William Powell, Irene Dunne and Elizabeth Taylor.

The weekend will bring the start of the pro football playoffs. On Saturday, CBS-TV has the Detroit Lions-Dallas Cowboys contest; and NBC-TV has the Baltimore Colts-Cincinnati Bengals game. ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports," meanwhile, has the World Cup Soccer Championship match between Italy and Brazil, at Mexico City. And NBC-TV will show an hour special, "Rapping With Brinkley," in which David Brinkley and student newspaper editors discuss major news stories of 1970.

Next Monday, by the way, William F. Buckley Jr. is a guest on NBC-TV's "Laugh-In"; and the same network reruns "Lilies of the Field," with Sidney Poitier in his Oscar-winning role as an ex-G.I. who helps a group of nuns build a chapel in the Arizona desert.

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Non-Narcotic Tablet That Needs No Prescription Proves Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

In recent medical tests doctors proved a famous tablet that needs no prescription gives the same complete headache relief as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Permanent Damage Results From Neglected Arthritis

Approximately 50 per cent of persons with rheumatoid arthritis get well spontaneously. Exceptions occur when the disease is neglected or deformities develop. Arthritics never should assume a wait-and-see attitude because the condition is painful and neglect may result in permanent damage to the involved tissues.

More than a dozen remedies are capable of bringing relief. Home physical therapy — warm baths, massage and gentle manipulation — keeps the joints flexible and the muscles in good tone. The majority of arthritics get along well so long as they continue to take their medicine and keep up their resistance. When treatment is stopped, symptoms may recur, but improvement often lasts for months or years.

THE EARLY care of rheumatoid arthritis is stressed because surgery is becoming an encouraging alternate treatment. Best results are obtained when the involved tissues are removed early in the course of the disease. In rheumatoid arthritis, the membranes lining and surrounding the bony joint are swollen and inflamed. Removal of these membranes theoretically results in cure, but total success depends upon whether the bony tissue is undamaged and whether the joint will function normally without them. Better results can be expected when the operation is done early because at this point the damage is usually minimal. Paradoxically the victim is less inclined to consider surgery when his symptoms are not severe.

ASPIRIN AND other salicylates are most useful, regardless of the severity of the arthritis. Those who develop gastric irritation should use a buffered aspirin, a coated product or an acetaminophen. Other standard rheumatoid arthritis remedies include gold salts, antimalarial drugs, the corticosteroids, Butazolidin and Indocin. These are potent drugs and frequently cause side reactions.

Meanwhile, we can expect more news concerning the experimental drugs. In the past, most of these have enjoyed a period of initial enthusiasm, succeeded by one of caution, and then, after several years of use, they find a true niche in the treatment regimens.

GERM PHOBIA

Miss J. G. writes: I would like to know how to cure germophobia. Can I accomplish this without psychiatric help? I am 22 years old and single.

REPLY

Much depends on the severity of the problem, your emotional status and what precipitates this abnormal fear of germs. If you cannot answer these questions or gain an insight into your problem, a psychiatrist may be needed. Most victims of this phobia are able to live with it even tho they constantly wipe off dinnerware, door knobs, telephones, and avoid close contact with others.

A CARROT A DAY

REPLY

Carrots provide roughage, minerals, vitamins A and C, and carotene. Furthermore, you have selected an item that is virtually free of calories.

TB OF BONE

L. B. writes: How is tuberculosis of a leg bone treated?

REPLY

With anti-tuberculosis agents, such as PAS, streptomycin, and isoniazid.

Today's Health Hint — Disconnect all electrical Christmas decorations when leaving the house or going to bed.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Review Of Many Changes In Last Year's Tax Reform Act

We have a full year now under the new 1969 reform act, and there are a lot of changes in this law. In fact, it's the biggest change since 1954. It is a good idea to know what these changes are and to look out for them. Therefore, I am listing below the major changes that may affect you, the individual taxpayer. Clip this list and keep it handy for when you are making up your tax return. Review it now and see what you can do now about these changes to reduce your 1970 tax bill:

1. Capital gains: 25 per cent maximum tax applies only to first $50,000 — maximum tax on excess is 29.5 per cent for 1970, 32.5 per cent for 1971. Untaxed half of capital gains is preference income.

2. Casualty losses: All losses must be netted. Only net loss is fully deductible. Insurance covering extra living expenses when a casualty damages your home is not taxable. Keep a good record of costs.

3. Charitable contributions: New 50 per cent ceiling for gifts to public charities; 30 per cent limit for gifts of appreciated property. Deduction limited to your cost on gifts of ordinary income and short-term appreciated property.

5. Depreciation limited on real estate: New residential rental property 200 per cent. All other new property 150 per cent. Recapture on residential rental realty okay, all other has been changed.

6. Dividends-Stock: Your choice of cash or stock, and all stock dividends on preferred stock and other formerly so called "tax free" distributions are taxed.

7. Farmers: The new rules make a lot of changes for the so-called "farm tax shelters." These are exceedingly complex and you should study them carefully if you are a farmer. They provide for recapture of farm losses when the farm is sold, for recapture of farm land expenditure when the farm is sold, sharply limit the opportunities for capital gain on the sale of livestock, require capitalization of citrus grove development costs and really do a job on tightening the hobby loss provisions.

8. Income Averaging: Rules changed to include capital gains and lottery winnings.

9. Moving expenses: There are now deductions for house hunting, temporary living expenses and costs of selling and buying a home.

10. Personal exemptions: Now $625 for 1970.

11. Preference income: A new concept. There is now a 10 per cent tax on excess of preference income over $30,000 plus regular income tax.

There are nine different items that are considered preference income: (1) excess investment interest; (2) depletion; (3) accelerated depreciation on real estate; (4) restricted qualified stock options; (5) net long term gains; (6) amortization of certified pollution control facilities; (7) amortization of railroad rolling stock; (8) bad debts —financial institutions, and (9) accelerated depreciation on personal property subject to net lease.

12. Profit sharing distributions: Employer contributions made after 1969 are ordinary income when distributed to you subject to 7-year averaging; balance is long term gain. Income averaging can apply.

If any of these apply to you then you should purchase the book "Your Federal Income Tax — 1971 Edition" for sale by the Revenue Service for 75 cents and look up the answers before you file your return.

Pleads Innocent To Pot, LSD Charges

Cee Wind, 31, of Novato has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possession of marijuana and LSD and shoplifting. Preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 19.

She was arrested last Saturday outside the Roger Wilco Market at 2045 Novato Boulevard.

Wreaths On Light Standards Will Not Glow

The Christmas wreaths on light standards along Grant Avenue won't be lighted this year, Novato Chamber of Commerce directors have reported.

The needed sockets for the outlets didn't arrive in time, reported Billie Garl, chamber secretary.

Chamber of directors also announced the city birthday party, sponsored by the chamber, will be held Jan. 23 at the officers' club at Hamilton Air Force Base, and appropriated $200 for promotion of the Junior Miss pageant to be conducted by the Novato Jaycees Jan. 10 at the community house.

$151 In Stereo Equipment Stolen

Thieves took $151 in stereo tape equipment from a car Thursday after smashing all the lights in a carport and kicking in the auto's $25 rear window. San Rafael police reported.

James C. Rasmussen of 95 Medway Road, Apt. 5, told police his car was entered between 1 a.m. and noon. The thieves also took a $7 air cleaner, police said.

Sewage Plant Plans On Tap

Preliminary architectural plans for the proposed Bolinas sewage treatment plan will be considered at a special meeting of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

Clerk Jane Boyer said the board will also consider a resolution to endorse the Brown and Caldwell master plan for sewage disposal in Southern Marin which calls for disposal through an ocean outfall line.

The board will meet in closed session to discuss negotiations for the purchase of property, Mrs. Boyer said.

Youths' Jailing Report In Error

The Independent-Journal erred Thursday in reporting that two Larkspur boys, aged 13 and 15, were ordered held in Marin County Jail because of repeated escapes.

The pair, William John Tadder of 52 Millard Road and Scott Elwin Baker of 40 Diane Lane were taken to juvenile hall.

Larkspur police arrested them Wednesday as escapees from juvenile hall and as suspects in a rash of burglaries.

Electricity Magnet Passes Test

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI)—A massive magnet capable of heating gases to temperatures 20 times hotter than the sun for one-second periods has passed its first tests.

The 13-ton "Baseball II" magnet is designed to meet two of the three requirements for harnessing the power of the hydrogen bomb for generation of electricity.

The three criteria for achieving a controlled thermonuclear reaction—in which light atoms such as hydrogen and helium are fused with a tremendous outpouring of energy—are time, temperature and density.

Scientists at Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, an Atomic Energy Commission facility operated by the University of California, said Sunday that Baseball II will form a "magnetic bottle" in which the temperature and time requirements are met.

This will allow concentration in building up the density of hot gases—or plasmas—trapped inside the magnetic field of the six-foot diameter, superconducting magnet which got its name because it is shaped like the seam of a baseball.

After minor modifications and further engineering tests, the magnet will be hooked up in March to Livermore's thermonuclear fusion experiment.

The new apparatus will not meet all the requirements for a full fusion reaction, but scientists expect it to significantly advance their research on the problem.

They indicated the unique combination of large size and high strength made it an important predecessor of a potential reactor.

A number of fusion devices have met different combinations of two of the requirements, but none has achieved all three. A Russian device called tomamak has come the closest so far.

The first engineering tests on Baseball II were conducted under the direction of Dr. Carl Henning, project engineer. Dr. Charles Damm is physicist in charge of the overall experiment and Dr. Richard Post, who pioneered the "mirror" fusion approach used in the program, is the group leader for the research.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Promptly Relieved

In many cases Preparation H gives prompt, temporary relief from such pain and itching and actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. In fact, many doctors, themselves, use Preparation H® or recommend it for their families. TELEVISION REVIEW

Public Affairs, Sports On Tap

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Christmas week on television will be marked by an outpouring of sports, entertainment and public affairs specials.

Tuesday night, Bill Cosby and Shirley MacLaine are hosts of an hour entertainment salute to youngsters around the globe, "A World Of Love," presented in conjunction with the United Nations Children's Fund.

Other stars on the CBS-TV hour include Barbra Streisand, Audrey Hepburn, Richard Burton, Julie Andrews, Harry Belafonte and Paul Sills' "Story Theatre" performers.

There is also a notable documentary rerun Tuesday night—"The Journey of Robert F. Kennedy," to be seen on ABC-TV's "Movie of the Week." And, same night, NBC-TV offers another repeat of its Bing Crosby-Danny Kaye movie musical, "White Christmas," which includes 15 Irving Berlin songs.

On Thursday, Christmas Eve, there will be three midnight services from New York City houses of worship: St. Patrick's Cathedral (NBC-TV); the Chapel of the United Nations Church Center (CBS-TV) and the Church of the Epiphany (ABC-TV).

In addition, CBS-TV will present a half-hour Christmas Eve special with folksinger Pete Seeger, who once had trouble getting on commercial television at all because of his social views.

On Christmas Day, NBC-TV's "Today" program offers Yule music that underscores paintings and drawings of religious festivals, churches and Christmas scenes by famous artists, including Norman Rockwell, Andrew Wyeth and Grandma Moses. The same network will also air an hour Christmas Day service from the Washington (D.C.) National Cathedral.

Sunday, the pro football playoffs continue, with CBS-TV offering the Minnesota Vikings-San Francisco 49ers matchup; and NBC-TV presenting the Oakland Raiders-Miami Dolphins contest.

Next Monday, by the way, William F. Buckley Jr. is a guest on NBC-TV's "Laugh-In"; and the same network reruns "Lilies of the Field," with Sidney Poitier in his Oscar-winning role as an ex-G.I. who helps a group of nuns build a chapel in the Arizona desert.

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Non-Narcotic Tablet That Needs No Prescription Proves Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

In recent medical tests doctors proved a famous tablet that needs no prescription gives the same complete headache relief as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors.

These doctors' tests proved, beyond a doubt, that Anacin is just as effective to relieve tension headaches, yet Anacin needs no prescription and is far more economical.

With Anacin, headache pain and its nervous tension vanish in minutes. Despite its strength, Anacin is not narcotic. You can take it without getting dizzy or an upset stomach.

SENSATIONAL CATCH —San Francisco receiver Gene Washington (18) made this spectacular catch of John Brodie's 33-yard touchdown pass between Oakland defenders Kent McCloughan and Dave Grayson in second quarter. Washington then jumped for joy (right).

After 25 Long Years It's Hard To Believe

I still can't believe it. Pinch me to prove I'm awake.

Yessir, those incredible 49ers did it yesterday and they did it good by rubbing the noses of the Oakland Raiders in the mud at the Oakland Coliseum, 38-7. A fantastic reversal of an earlier season loss to the same Raiders.

It meant the Western Division title of the National Football Conference and a chance at the Super Bowl in Miami next month. With a 10-3-1 record — the third best of the 26 professional teams — the Niners now start the rugged path to Miami. First they must meet those rugged Minnesota Vikings next Sunday and to play in Bloomington, Minn. in late December is like taking on the Russkies in Siberia. The quarterback doesn't say "Hike!" He says "Mush!"

The great all-around performance that produced 38 points made the 49ers the highest scoring team in the league. And much credit goes to an offensive line that made quarterback John Brodie the least sacked passer in the NFL. An all-time low of eight in 14 games. When John has time, he can really throw and the catches by Gene Washington and Ted Kwalick yesterday were masterpieces. I'd rather see re-runs of them than a re-run of a Rembrandt.

Sure, the 49ers blew a game to Atlanta and were tied by New Orleans, and suffered legitimate losses to Los Angeles and Detroit, but you must remember some of their good ones, like yesterday and some of those come from behind victories.

They had a lousy exhibition season, but I can't help but recall a conversation I had with middle linebacker Frank Nunley early in the season. Nodding toward Coach Dick Nolan, Nunley said: "Any success we enjoy will be totally because of and dedicated to that man. And I mean all 40 of us are behind him all the way." Other 49ers have told me the same thing.

Nolan is that type of a coach. A nicer guy you'll never meet and he is a perfectionist. He showed me his play book one day and it was so complicated I thought I was reading a computerized version of Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

That's why when he was hired prior to the 1968 season it was generally believed that it would take the 49ers three years to learn his complicated system. Right on schedule, gang!

After watching the 49ers through 25 fruitless years I just couldn't believe my eyes. Here is a club that has annually killed itself with mistakes. Yesterday the Niners forced the proud, poised and dynamic Raiders into nine —yes, 9 — turnovers. Hell, they don't have that many turnovers at the Baronial Bakery.

Another impressive aspect of this Niner club is its youth which means we could have the makings of a dynasty on our hands. They may be a year or two away from the Super Bowl, but with such great young players with years left in their careers, you can bet that San Francisco will be shooting for the Super Bowl in the not-too-distant future.

Hey, I'm not counting them out yet. I wanna go to Miami next Jan. 17. The 49ers vs. the Raiders. Incredible.

Cal State Tops Sonoma Quint

The Sonoma State College Cossacks absorbed their second loss in as many games at the Rogue Valley Invitational basketball tournament in Ashland, Ore., when they bowed to Cal State of Hayward, 69-65 Saturday night.

The game was not as close as the score indicates. Cal State had a 10-point lead with three minutes to play.

Larry Austin and Jeff Barker scored 18 points apiece to lead Sonoma State, while Jerry Dohling had a like amount for Cal State.

A Marin Catholic 'First'

Marin Catholic High School won its first basketball tournament ever Saturday night, defeating favored St. Patrick's of Vallejo in double overtime, 63-58 in the final game of the Rose City Invitational in Santa Rosa.

San Marin of Novato, the other Marin County Athletic League team in the tourney, dropped the consolation final to Santa Rosa, 62-44.

Heroes were plentiful for the Wildcats of Kentfield, who had not been considered, even as a dark horse, to figure in the finals. Bill Donellan, Tim Stone and Austin Sullivan, all of whom were named to the all-tourney team, were magnificent on offense, while Mike Hurley contributed a masterful defensive effort to hold Dan Dion, most valuable player of the three-day event, to just six points in the first half.

Donellan scored 23 points, Stone had 18 and Sullivan six, but it was Jack Stahl, a reserve guard, who provided the game's most clutch performance. In the second overtime, he connected on six of six free throws that sent the Wildcats ahead for good.

Had it not been for Stahl, Marin would have been in deep trouble, since they lost Sullivan, Hurley and Steve Vanni on fouls late in regulation time and during the first overtime.

Marin Catholic	14	14	10	11	4	10	— 63
St. Patrick's	9	10	15	15	4	5	— 58

Marin Catholic — Donellan, 10-3-23; Sullivan, 1-7-9; T. Stone, 7-4-18; Vanni, 0-1-1; D. Stone, 0-1-1; Stahl, 1-6-8; Totals — 21-21-63.

St. Patrick's — 8-10-26; T. Ward, 3-0-6; Kuykendall, 3-4-10; Lyon, 1-5-7; P. Ward, 0-1-1; Thompkins, 3-2-8; Totals — 18-22-58.

Redwood Wins Yuba Tournament

The Redwood High School Giants made their trip north to Yuba worth it Saturday night as they defeated Liberty of Brentwood, 65-55 to win the Yuba City Invitational basketball tournament.

In posting their third win in as many games, the Larkspur boys knocked off a team that had won seven games this season without a loss.

Down 9-1 almost before they got their warmup jackets off, Redwood came storming back to take a 15-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. They never trailed after that.

Two Giants, Steve McGee and Scott Trobbe, were named to the all-tourney team, and in the final game they showed why, scoring 19 and 17 points respectively to pace the victory. Dave Tikker had 11 points, but his major contribution was 15 rebounds.

Redwood	15	19	17	14—65
Liberty	11	14	10	20—55

Redwood — McGee, 7-5-19; Trobbe, 6-5-17; Tikker, 4-3-11; Hennessey, 0-3-3; Hagler, 1-1-3; Pedler, 2-1-5; Farb, 0-3-3; Conner, 1-2-4; Totals—21-23-65. Liberty — Fachner, 1-1-3; Fortner, 3-3-9; Jay, 1-0-2; Knight, 1-3-5; Hanneger, 3-6-12; Rosenski, 6-9-21; Stoneberger, 1-1-3; Totals—16-23-55.

Seals' Vadnais Injured

DETROIT (UPI) —It's still a question today as to whether Carol Vadnais, one of the stalwarts of the California Golden Seals' defense, will be ready for National Hockey League action this week.

Vadnais suffered a multiple stitch cut on the right side of his head Sunday when he was leveled by a football-type block by Ron Harris of the Detroit Red Wings.

The Seals prevailed, 7-3, but the victory was tempered somewhat by the injury to Vadnais.

In running their Western Division record to 10-19-2—just one point behind the sixth place Los Angeles Kings—the Seals enjoyed one of their best all-around games of the season.

They built up a 3-0 lead after one period of play and had it up to 5-1 at the two-thirds mark. The Hicke brothers — Billy and Ernie — supplied the offensive fireworks as each knocked in two goals.

On defense, the Seals permitted the slump-ridden Red Wings just five shots in the first period and eight in the second.

Ted Hampson, rookie Ron Stackhouse and Earl Ingarfield also tallied for California.

The Seals return to OAKLAND Tuesday to meet the Chicago Black Hawks, who are quickly building up to run-away leaders in the Western Division.

Hockey Victories

Marin Amateur Hockey League teams scored three wins in three tries yesterday, as the Bantams and Pee Wees defeated teams from Santa Rosa, 5-3 and 5-2, and the Squirts blasted San Francisco, 16-1. In that game Tim O'Hara and Chris Bonbright each scored four goals.

49ERS CRUSH RAIDERS, 38-7

It's On To The Playoffs!

OAKLAND (UPI) — Neither the San Francisco Forty Niners nor the Oakland Raiders, both division champions this year, plan anything different this week as they prepare for their respective playoffs.

The Forty Niners ended 25 years of frustration Sunday by routing the Raiders, 38-7, to win the NFC West title and set up a date next Sunday in Minneapolis with the Minnesota Vikings in the opening round of the NFC playoffs.

The Raiders won the AFC West title a week ago by beating Kansas City. So Sunday's game with the Forty Niners didn't mean a thing to them, except to their pride. Next Sunday the Raiders host the Miami Dolphins in the AFC playoffs.

John Brodie and an alert defense shared honors for Sunday's big victory over the Raiders, which gave the Forty Niners the title by a full game over the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm going to send George Allen (Rams coach) a telegram," said middle linebacker Frank Nunley, whose play season-long figured in San Francisco's winning. "I'm going to wire him out with the old and in with the new."

Nunley's humor was about the extent of San Francisco's celebration. The Forty Niners didn't tear up their dressing room, spill champagne or otherwise carry on any differently than they have in any other winning game this year. But there was no mistaking their job.

"This is my proudest moment," said coach Dick Nolan, a man not known for his exuberance. "We stuck to our game plan, hit hard and didn't make any mistakes. when you can do all those things you have to win."

Nolan said the club will prepare for the Vikings the same as it has for any other team.

"We'll hold our usual workouts and meetings," said Nolan, who in three years rebuilt the Forty Niners from chronic losers to division champs. "We'll leave for Minneapolis on Friday and if it snows, I don't think it will make any difference."

Brodie completed only 7 of 21 passes in the rout of the Raiders but three of them were scoring strikes. The Forty Niners also came up with the ball nine times on four Oakland fumbles and five pass interceptions.

Brodie, the NFC's leading passer season long, threw touchdown strikes of 26 yards to tight end Ted Kwalick, 34 yards to wide receiver Gene Washington and 27 yards to running back Bill Tucker. In addition, Ken Willard scored on a one yard smash, Jimmy Johnson ran 36 yards with an intercepted pass and Bruce Gossett booted a 42-yard field goal.

The three TDs gave Brodie 24 for the season. And he and the Forty Niner offensive line helped set a pro football record when the Raiders failed to dump him even once. That left Brodie with a season total of

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Review Of Many Changes In Last Year's Tax Reform Act

We have a full year now under the new 1969 reform act, and there are a lot of changes in this law. In fact, it's the biggest change since 1954. It is a good idea to know what these changes are and to look out for them. Therefore, I am listing below the major changes that may affect you, the individual taxpayer. Clip this list and keep it handy for when you are making up your tax return. Review it now and see what you can do now about these changes to reduce your 1970 tax bill:

1. Capital gains: 25 per cent maximum tax applies only to first $50,000 — maximum tax on excess is 29.5 per cent for 1970, 32.5 per cent for 1971. Untaxed half of capital gains is preference income.

2. Casualty losses: All losses must be netted. Only net loss is fully deductible. Insurance covering extra living expenses when a casualty damages your home is not taxable. Keep a good record of costs.

3. Charitable contributions: New 50 per cent ceiling for gifts to public charities; 30 per cent limit for gifts of appreciated property. Deduction limited to your cost on gifts of ordinary income and short-term appreciated property.

4. Depreciation, accelerated: Excess of over straight line depreciation on realty is preference income.

5. Depreciation limited on real estate: New residential rental property 200 per cent. All other new property 150 per cent. Recapture on residential rental realty okay, all other has been changed.

6. Dividends-Stock: Your choice of cash or stock, and all stock dividends on preferred stock and other formerly so called "tax free" distributions are taxed.

7. Farmers: The new rules make a lot of changes for the so-called "farm tax shelters." These are exceedingly complex and you should study them carefully if you are a farmer. They provide for recapture of farm losses when the farm is sold, for recapture of farm land expenditure when the farm is sold, sharply limit the opportunities for capital gain on the sale of livestock, require capitalization of citrus grove development costs and really do a job on tightening the hobby loss provisions.

8. Income Averaging: Rules changed to include capital gains and lottery winnings.

9. Moving expenses: There are now deductions for house hunting, temporary living expenses and costs of selling and buying a home.

10. Personal exemptions: Now $625 for 1970.

11. Preference income: A new concept. There is now a 10 per cent tax on excess of preference income over $30,000 plus regular income tax.

There are nine different items that are considered preference income: (1) excess investment interest; (2) depletion; (3) accelerated depreciation on real estate; (4) restricted qualified stock options; (5) net long term gains; (6) amortization of certified pollution control facilities; (7) amortization of railroad rolling stock; (8) bad debts —financial institutions, and (9) accelerated depreciation on personal property subject to net lease.

12. Profit sharing distributions: Employer contributions made after 1969 are ordinary income when distributed to you subject to 7-year averaging; balance is long term gain. Income averaging can apply.

If any of these apply to you then you should purchase the book "Your Federal Income Tax — 1971 Edition" for sale by the Revenue Service for 75 cents and look up the answers before you file your return.

Pleads Innocent To Pot, LSD Charges

Cee Wind, 31, of Novato has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possession of marijuana and LSD and shoplifting. Preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 19.

She was arrested last Saturday outside the Roger Wilco Market at 2045 Novato Boulevard.

Wreaths On Light Standards Will Not Glow

The Christmas wreaths on light standards along Grant Avenue won't be lighted this year, Novato Chamber of Commerce directors have reported.

The needed sockets for the outlets didn't arrive in time, reported Billie Garl, chamber secretary.

Chamber of directors also announced the city birthday party, sponsored by the chamber, will be held Jan. 23 at the officers' club at Hamilton Air Force Base, and appropriated $200 for promotion of the Junior Miss pageant to be conducted by the Novato Jaycees Jan. 10 at the community house.

$151 In Stereo Equipment Stolen

Thieves took $151 in stereo tape equipment from a car Thursday after smashing all the lights in a carport and kicking in the auto's $25 rear window. San Rafael police reported.

James C. Rasmussen of 95 Medway Road, Apt. 5, told police his car was entered between 1 a.m. and noon. The thieves also took a $7 air cleaner, police said.

Sewage Plant Plans On Tap

Preliminary architectural plans for the proposed Bolinas sewage treatment plan will be considered at a special meeting of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

Clerk Jane Boyer said the board will also consider a resolution to endorse the Brown and Caldwell master plan for sewage disposal in Southern Marin which calls for disposal through an ocean outfall line.

The board will meet in closed session to discuss negotiations for the purchase of property, Mrs. Boyer said.

Youths' Jailing Report In Error

The Independent-Journal erred Thursday in reporting that two Larkspur boys, aged 13 and 15, were ordered held in Marin County Jail because of repeated escapes.

The pair, William John Tadder of 52 Millard Road and Scott Elwin Baker of 40 Diane Lane were taken to juvenile hall.

Larkspur police arrested them Wednesday as escapees from juvenile hall and as suspects in a rash of burglaries.

A Tie In Pasadena Bowl; Sun Bowl To Texas Tech

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) Cal State Long Beach came from behind in the fourth quarter to tie Louisville, 24-24 in the Pasadena Bowl Saturday. The Cardinals from Kentucky had the momentum in the final minutes, and seemingly scored to break the deadlock, but the touchdown play involved two forward passes and was ruled illegal.

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Tech place kicker Dickie Ingram just couldn't believe it after he missed a 24-yard field goal attempt with three minutes left and his team trailing George Tech, 10-9 in the Sun Bowl Saturday. "I just missed it. I couldn't believe it. I shanked the ball and it was wide," Ingram said.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Fran Curci, who coached the University of Tampa Spartans to a 10-1 season this year, was named head football coach at the University of Miami Saturday.

Curci, a former quarterback for the Hurricanes, had been eyeing the Miami job for several weeks and the University reportedly offered him a five-year contract at $30,000 a year.

BASEBALL

The surgery was done by Dr. Frank Jobe, Dodger orthopedic specialist, Saturday at California Hospital. Jobe said the operation was successful and Singer should recover completely well before the baseball club goes to spring training in February.

BASKETBALL

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers, led by the newest member of the National Basketball Association's 20,000 point club, Jerry West, invade the stronghold of the Milwaukee Bucks for tonight's nationally televised game.

The game is highlighted by the second clash of the season between centers Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers and Lew Alcindor of the Bucks. The last time they met was in November on the Lakers' home court and Milwaukee scored a 117-100 victory.

BOXING

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Mike Quarry awaited the next step up the ladder in the light heavyweight ranks after having scored his 25th straight win to remain undefeated by decisioning Amado Vazquez Saturday night.

The 19-year-old Quarry's victory brought him a promise from promoter Don Faser that he would try to match the younger brother of Jerry Quarry of heavyweight fame with Andy Kendall of Portland, Ore. early next year.

French Skiers Aren't Really Unbeatable

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) —The supposed invincibility of the French ski teams seemed less real today as the Olympic coaches of more than a dozen national ski teams took stock of the just-ended Val D'Isere meet that poked holes in the French team's reputation as unbeatable.

At the first international meet of the current season in Sestrieres, Italy, French skiers swept the first places in both of the events which count towards the World Cup, and the French press boasted their teams were untouchable on the slopes.

But after the just-concluded meet at Val D'Isere on French territory, there is less talk in skiing circles about this year's World Cup being an all-French affair.

One of the U.S. team coaches, for example, said the Val D'Isere meet proved the French could be beaten, even though they proved the toughest on the slopes and won two of four first places.

Elizabeth "Betsy" Clifford, a 17-year old Canadian girl from Camp Fortune, Ontario, who plans to start courses at the University of Toronto next year, was the first skier to prove in Val D'Isere that the French could be beaten.

The pig-tailed Miss Clifford won the opening event Wednesday, a special slalom in which she upset more highly-rated girls from France, Austria and the United States.

French skiers came back to win the men's giant slalom on Thursday and the women's downhill race on Saturday.

But in spite of brilliant performances by the winners of these two races —Patrick Russell and Isabelle Mir —the French victories were less than the French coaches admit they had hoped for.

Austria's Karl Schranz proved to be a better all-round skier than French ace Henri Duvillard, the hero of the Sestrieres meet, and won more points than Duvillard in the two World Cup events that were held.

Pudgy, freckle-faced Isabelle Mir took top honors in the women's downhill, but Wiltrud Drexel took away more World Cup points, even though she did not win first place in either of the women's events. Miss Drexel was the winner of the five-day Criterium among the women competitors because her second place in the downhill and her third position in the special slalom gained her more World Cup points than Miss Mir won by placing first in the women's downhill.

Skiing circles said it was still too early to tell how the World Cup competition would turn out. But some coaches were saying privately that Val D'Isere proved that the French Olympic teams, which got off to a good start in the first international meet in Italy, were not as unbeatable as they were thought to be only a week ago.

Ohio State Gridders At Disneyland

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Ohio State's Rose Bowl football squad took a day off from workouts today in order to permit the players their first recreational break, a visit to Disneyland.

"It's wholesome entertainment and our schedule calls for hard work the rest of the week until Christmas Day," coach Woody Hayes explained.

Rain held the players to a picture session and limbering up drills Friday. The soggy condition of the practice field forced the Buckeyes indoors for morning and afternoon workouts Saturday.

Although there still were puddles and soft spots Sunday, the Buckeyes were able to get in a long passing drill.

Vikings Crush Falcons; Vs. 49ers In Playoffs

ATLANTA (UPI)—Given a choice, Bud Grant says he wishes his Minnesota team's opponent in next week's playoff could be somebody like, well—how about Boston or New Orleans?

Unfortunately for the Vikings, that was not to be their fate, San Francisco won a game later in the day, eliminating Los Angeles and gained the right (certainly not the privilege) to meet Minnesota in the playoffs.

"It doesn't matter whether we play Los Angeles or San Francisco in the playoffs," said Grant, shortly after his gang of "purple people eaters" destroyed the Falcons and their former boss, Norm Van Brocklin, 37-7 Sunday. "We can't play Boston or New Orleans."

No one doubted which team in Atlanta Stadium was the best.

"I'm glad that's over," said Van Brocklin, who coached the Vikings from their infancy until 1966 when he resigned. "That's the end of a disappointing season but not a discouraging one. We have some good boys here, but we need more."

What Van Brocklin may well have been driving at was that the Falcons need to get rid of some of the not-so-good-boys.

Goalie Pays The Price

By United Press International

That's the way it went for the Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League Sunday night. Their goalie, Joe Daley, doesn't wear a mask and wound up getting a face full of stick that knocked him to the ice and allowed George Armstrong to slam home a loose puck and send Toronto on its way to 4-2 victory.

Armstrong's tally came with 3:46 gone in the final period and gave the Maple Leafs a 3-1 edge, putting the game out of reach for the Sabres and giving Toronto its sixth straight win.

Although Armstrong's goal slipped by the bloodied Daley, Punch Imlach, coach of the Sabres, contended that the Leafs' second goal, a Dave Keon 12-footer that eluded Daley with only 43 seconds left in the second period, was "the one that beat us. Instead of coming into the third period even, we were one behind," Imlach pointed out. "We got pressure on us all the time. When we relax, they put the puck in the net —that's the way it is with an expansion team. Toronto took advantage of our lapses."

In other action, the Boston Bruins won their eighth straight as John McKenzie scored a hat trick and Phil Esposito got two goals in a 7-2 romp over the Minnesota North Stars.

Bobby Hull calmly batted in a rebound with less than three minutes to play to give his Chicago Black Hawks a 2-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Tourney Time For Cal Bears

On Christmas Day, the Bears from Berkeley will be eating their holiday meal in a hotel somewhere in Cincinnati and preparing for a clash Saturday with the Bearcats (4-1).

Hopefully, the Bears would like to be celebrating a championship from the Michigan Tournament on Christmas Day. Cal, 4-1, meets Wyoming (2-4) in the first round of the tournament tonight at Ann Arbor while Michigan and Harvard collide in the nightcap. The winners play for the tourney title on Tuesday.

Among the west coast teams enjoying an early bit of holiday cheer over the weekend were Southern California, Utah, Fresno State and Oregon. All emerged triumphant in tournaments or against intersectional foes.

Sixth-ranked USC ran its perfect record to 6-0 by edging Texas-El Paso 65-63 for the championship of the Sun Bowl Tournament. Paul Westphal sank two free throws with 11 seconds remaining to pull it out. Teammate Ron Riley netted 15 points in the finale and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Fresno State downed small-college power Puget Sound 88-75 for the Fresno Classic title. Oregon ran its record to 5-1 with a 76-65 victory over Temple in a non-tournament clash.

Elsewhere, Princeton got 42 points from sophomore guards Brian Taylor, brother of Bruce Taylor of the San Francisco Forty Niners, and Ted Manakas to top Stanford 81-76; Washington State defeated Boise State 69-44; New Mexico State humbled San Jose State 114-55; Portland State took advantage of 53 turnovers to beat Eastern Montana 112-94 and Pepperdine won its fourth straight, 95-87, over Idaho State.

Easter Oregon took the Rogue Valley tournament by whipping Southern Oregon 87-73 while Hayward State outscored Sonoma State 69-65 for third place. Cal Poly-Pomona outlasted Occidental 102-97 for the championship of the Occidental Invitational while Fresno-Pacific turned back Cal Lutheran 76-72 for unnerup honors.

St. Mary's also was a consolation winner by beating Northern Arizona 91-72 in the Fresno Classic.

In other tournaments, three West Coast Athletic Conference teams finished last. New Mexico overwhelmed Santa Clara 91-62 in the Lobo Invitational, Detroit handed San Francisco its sixth straight defeat in the Volunteer Classic and McMurry upended Nevada-Reno 92-82 in the Cowboy Classic.

Fifth-ranked Marquette defeated 19th-rated Long Beach State 83-66 to just about knock the 49ers out of the top 20.

UCLA (5-0), idle over the weekend, puts its top-ranking on the line this week while entertaining Missouri Tuesday night and St. Louis Wednesday night at Pauley Pavilion.

In other games tonight, Alabama visits USC, Washington is at Kansas State, Stanford hosts Temple, Western Michigan travels to Stockton for a game with the Pacific Tigers and Oklahoma City tests Nevada-Las Vegas.

Wynn Suffers Stab Wound

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Wynn, 28, an outfielder with the Houston Astros for the past eight seasons, was stabbed early today in what police said was an apparent domestic quarrel. Doctors said Wynn was in satisfactory condition.

Astro second baseman Joe Morgan said Wynn's wife, Ruth, had told him she had stabbed her husband. Police officers said Wynn's wife also reported the incident to detectives.

SENSATIONAL CATCH —San Francisco receiver Gene Washington (18) made this spectacular catch of John Brodie's 33-yard touchdown pass between Oakland defenders Kent McCloughan and Dave Grayson in second quarter. Washington then jumped for joy (right).

JIM GILMARTIN

After 25 Long Years It's Hard To Believe

I still can't believe it. Pinch me to prove I'm awake.

Yessir, those incredible 49ers did it yesterday and they did it good by rubbing the noses of the Oakland Raiders in the mud at the Oakland Coliseum, 38-7. A fantastic reversal of an earlier season loss to the same Raiders.

It meant the Western Division title of the National Football Conference and a chance at the Super Bowl in Miami next month. With a 10-3-1 record — the third best of the 26 professional teams — the Niners now start the rugged path to Miami. First they must meet those rugged Minnesota Vikings next Sunday and to play in Bloomington, Minn. in late December is like taking on the Russkies in Siberia. The quarterback doesn't say "Hike!" He says "Mush!"

The great all-around performance that produced 38 points made the 49ers the highest scoring team in the league. And much credit goes to an offensive line that made quarterback John Brodie the least sacked passer in the NFL. An all-time low of eight in 14 games. When John has time, he can really throw and the catches by Gene Washington and Ted Kwalick yesterday were masterpieces. I'd rather see re-runs of them than a rerun of a Rembrandt.

Sure, the 49ers blew a game to Atlanta and were tied by New Orleans, and suffered legitimate losses to Los Angeles and Detroit, but you must remember some of their good ones, like yesterday and some of those come from behind victories.

They had a lousy exhibition season, but I can't help but recall a conversation I had with middle linebacker Frank Nunley early in the season. Nodding toward Coach Dick Nolan, Nunley said: "Any success we enjoy will be totally because of and dedicated to that man. And I mean all 40 of us are behind him all the way." Other 49ers have told me the same thing.

Nolan is that type of a coach. A nicer guy you'll never meet and he is a perfectionist. He showed me his play book one day and it was so complicated I thought I was reading a computerized version of Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

That's why when he was hired prior to the 1968 season it was generally believed that it would take the 49ers three years to learn his complicated system. Right on schedule, gang!

After watching the 49ers through 25 fruitless years I just couldn't believe my eyes. Here is a club that has annually killed itself with mistakes. Yesterday the Niners forced the proud, poised and dynamic Raiders into nine —yes, 9 — turnovers. Hell, they don't have that many turnovers at the Baronial Bakery.

Another impressive aspect of this Niner club is its youth which means we could have the makings of a dynasty on our hands. They may be a year or two away from the Super Bowl, but with such great young players with years left in their careers, you can bet that San Francisco will be shooting for the Super Bowl in the not-too-distant future.

Hey, I'm not counting them out yet. I wanna go to Miami next Jan. 17. The 49ers vs. the Raiders. Incredible.

Cal State Tops Sonoma Quint

The Sonoma State College Cossacks absorbed their second loss in as many games at the Rogue Valley Invitational basketball tournament in Ashland, Ore., when they bowed to Cal State of Hayward, 69-65 Saturday night.

The game was not as close as the score indicates. Cal State had a 10-point lead with three minutes to play.

Larry Austin and Jeff Barker scored 18 points apiece to lead Sonoma State, while Jerry Dohling had a like amount for Cal State.

A Marin Catholic 'First'

Marin Catholic High School won its first basketball tournament ever Saturday night, defeating favored St. Patrick's of Vallejo in double overtime, 63-58 in the final game of the Rose City Invitational in Santa Rosa.

San Marin of Novato, the other Marin County Athletic League team in the tourney, dropped the consolation final to Santa Rosa, 62-44.

Heroes were plentiful for the Wildcats of Kentfield, who had not been considered, even as a dark horse, to figure in the finals. Bill Donellan, Tim Stone and Austin Sullivan, all of whom were named to the all-tourney team, were magnificent on offense, while Mike Hurley contributed a masterful defensive effort to hold Dan Dion, most valuable player of the three-day event, to just six points in the first half.

Donellan scored 23 points, Stone had 18 and Sullivan six, but it was Jack Stahl, a reserve guard, who provided the game's most clutch performance. In the second overtime, he connected on six of six free throws that sent the Wildcats ahead for good.

Had it not been for Stahl, Marin would have been in deep trouble, since they lost Sullivan, Hurley and Steve Vanni on fouls late in regulation time and during the first overtime.

St. Patrick's — 8-10-26; T. Ward, 3-6-6; Kuykendall, 3-4-10; Lyon, 1-5-7; P. Ward, 0-1-1; Thompkins, 3-2-8; Totals — 18-22-58.

Redwood Wins Yuba Tournament

The Redwood High School Giants made their trip north to Yuba worth it Saturday night as they defeated Liberty of Brentwood, 65-55 to win the Yuba City Invitational basketball tournament.

In posting their third win in as many games, the Larkspur boys knocked off a team that had won seven games this season without a loss.

Down 9-1 almost before they got their warmup jackets off, Redwood came storming back to take a 15-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. They never trailed after that.

Two Giants, Steve McGee and Scott Trobbe, were named to the all-tourney team, and in the final game they showed why, scoring 19 and 17 points respectively to pace the victory. Dave Tikker had 11 points, but his major contribution was 15 rebounds.

Seals' Vadnais Injured

DETROIT (UPI) —It's still a question today as to whether Carol Vadnais, one of the stalwarts of the California Golden Seals' defense, will be ready for National Hockey League action this week.

Vadnais suffered a multiple stitch cut on the right side of his head Sunday when he was leveled by a football-type block by Ron Harris of the Detroit Red Wings.

The Seals prevailed, 7-3, but the victory was tempered somewhat by the injury to Vadnais.

In running their Western Division record to 10-19-2—just one point behind the sixth place Los Angeles Kings—the Seals enjoyed one of their best all-around games of the season.

They built up a 3-0 lead after one period of play and had it up to 5-1 at the two-thirds mark. The Hicke brothers — Billy and Ernie — supplied the offensive fireworks as each knocked in two goals.

On defense, the Seals permitted the slump-ridden Red Wings just five shots in the first period and eight in the second.

The Seals return to OAKLAND Tuesday to meet the Chicago Black Hawks, who are quickly building up to run-away leaders in the Western Division.

Hockey Victories

Marin Amateur Hockey League teams scored three wins in three tries yesterday, as the Bantams and Pee Wees defeated teams from Santa Rosa, 5-3 and 5-2, and the Squirts blasted San Francisco, 16-1. In that game Tim O'Hara and Chris Bonbright each scored four goals.

49ERS CRUSH RAIDERS, 38-7

It's On To The Playoffs!

OAKLAND (UPI) — Neither the San Francisco Forty Niners nor the Oakland Raiders, both division champions this year, plan anything different this week as they prepare for their respective playoffs.

The Forty Niners ended 25 years of frustration Sunday by routing the Raiders, 38-7, to win the NFC West title and set up a date next Sunday in Minneapolis with the Minnesota Vikings in the opening round of the NFC playoffs.

The Raiders won the AFC West title a week ago by beating Kansas City. So Sunday's game with the Forty Niners didn't mean a thing to them, except to their pride. Next Sunday the Raiders host the Miami Dolphins in the AFC playoffs.

John Brodie and an alert defense shared honors for Sunday's big victory over the Raiders, which gave the Forty Niners the title by a full game over the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm going to send George Allen (Rams coach) a telegram," said middle linebacker Frank Nunley, whose play season-long figured in San Francisco's winning. "I'm going to wire him out with the old and in with the new."

Nunley's humor was about the extent of San Francisco's celebration. The Forty Niners didn't tear up their dressing room, spill champagne or otherwise carry on any differently than they have in any other winning game this year. But there was no mistaking their job.

"This is my proudest moment," said coach Dick Nolan, a man not known for his exuberance. "We stuck to our game plan, hit hard and didn't make any mistakes. when you can do all those things you have to win."

Nolan said the club will prepare for the Vikings the same as it has for any other team.

"We'll hold our usual workouts and meetings," said Nolan, who in three years rebuilt the Forty Niners from chronic losers to division champs. "We'll leave for Minneapolis on Friday and if it snows, I don't think it will make any difference."

Brodie completed only 7 of 21 passes in the rout of the Raiders but three of them were scoring strikes. The Forty Niners also came up with the ball nine times on four Oakland fumbles and five pass interceptions.

Brodie, the NFC's leading passer season long, threw touchdown strikes of 26 yards to tight end Ted Kwalick, 34 yards to wide receiver Gene Washington and 27 yards to running back Bill Tucker. In addition, Ken Willard scored on a one yard smash, Jimmy Johnson ran 36 yards with an intercepted pass and Bruce Gossett booted a 42-yard field goal.

The three TDs gave Brodie 24 for the season. And he and the Forty Niner offensive line helped set a pro football record when the Raiders failed to dump him even once. That left Brodie with a season total of

DEFEAT SIERRA

Marin Tars Run Record To 11-1

The College of Marin Tars exploded, slumped and then rallied to defeat Sierra J.C. of Rocklin in a non-league basketball game Saturday night, 67-59.

It was the second win in two nights for the high flying Kentfield team, and their 11th victory of the season against a single loss. They have not been defeated since Dec. 6, when they bowed to Los Angeles City College.

Since then the Tars have reeled off six straight impressive wins, including Saturday night's. As usual, guard Joe Smith and center Roosevelt Green led the way, although they got bountiful help from the rest of the team. Smith hit on nine shots from the floor and six from the charity line for 24 points, while Green added 13. Mike Peden and Ken Gommeringer contributed eight each.

The Tars were never behind, and led by 10 at the half, but Sierra closed to within one midway through the second half. As has been their custom, the Tars managed to pull out again to a comfortable lead, and were taking their time when the final buzzer sounded.

Clark's Key Basket Paces 76ers Victory

By United Press International

Archie Clark, Terry Dischinger and Bernie Williams weren't the high scorers for their teams in the National Basketball Association. But their baskets were the ones that meant victory.

Clark sank a 22-foot jumper at the buzzer in regulation time to tie the score 123-123 and then sank two free throws with 26 seconds remaining in the overtime to give Philadelphia a 134-132 victory over Portland. Clark finished with 27 points while Billy Cunningham and Hal Greer had 31 apiece for Philadelphia.

Dischinger's free throw sewed up a 136-135 double overtime victory by Detroit over Cincinnati. Dischinger's 21 points for the game made him second in scoring to Detroit teammate Jim Walker, who also tied the game 127-127 on a field goal with seven seconds remaining in the first overtime.

In other games, the action wasn't quite as close as Milwaukee beat Buffalo 131-101, and New York defeated Phoenix 113-118 and Chicago rallied for a 116-103 victory over Cleveland.

Westmoor Tops Drake In Tourney

The Drake Pirates lost their bid for third place in the El Camino high school basketball tournament in Daly City Saturday night, bowing to Westmoor, 83-61 in the final round.

The Pirates, who got bombed by Lowell the night before, 88-44, never led, and after going behind, 20-12 in the first quarter, things just got worse.

Bob Gregg led the San Anselmo team with 15 points. Others in double figures were Jit Singh with 12, Tom Carlisle with 11 and Jim Forni with 10.

Petalumans Win Ukiah Tournament

The Petaluma High School Trojans overcame a 15-10 first quarter deficit and defeated a surprisingly tough Rancho Cotate prep team, 67-59 Saturday night in the championship game of the Ukiah Invitational basketball tournament.

Joe Rodola and Dave Thomas scored 18 points apiece to pace the Trojans of the North Bay I League to their second tournament title in as many weeks. Last week they captured the Drake Invitational.

Rancho Cotate, the surprise team of the tourney, got 24 points from super center Ron Seiler and 18 from Steve Wlodarczyk, but could not stay with Petaluma in the second half.

Rodola, Thomas and Kevin Gillmore made the all tourney team for the Trojans, while the Rohnert Park team placed two men, Seiler and Wlodarczyk.

Warriors Quickly Fall Back To Second Place

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The San Francisco Warriors must get dizzy in first place.

For the second time this season, the Warriors ran off a win streak to reach the top only to swoon back to second the next night.

San Francisco, after slipping by Portland Friday night, lost 108-99 here Saturday to the Philadelphia 76ers in a game that threatened to be decided by technical fouls.

Officials Don Murphy and Manny Gomes slapped Philadelphia with three technicals and the Warriors with one as both teams sporadically jawed at the two.

Since neither team could open a comfortable lead in the first three periods, the technical fouls seemed important.

However, Philadelphia burst from a 74-73 third period lead to an 11 point margin, 88-77, four and a half minutes into the fourth period.

Guard Wally Clark scored six points in that span and finished with 21 for the game. The aging, but still effective, Hal Greer, then took over the game and scored 10 of the 76ers' final 20 points.

Greer topped all scorers with 33 points. Nate Thurmond led the Warriors' shooters with 22 points followed by Jeff Mullins with 21Jerry Lucas with 19 and Bob Portman with 18.

The game was the second of a doubleheader viewed by 5,746 at the Oakland Coliseum Arena. In the first, San Diego dumped Portland 118-108.

The Warriors who had won four games in a row will try to start another streak at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Cow Palance against the Boston Celtics.

Neat, Tidy Package For NFL Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was as neat and tidy as a brightly wrapped Christmas package—and just as welcome for the officials of the National Football League.

After 182 games under the new alignment, the regular season ended Sunday with six undisputed champions and two best second place teams. There were no ties and no coin flips.

"It kept the owners from looking like a bunch of donkeys," admitted Detroit Lion owner Bill Ford, who promised the rules will be changed next year to make it impossible for coin flips to decide playoff spots.

And the irony is that, in this season when it's better to give than receive, the Los Angeles Rams won nothing themselves —but pride —as they guaranteed there would be no coin flips by clobbering the New York Giants, 31-3.

If the Giants had won, they would have taken a playoff berth and George Halas would have flipped a coin at halftime of the San Francisco-Oakland game on national TV to decide the playoff spot for the second best team between Detroit and Dallas.

Instead, this is the way the playoffs now look:

Five clubs—Detroit, Dallas, Miami, Cincinnati and San Francisco—all clinched spots with victories Sunday.

Detroit blanked Green Bay 20-0, Dallas routed Houston 52-10, Miami blasted Buffalo 45-7, Cincinnati routed Boston 45-7 and San Francisco beat Oakland 38-7.

The Rams were in contention for three hours after they beat New York, but the San Francisco victory ousted the Rams from the playoffs.

In the other games, Minnesota beat Atlanta 37-7 to finish with a 12-2 record for the second straight year, San Diego upset Kansas City 31-13, Cleveland beat Denver 27-13, Washington edged St. Louis 28-27, Philadelphia topped Pittsburgh 30-20 and Chicago topped New Orleans 24-3.

Detroit and Miami wound up qualifying with the best second place record this year and the other six qualifiers are the conference champions. Kansas City finished second last year and won the Super Bowl and Detroit, which closed out with five straight victories, has a good shot at it this time.

It didn't take much time for the Rams to make sure there wouldn't be any need for Halas to flip any coins. After being forced to punt the first time they had the ball, the Rams scored the next four times they had it en route to a 24-3 lead and coasted past the Giants.

The Rams were annoyed that they were written off as an "old" team after last Monday night's loss to Detroit.. As Merlin Olsen put it, "we were ridiculed and laughed at by a number of people who said we were a group of old men who couldn't do the job and this hurt us because this is a team of great heritage and pride."

But it was still a disappointing season for the Rams, who have yet to win a single playoff game in George Allen's vie-year term as head coach and failed to even make the playoffs three times during that span. Allen's contract is now up, and owner Dan Reeves, who tried to fire him two years ago, is unlikely to renew it.

San Francisco would have clinched the Western title if the Giants had beaten the Rams But once the Rams won, the Forty-Niners went out and won it on their own as John Brodie threw three touch down passes to cap his finest year as a pro and bea Oakland.

Craig Morton threw five TD passes, four to Bob Hayes, as Dallas made the playoffs for the fifth straight year by beating Houston.

With second string quarterback Sam Wyche throwing two TD passes after Virgil Carter left thegamewith bruised ribs Cincinnati breezed past Boston stopping the Pats without a first down for nearly three quarters.

Lem Barney, having an erratic season, was brilliant as Detroit beat Green Bay. He set up 10 points with kick returns totaling 119 yards and then scored on a 49-yard pass interception.

Besides the Rams, the two teams expected to make the playoffs this year who failed to do it were Cleveland and Kansas City. Cleveland was eliminated by Cincy's win, but the Browns still beat Denver as Bill Nelsen tossed two TD passes. But Kansas City knocked out by Miami's triumph, was routed by San Diego as John Hadl threw three TD passes.

John Madden, the Oakland coach, wasn't too upset at his team's showing. He was happy, though, that the Raiders came out of it without an injury despite a game that was played from start to finish in the rain and mud.

"We'll do what we usually do by way of getting ready for Miami," said Madden, who saw his Raiders finish the year with an 8-4-2 record, compared to San Francisco's 10-3-1 mark.

The Raiders got their only score on a 29-yard pass from Daryle Lamonica to Ray Chester.

"Obviously, we did a few things wrong," said Madden, "But give credit to the Forty Niners. They played a perfect game."

"Football is a game of hills and valleys," he said, "but this one looked more like the San Andreas fault."

Get tough about love.

The word "love" has been hurled at us so many times, sometimes we don't even hear it any more.

The fact remains, Love is what the world needs now. And it needs a lot of it.

But not "Love" on a poster. Or on a button. It's good-hearted, hard-minded acts of love the world needs. Acts of concern. Acts of respect for other human beings. Acts of creatively changing the world around us for the better.

Send for our free booklet, "How One Town Put Its Faith To Work."

It tells you how a group of ordinary people in an ordinary town turned things around. All because they wanted to live the commandment: "Love your neighbor."

A Tie In Pasadena Bowl; Sun Bowl To Texas Tech

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) Cal State Long Beach came from behind in the fourth quarter to tie Louisville, 24-24 in the Pasadena Bowl Saturday. The Cardinals from Kentucky had the momentum in the final minutes, and seemingly scored to break the deadlock, but the touchdown play involved two forward passes and was ruled illegal.

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Tech place kicker Dickie Ingram just couldn't believe it after he missed a 24-yard field goal attempt with three minutes left and his team trailing George Tech, 10-9 in the Sun Bowl Saturday. "I just missed it. I couldn't believe it. I shanked the ball and it was wide," Ingram said.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Fran Curci, who coached the University of Tampa Spartans to a 10-1 season this year, was named head football coach at the University of Miami Saturday.

Curci, a former quarterback for the Hurricanes, had been eyeing the Miami job for several weeks and the University reportedly offered him a five-year contract at $30,000 a year.

BASEBALL

The surgery was done by Dr. Frank Jobe, Dodger orthopedic specialist, Saturday at California Hospital. Jobe said the operation was successful and Singer should recover completely well before the baseball club goes to spring training in February.

BASKETBALL

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers, led by the newest member of the National Basketball Association's 20,000 point club, Jerry West, invade the stronghold of the Milwaukee Bucks for tonight's nationally televised game.

The game is highlighted by the second clash of the season between centers Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers and Lew Alcindor of the Bucks. The last time they met was in November on the Lakers' home court and Milwaukee scored a 117-100 victory.

BOXING

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Mike Quarry awaited the next step up the ladder in the light heavyweight ranks after having scored his 25th straight win to remain undefeated by decisioning Amado Vazquez Saturday night.

The 19-year-old Quarry's victory brought him a promise from promoter Don Faser that he would try to match the younger brother of Jerry Quarry of heavyweight fame with Andy Kendall of Portland, Ore. early next year.

French Skiers Aren't Really Unbeatable

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) —The supposed invincibility of the French ski teams seemed less real today as the Olympic coaches of more than a dozen national ski teams took stock of the just-ended Val D'Isere meet that poked holes in the French team's reputation as unbeatable.

At the first international meet of the current season in Sestrieres, Italy, French skiers swept the first places in both of the events which count towards the World Cup, and the French press boasted their teams were untouchable on the slopes.

But after the just-concluded meet at Val D'Isere on French territory, there is less talk in skiing circles about this year's World Cup being an all-French affair.

One of the U.S. team coaches, for example, said the Val D'Isere meet proved the French could be beaten, even though they proved the toughest on the slopes and won two of four first places.

Elizabeth "Betsy" Clifford, a 17-year old Canadian girl from Camp Fortune, Ontario, who plans to start courses at the University of Toronto next year, was the first skier to prove in Val D'Isere that the French could be beaten.

The pig-tailed Miss Clifford won the opening event Wednesday, a special slalom in which she upset more highly-rated girls from France, Austria and the United States.

French skiers came back to win the men's giant slalom on Thursday and the women's downhill race on Saturday.

But in spite of brilliant performances by the winners of these two races —Patrick Russell and Isabelle Mir —the French victories were less than the French coaches admit they had hoped for.

Austria's Karl Schranz proved to be a better all-round skier than French ace Henri Duvillard, the hero of the Sestrieres meet, and won more points than Duvillard in the two World Cup events that were held.

Pudgy, freckle-faced Isabelle Mir took top honors in the women's downhill, but Wiltrud Drexel took away more World Cup points, even though she did not win first place in either of the women's events. Miss Drexel was the winner of the five-day Criterium among the women competitors because her second place in the downhill and her third position in the special slalom gained her more World Cup points than Miss Mir won by placing first in the women's downhill.

Skiing circles said it was still too early to tell how the World Cup competition would turn out. But some coaches were saying privately that Val D'Isere proved that the French Olympic teams, which got off to a good start in the first international meet in Italy, were not as unbeatable as they were thought to be only a week ago.

Ohio State Gridders At Disneyland

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Ohio State's Rose Bowl football squad took a day off from workouts today in order to permit the players their first recreational break, a visit to Disneyland.

"It's wholesome entertainment and our schedule calls for hard work the rest of the week until Christmas Day," coach Woody Hayes explained.

Rain held the players to a picture session and limbering up drills Friday. The soggy condition of the practice field forced the Buckeyes indoors for morning and afternoon workouts Saturday.

Although there still were puddles and soft spots Sunday, the Buckeyes were able to get in a long passing drill.

Goalie Pays The Price

By United Press International

That's the way it went for the Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League Sunday night. Their goalie, Joe Daley, doesn't wear a mask and wound up getting a face full of stick that knocked him to the ice and allowed George Armstrong to slam home a loose puck and send Toronto on its way to 4-2 victory.

Armstrong's tally came with 3:46 gone in the final period and gave the Maple Leafs a 3-1 edge, putting the game out of reach for the Sabres and giving Toronto its sixth straight win.

Although Armstrong's goal slipped by the bloodied Daley, Punch Imlach, coach of the Sabres, contended that the Leafs' second goal, a Dave Keon 12-footer that eluded Daley with only 43 seconds left in the second period, was "the one that beat us. Instead of coming into the third period even, we were one behind," Imlach pointed out. "We got pressure on us all the time. When we relax, they put the puck in the net —that's the way it is with an expansion team. Toronto took advantage of our lapses."

In other action, the Boston Bruins won their eighth straight as John McKenzie scored a hat trick and Phil Esposito got two goals in a 7-2 romp over the Minnesota North Stars.

Bobby Hull calmly batted in a rebound with less than three minutes to play to give his Chicago Black Hawks a 2-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

BASKETBALL

Tourney Time For Cal Bears

On Christmas Day, the Bears from Berkeley will be eating their holiday meal in a hotel somewhere in Cincinnati and preparing for a clash Saturday with the Bearcats (4-1).

Hopefully, the Bears would like to be celebrating a championship from the Michigan Tournament on Christmas Day. Cal, 4-1, meets Wyoming (2-4) in the first round of the tournament tonight at Ann Arbor while Michigan and Harvard collide in the nightcap. The winners play for the tourney title on Tuesday.

Among the west coast teams enjoying an early bit of holiday cheer over the weekend were Southern California, Utah, Fresno State and Oregon. All emerged triumphant in tournaments or against intersectional foes.

Sixth-ranked USC ran its perfect record to 6-0 by edging Texas-El Paso 65-63 for the championship of the Sun Bowl Tournament. Paul Westphal sank two free throws with 11 seconds remaining to pull it out. Teammate Ron Riley netted 15 points in the finale and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Fresno State downed small-college power Puget Sound 88-75 for the Fresno Classic title. Oregon ran its record to 5-1 with a 76-65 victory over Temple in a non-tournament clash.

Elsewhere, Princeton got 42 points from sophomore guards Brian Taylor, brother of Bruce Taylor of the San Francisco Forty Niners, and Ted Manakas to top Stanford 81-76; Washington State defeated Boise State 69-44; New Mexico State humbled San Jose State 114-55; Portland State took advantage of 53 turnovers to beat Eastern Montana 112-94 and Pepperdine won its fourth straight, 95-87, over Idaho State.

Easter Oregon took the Rogue Valley tournament by whipping Southern Oregon 87-73 while Hayward State outscored Sonoma State 69-65 for third place. Cal Poly-Pomona outlasted Occidental 102-97 for the championship of the Occidental Invitational while Fresno-Pacific turned back Cal Lutheran 76-72 for unnerup honors.

St. Mary's also was a consolation winner by beating Northern Arizona 91-72 in the Fresno Classic.

In other tournaments, three West Coast Athletic Conference teams finished last. New Mexico overwhelmed Santa Clara 91-62 in the Lobo Invitational, Detroit handed San Francisco its sixth straight defeat in the Volunteer Classic and McMurry upended Nevada-Reno 92-82 in the Cowboy Classic.

Fifth-ranked Marquette defeated 19th-rated Long Beach State 83-66 to just about knock the 49ers out of the top 20.

UCLA (5-0), idle over the weekend, puts its top-ranking on the line this week while entertaining Missouri Tuesday night and St. Louis Wednesday night at Pauley Pavilion.

In other games tonight, Alabama visits USC, Washington is at Kansas State, Stanford hosts Temple, Western Michigan travels to Stockton for a game with the Pacific Tigers and Oklahoma City tests Nevada-Las Vegas.

Wynn Suffers Stab Wound

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Wynn, 28, an outfielder with the Houston Astros for the past eight seasons, was stabbed early today in what police said was an apparent domestic quarrel. Doctors said Wynn was in satisfactory condition.

Astro second baseman Joe Morgan said Wynn's wife, Ruth, had told him she had stabbed her husband. Police officers said Wynn's wife also reported the incident to detectives.

Vikings Crush Falcons; Vs. 49ers In Playoffs

ATLANTA (UPI)—Given a choice, Bud Grant says he wishes his Minnesota team's opponent in next week's playoff could be somebody like, well—how about Boston or New Orleans?

Unfortunately for the Vikings, that was not to be their fate, San Francisco won a game later in the day, eliminating Los Angeles and gained the right (certainly not the privilege) to meet Minnesota in the playoffs.

"It doesn't matter whether we play Los Angeles or San Francisco in the playoffs," said Grant, shortly after his gang of "purple people eaters" destroyed the Falcons and their former boss, Norm Van Brocklin, 37-7 Sunday. "We can't play Boston or New Orleans."

No one doubted which team in Atlanta Stadium was the best.

"I'm glad that's over," said Van Brocklin, who coached the Vikings from their infancy until 1966 when he resigned. "That's the end of a disappointing season but not a discouraging one. We have some good boys here, but we need more."

What Van Brocklin may well have been driving at was that the Falcons need to get rid of some of the not-so-good-boys.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Immediate Outlook Unclear At Brody

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 500 shares of Brody Seating bought at 3⅛. Now I am thinking about buying another 1,000 shares. Would this be wise? — N.S.

A. Until there is some indication of earning's recovery I would not add to these shares. Consumer spending, particularly for higher priced items, has been sluggish for many months. Brody, a leading manufacturer of kitchen and dinette furniture, which account for about 65 per cent of sales, has been hurt by consumer reluctance to part with cash.

For the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, sales dropped 4 per cent based on restated 1969 volume, which excluded $2 million contributed by a liquidated subsidiary. An operating loss for the year, equal to $0.21 a share, reflected deficits from the discontinued subsidiary, the trucking strike and reduced volume.

Although some attrition was noted in working capital during fiscal 1970, Brody's financial position is strong. Current assets were 2.3 times current liabilities and the long term debt was reduced 16 per cent to $733,194. Of the 711,300 common shares outstanding, the president and vice president, Harry and Leo Brody, own 58 per cent, leaving a small floating supply. Trading in these shares has been very light in recent months, indicative of the limited following for the stock.

Q. The writer is the owner of 128 American Telephone warrants. Would you advise holding these until the common is worth more than the $52 exercise price? — C.A.

A. Telephone warrants are trading at a 30 per cent premium, which means that the common would have to rise 30 per cent — to over 61 — to justify purchase at this level. Hypothetically, an upmove to $52, or 9.5 per cent, would produce a 60 per cent rise in the warrant, assuming that the 30 per cent premium held.

Unfortunately, this premium tends to narrow as the common stock appreciates, although, on a percentage basis, the lower-priced warrant would normally outperform the higher-based common stock. Warrants should be held for participation in growth anticipated for American Telephone.

Mixed Start For Week On Exchange

After more than three hours, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.96 at 821.81; Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.09 at 90.13; and advances narrowly topped declines, 647 to 611.

Volume at 1 p.m. amounted to 7,940,000 shares, down from 8,890,000 shares traded at a comparable period Friday.

Among the day's most active stocks were Japan Fund off 1/4 on 157,100 shares. Memorex 5⅝ higher on 140,100 shares, Federal National Mortgage off 1¾ on 101,000 shares, and Viacom down 1/2 on 83,700 shares.

Also heavily traded were Walter Kidde, American Electric Power up 1/8, and Union Carbine 1/4 higher.

Less active IBM and Burroughs rose 2 or better, while Telex Corp. and Honeywell tacked on fractions. Steels showed scattered strength, with U.S. Steel and Bethelehem up 3/8 and 1/8, respectively.

Slightly lower, however, were American Telephone, Xerox, General Motors, Chrysler, Du Pont, and Superior Oil.

Building Permits Drop Off

November building activity in Marin County dropped off 37 per cent from last year, according to figures from the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Total building permits for the month were valued at $3,659,491, compared with November permits last year amounting to $5,808,673. Last month's total was also down 38.9 per cent from the $5,989,681 recorded in October.

Novato incorporated and unincorporated areas were in the lead with a total of $1,314,733, most of this residential. Commercial activity amounted to only a small percentage of San Rafael's $590,380 and Mill Valley's $436,935. The $372,805 recorded for the Tiburon peninsula and Belvedere was also mostly residential. Corte Madera showed a respectable $326,260 in permits, but all of them were for miscellaneous construction — no new residential building.

Sausalito's $162,864 was 60 per cent residential, with the balance in miscellaneous construction. The $45,144 for San Anselmo was about half residential and half miscellaneous construction. There was no new residential construction at all included in the $23,300 for Ross, $22,820 for Larkspur or Fairfax's $20,400. Construction in West Marin and other unincorporated areas amounted to $169,350, 70 per cent residential.

Cumulative figures for 11 months of the year stand at $47.3 million — down 21.4 per cent from the $60.4 million during the 1969 period.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

New Lithograph Shop To Open At Northgate Industrial Park

Owner Thomas I. Gehres of San Anselmo, who has been located at 96 Jessie Street, San Francisco under the name of Tom Gehres — Trade Lithographer, has leased space at 53 Mark Drive through William W. Hoey and Co.

Northgate quarters are larger than before and will have more modern equipment — larger camera, film stripping and plate making equipment and a high-speed, two-color envelope press.

INSIDE REMODELING going on in American Savings and Loan Association's offices at 550 Las Gallinas Avenue, Northgate Shopping Center should be completed by the end of the month.

Principal expansion of facilities here will be an enlarged vault, with the installation of safe deposit boxes. These will be offered without charge to customers with $1,000 or more on deposit.

American's Northgate office, now five years old (including about 14 months in a temporary location) has seen impressive growth during this period. Deposits are now over $19 million.

TAGHI REZAIAN, who has operated Rezaian Persian Rug Co. at 256 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley for about a year, has been buying adjoining property with the hope of constructing a larger building for his business. It is sorely needed. He has what he believes is the largest stock of Persian rugs in Northern California — imported from his father in Iran.

GLENN R. McQUISTON of Belvedere (a Marin resident only since the first of this month) is new vice president of Security Management Corp. which recently moved to the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae from Sausalito. He is a former investment company executive from Pennsylvania.

FIRESIDE THRIFT has promoted John R. Kelsch, now living in Corte Madera, to assistant secretary and manager of its San Rafael office at 1011 C Street. He has been with the company about 18 months working as new business representative out of Redwood City. Before that he was four years with G A C Finance Corp. in Oakland. With him at the San Rafael office is head teller Joan Torres.

FREDERIC S. ALLEN JR. of Ross will open Wells Fargo Bank's new San Marino office in Los Angeles County as manager on Dec. 30. Formerly assistant manager of the Mill Valley office, he joined the bank in 1963 and was named credit officer at Mill Valley in 1964. He was promoted to assistant manager of the Brentwood office in South San Francisco in 1966 and reassigned to Mill Valley later that same year.

REAL ESTATE: Lester R. Johnson of Belvedere has joined Stephen Kramer, Realtor in San Rafael. He was formerly with Coldwell, Banker and Co. and before that was sales manager of the Diebold Co. Also new at the Kramer office is H. G. (Hy) Gravitch of Loch Lomond, a broker and for many years a member of the San Francisco Real Estate Board . . . Earle and Solvason, Corte Madera reports serving 47 per cent more transferred executives through Inter-City Relocation Service, Inc. during the 12 months ended Oct. 31 than during the preceding year.

FOAM FITTED BOOTS are something new in ski gear, different from earlier molded boots, and there is a machine that custom fits them while you wait.

A new device by Beconta, Inc., it is designed to be used with Nordica Astral boots. Special inner liners go inside plastic shells, the feet go in the liners and the machine injects liquid foam to create a mold to the configuration of the skiers' feet. It's all done in 10 minutes.

Stan's for Sports has the equipment for it.

Speed Record

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (UPI) — A new world speed record for helicopters was claimed by Sikorsky Division of United Aircraft Corp. at 216.72 miles an hour for its S-67 Blackhawk. The previous mark was 212 MPH held by a Super Frelon built by Sud Aviation of France, set back in 1963. The Blackhawk is a Sikorsky Company venture although designed primarily for low-risk military use.

DEFEAT SIERRA

Marin Tars Run Record To 11-1

The College of Marin Tars exploded, slumped and then rallied to defeat Sierra J.C. of Rocklin in a non-league basketball game Saturday night, 67-59.

It was the second win in two nights for the high flying Kentfield team, and their 11th victory of the season against a single loss. They have not been defeated since Dec. 6, when they bowed to Los Angeles City College.

Since then the Tars have reeled off six straight impressive wins, including Saturday night's. As usual, guard Joe Smith and center Roosevelt Green led the way, although they got bountiful help from the rest of the team. Smith hit on nine shots from the floor and six from the charity line for 24 points, while Green added 13. Mike Peden and Ken Gommeringer contributed eight each.

The Tars were never behind, and led by 10 at the half, but Sierra closed to within one midway through the second half. As has been their custom, the Tars managed to pull out again to a comfortable lead, and were taking their time when the final buzzer sounded.

Clark's Key Basket Paces 76ers Victory

By United Press International

Archie Clark, Terry Dischinger and Bernie Williams weren't the high scorers for their teams in the National Basketball Association. But their baskets were the ones that meant victory.

Clark sank a 22-foot jumper at the buzzer in regulation time to tie the score 123-123 and then sank two free throws with 26 seconds remaining in the overtime to give Philadelphia a 134-132 victory over Portland. Clark finished with 27 points while Billy Cunningham and Hal Greer had 31 apiece for Philadelphia.

Dischinger's free throw sewed up a 136-135 double overtime victory by Detroit over Cincinnati. Dischinger's 21 points for the game made him second in scoring to Detroit teammate Jim Walker, who also tied the game 127-127 on a field goal with seven seconds remaining in the first overtime.

In other games, the action wasn't quite as close as Milwaukee beat Buffalo 131-101, and New York defeated Phoenix 113-118 and Chicago rallied for a 116-103 victory over Cleveland.

Petalumans Win Ukiah Tournament

The Petaluma High School Trojans overcame a 15-10 first quarter deficit and defeated a surprisingly tough Rancho Cotate prep team, 67-59 Saturday night in the championship game of the Ukiah Invitational basketball tournament.

Joe Rodola and Dave Thomas scored 18 points apiece to pace the Trojans of the North Bay I League to their second tournament title in as many weeks. Last week they captured the Drake Invitational.

Rancho Cotate, the surprise team of the tourney, got 24 points from super center Ron Seiler and 18 from Steve Wlodarczyk, but could not stay with Petaluma in the second half.

Rodola, Thomas and Kevin Gillmore made the all tourney team for the Trojans, while the Rohnert Park team placed two men, Seiler and Wlodarczyk.

Westmoor Tops Drake In Tourney

The Drake Pirates lost their bid for third place in the El Camino high school basketball tournament in Daly City Saturday night, bowing to Westmoor, 83-61 in the final round.

The Pirates, who got bombed by Lowell the night before, 88-44, never led, and after going behind, 20-12 in the first quarter, things just got worse.

Bob Gregg led the San Anselmo team with 15 points. Others in double figures were Jit Singh with 12, Tom Carlisle with 11 and Jim Forni with 10.

Warriors Quickly Fall Back To Second Place

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The San Francisco Warriors must get dizzy in first place.

For the second time this season, the Warriors ran off a win streak to reach the top only to swoon back to second the next night.

San Francisco, after slipping by Portland Friday night, lost 108-99 here Saturday to the Philadelphia 76ers in a game that threatened to be decided by technical fouls.

Officials Don Murphy and Manny Gomes slapped Philadelphia with three technicals and the Warriors with one as both teams sporadically jawed at the two.

Since neither team could open a comfortable lead in the first three periods, the technical fouls seemed important.

However, Philadelphia burst from a 74-73 third period lead to an 11 point margin, 88-77, four and a half minutes into the fourth period.

Guard Wally Clark scored six points in that span and finished with 21 for the game. The aging, but still effective, Hal Greer, then took over the game and scored 10 of the 76ers' final 20 points.

Greer topped all scorers with 33 points. Nate Thurmond led the Warriors' shooters with 22 points followed by Jeff Mullins with 21Jerry Lucas with 19 and Bob Portman with 18.

The game was the second of a doubleheader viewed by 5,746 at the Oakland Coliseum Arena. In the first, San Diego dumped Portland 118-108.

The Warriors who had won four games in a row will try to start another streak at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Cow Palance against the Boston Celtics.

Neat, Tidy Package For NFL Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was as neat and tidy as a brightly wrapped Christmas package—and just as welcome for the officials of the National Football League.

After 182 games under the new alignment, the regular season ended Sunday with six undisputed champions and two best second place teams. There were no ties and no coin flips.

"It kept the owners from looking like a bunch of donkeys," admitted Detroit Lion owner Bill Ford, who promised the rules will be changed next year to make it impossible for coin flips to decide playoff spots.

And the irony is that, in this season when it's better to give than receive, the Los Angeles Rams won nothing themselves —but pride —as they guaranteed there would be no coin flips by clobbering the New York Giants, 31-3.

If the Giants had won, they would have taken a playoff berth and George Halas would have flipped a coin at halftime of the San Francisco-Oakland game on national TV to decide the playoff spot for the second best team between Detroit and Dallas.

Instead, this is the way the playoffs now look:

Five clubs—Detroit, Dallas, Miami, Cincinnati and San Francisco—all clinched spots with victories Sunday.

Detroit blanked Green Bay 20-0, Dallas routed Houston 52-10, Miami blasted Buffalo 45-7, Cincinnati routed Boston 45-7 and San Francisco beat Oakland 38-7.

The Rams were in contention for three hours after they beat New York, but the San Francisco victory ousted the Rams from the playoffs.

In the other games, Minnesota beat Atlanta 37-7 to finish with a 12-2 record for the second straight year, San Diego upset Kansas City 31-13, Cleveland beat Denver 27-13, Washington edged St. Louis 28-27, Philadelphia topped Pittsburgh 30-20 and Chicago topped New Orleans 24-3.

Detroit and Miami wound up qualifying with the best second place record this year and the other six qualifiers are the conference champions. Kansas City finished second last year and won the Super Bowl and Detroit, which closed out with five straight victories, has a good shot at it this time.

It didn't take much time for the Rams to make sure there wouldn't be any need for Halas to flip any coins. After being forced to punt the first time they had the ball, the Rams scored the next four times they had it en route to a 24-3 lead and coasted past the Giants.

The Rams were annoyed that they were written off as an "old" team after last Monday night's loss to Detroit.. As Merlin Olsen put it, "we were ridiculed and laughed at by a number of people who said we were a group of old men who couldn't do the job and this hurt us because this is a team of great heritage and pride."

But it was still a disappointing season for the Rams, who have yet to win a single playoff game in George Allen's vie-year term as head coach and failed to even make the playoffs three times during that span. Allen's contract is now up, and owner Dan Reeves, who tried to fire him two years ago, is unlikely to renew it.

San Francisco would have clinched the Western title if the Giants had beaten the Rams But once the Rams won, the Forty-Niners went out and won it on their own as John Brodie threw three touchdown passes to cap his finest year as a pro and bea Oakland.

Craig Morton threw five TD passes, four to Bob Hayes, as Dallas made the playoffs for the fifth straight year by beating Houston.

With second string quarterback Sam Wyche throwing two TD passes after Virgil Carter left thegamewith bruised ribs Cincinnati breezed past Boston stopping the Pats without a first down for nearly three quarters.

Lem Barney, having an erratic season, was brilliant as Detroit beat Green Bay. He set up 10 points with kick returns totaling 119 yards and then scored on a 49-yard pass interception.

Besides the Rams, the two teams expected to make the playoffs this year who failed to do it were Cleveland and Kansas City. Cleveland was eliminated by Cincy's win, but the Browns still beat Denver as Bill Nelsen tossed two TD passes. But Kansas City knocked out by Miami's triumph, was routed by San Diego as John Hadl threw three TD passes.

John Madden, the Oakland coach, wasn't too upset at his team's showing. He was happy, though, that the Raiders came out of it without an injury despite a game that was played from start to finish in the rain and mud.

"We'll do what we usually do by way of getting ready for Miami," said Madden, who saw his Raiders finish the year with an 8-4-2 record, compared to San Francisco's 10-3-1 mark.

The Raiders got their only score on a 29-yard pass from Daryle Lamonica to Ray Chester.

"Obviously, we did a few things wrong," said Madden, "But give credit to the Forty Niners. They played a perfect game."

"Football is a game of hills and valleys," he said, "but this one looked more like the San Andreas fault."

Get tough about love.

The word "love" has been hurled at us so many times, sometimes we don't even hear it any more.

The fact remains, Love is what the world needs now. And it needs a lot of it.

But not "Love" on a poster. Or on a button. It's good-hearted, hard-minded acts of love the world needs. Acts of concern. Acts of respect for other human beings. Acts of creatively changing the world around us for the better.

It tells you how a group of ordinary people in an ordinary town turned things around. All because they wanted to live the commandment: "Love your neighbor."

It just might bring love back in style.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Immediate Outlook Unclear At Brody

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 500 shares of Brody Seating bought at 3⅛. Now I am thinking about buying another 1,000 shares. Would this be wise? — N.S.

A. Until there is some indication of earning's recovery I would not add to these shares. Consumer spending, particularly for higher priced items, has been sluggish for many months. Brody, a leading manufacturer of kitchen and dinette furniture, which account for about 65 per cent of sales, has been hurt by consumer reluctance to part with cash.

For the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, sales dropped 4 per cent based on restated 1969 volume, which excluded $2 million contributed by a liquidated subsidiary. An operating loss for the year, equal to $0.21 a share, reflected deficits from the discontinued subsidiary, the trucking strike and reduced volume.

Although some attrition was noted in working capital during fiscal 1970, Brody's financial position is strong. Current assets were 2.3 times current liabilities and the long term debt was reduced 16 per cent to $733,194. Of the 711,300 common shares outstanding, the president and vice president, Harry and Leo Brody, own 58 per cent, leaving a small floating supply. Trading in these shares has been very light in recent months, indicative of the limited following for the stock.

Q. The writer is the owner of 128 American Telephone warrants. Would you advise holding these until the common is worth more than the $52 exercise price? — C.A.

A. Telephone warrants are trading at a 30 per cent premium, which means that the common would have to rise 30 per cent — to over 61 — to justify purchase at this level. Hypothetically, an upmove to $52, or 9.5 per cent, would produce a 60 per cent rise in the warrant, assuming that the 30 per cent premium held.

Unfortunately, this premium tends to narrow as the common stock appreciates, although, on a percentage basis, the lower-priced warrant would normally outperform the higher-based common stock. Warrants should be held for participation in growth anticipated for American Telephone.

Good Forecast

HOUSTON (UPI) — Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc., reports that the index of credit reporting has steadied recently, forecasting economic improvement in the coming months. In November a total of 7.4 million credit references was reported, a drop of 4 per cent from a year earlier but the smallest year-to-year monthly decline since June.

SMART CHART

Mixed Start For Week On Exchange

After more than three hours, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.96 at 821.81; Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.09 at 90.13; and advances narrowly topped declines, 647 to 611.

Volume at 1 p.m. amounted to 7,940,000 shares, down from 8,890,000 shares traded at a comparable period Friday.

Among the day's most active stocks were Japan Fund off 1/4 on 157,100 shares. Memorex 5⅝ higher on 140,100 shares, Federal National Mortgage off 1¾ on 101,000 shares, and Viacom down 1/2 on 83,700 shares.

Also heavily traded were Walter Kidde, American Electric Power up 1/8, and Union Carbine 1/4 higher.

Less active IBM and Burroughs rose 2 or better, while Telex Corp. and Honeywell tacked on fractions. Steels showed scattered strength, with U.S. Steel and Bethelehem up 3/8 and 1/8, respectively.

Slightly lower, however, were American Telephone, Xerox, General Motors, Chrysler, Du Pont, and Superior Oil.

Building Permits Drop Off

November building activity in Marin County dropped off 37 per cent from last year, according to figures from the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Total building permits for the month were valued at $3,659,491, compared with November permits last year amounting to $5,808,673. Last month's total was also down 38.9 per cent from the $5,989,681 recorded in October.

Novato incorporated and unincorporated areas were in the lead with a total of $1,314,733, most of this residential. Commercial activity amounted to only a small percentage of San Rafael's $590,380 and Mill Valley's $436,935. The $372,805 recorded for the Tiburon peninsula and Belvedere was also mostly residential. Corte Madera showed a respectable $326,260 in permits, but all of them were for miscellaneous construction — no new residential building.

Sausalito's $162,864 was 60 per cent residential, with the balance in miscellaneous construction. The $45,144 for San Anselmo was about half residential and half miscellaneous construction. There was no new residential construction at all included in the $23,300 for Ross, $22,820 for Larkspur or Fairfax's $20,400. Construction in West Marin and other unincorporated areas amounted to $169,350, 70 per cent residential.

Cumulative figures for 11 months of the year stand at $47.3 million — down 21.4 per cent from the $60.4 million during the 1969 period.

New Lithograph Shop To Open At Northgate Industrial Park

Owner Thomas I. Gehres of San Anselmo, who has been located at 96 Jessie Street, San Francisco under the name of Tom Gehres — Trade Lithographer, has leased space at 53 Mark Drive through William W. Hoey and Co.

Northgate quarters are larger than before and will have more modern equipment — larger camera, film stripping and plate making equipment and a high-speed, two-color envelope press.

INSIDE REMODELING going on in American Savings and Loan Association's offices at 550 Las Gallinas Avenue, Northgate Shopping Center should be completed by the end of the month.

Principal expansion of facilities here will be an enlarged vault, with the installation of safe deposit boxes. These will be offered without charge to customers with $1,000 or more on deposit.

American's Northgate office, now five years old (including about 14 months in a temporary location) has seen impressive growth during this period. Deposits are now over $19 million.

TAGHI REZAIAN, who has operated Rezaian Persian Rug Co. at 256 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley for about a year, has been buying adjoining property with the hope of constructing a larger building for his business. It is sorely needed. He has what he believes is the largest stock of Persian rugs in Northern California — imported from his father in Iran.

GLENN R. McQUISTON of Belvedere (a Marin resident only since the first of this month) is new vice president of Security Management Corp. which recently moved to the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae from Sausalito. He is a former investment company executive from Pennsylvania.

FIRESIDE THRIFT has promoted John R. Kelsch, now living in Corte Madera, to assistant secretary and manager of its San Rafael office at 1011 C Street. He has been with the company about 18 months working as new business representative out of Redwood City. Before that he was four years with G A C Finance Corp. in Oakland. With him at the San Rafael office is head teller Joan Torres.

FREDERIC S. ALLEN JR. of Ross will open Wells Fargo Bank's new San Marino office in Los Angeles County as manager on Dec. 30. Formerly assistant manager of the Mill Valley office, he joined the bank in 1963 and was named credit officer at Mill Valley in 1964. He was promoted to assistant manager of the Brentwood office in South San Francisco in 1966 and reassigned to Mill Valley later that same year.

REAL ESTATE: Lester R. Johnson of Belvedere has joined Stephen Kramer, Realtor in San Rafael. He was formerly with Coldwell, Banker and Co. and before that was sales manager of the Diebold Co. Also new at the Kramer office is H. G. (Hy) Gravitch of Loch Lomond, a broker and for many years a member of the San Francisco Real Estate Board . . . Earle and Solvason, Corte Madera reports serving 47 per cent more transferred executives through Inter-City Relocation Service, Inc. during the 12 months ended Oct. 31 than during the preceding year.

FOAM FITTED BOOTS are something new in ski gear, different from earlier molded boots, and there is a machine that custom fits them while you wait.

A new device by Beconta, Inc., it is designed to be used with Nordica Astral boots. Special inner liners go inside plastic shells, the feet go in the liners and the machine injects liquid foam to create a mold to the configuration of the skiers' feet. It's all done in 10 minutes.

Stan's for Sports has the equipment for it.

'A Little Corn And Oil' Has Come A Long Way

More than three quarters of a century ago, Mark Twain, in an essay on "Purchasing Civic Virtue," cited what he saw as parallels between the United States of that day and the Roman Empire in the years of its decay.

Teachers of his youth, Mark Twain recalled, had pointed to the virtues of republican Rome and how they were lost in the so-called glories of the empire.

"The teacher reminded us that Rome's liberties were not auctioned off in a day," he wrote, "but were bought slowly, gradually, little by little; first with a little corn and oil for the exceedingly poor and wretched, later with corn and oil for voters who were not quite so poor, later still with corn and oil for pretty much every man that had a vote to sell — exactly our own history over again . . .

"We have the two Roman conditions: stupendous wealth with its inevitable corruptions and moral blight, and the corn and oil pensions — that is to say, vote bribes, which have taken away the pride of thousands of tempted men and turned them into willing alms receivers and unashamed."

THE GOVERNMENT largesse (or vote bribes) against which the sage of Hannibal was railing consisted of what he saw as unconscionable extension of Civil War pensions.

Their effect on the whole American body politic cannot have been great. But the seed had been planted.

Could Sam Clemens have foreseen how that seed would grow and flower by 1970, no doubt he would have been seized by an extreme fit of apoplexy. It would have confirmed all too completely his thesis in "Purchasing Civic Virtue" that the United States was headed toward monarchism — whether or not the populace actually crowned its hero as did the Romans.

THE VOTE BRIBES that Mark Twain saw in an extension of war service pensions were as nothing compared to the vote bribes of our generation in the form of the dole, federal "allotments" to local governments, federal "grants" to research organizations, federal contracts which make whole sections of the nation dependent for a major source of livelihood on the whims of those in power (as, for instance, the Seattle area on government contracts to the Boeing Aircraft Corp., the San Francisco Peninsula on government spending on the space program).

Other observers in recent years have seen parallels between the course of the United States and that of Rome in the years of its downfall. Mark Twain detected the beginning long ago. He was ahead of his time.

NO BETTER PROOF of his thesis is needed than the cries of outrage heard from some quarters because President Nixon and Governor Reagan have suggested that able-bodied persons be required to work for the taxpayers' money handed to them as welfare.

What started as "a little corn and oil" has become a great deal more. And it is inevitable that what started as distribution of alms to the helpless needy has turned into what Mark Twain called it: a vast "vote bribe" which has robbed both those receiving it and those taxed to pay it of much of their freedom.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Sen.-elect Peter H. Behr will take office in two weeks for what normally would be a four-year term. But he very well may have to face a re-election campaign in two years.

His problem is that redistricting of the state this coming legislative session almost certainly means radical surgery on his Fourth Senatorial District.

The only way Behr will be able to avoid facing re-election will be to be living in the Fourth District in 1972 — whereever it may be by then — and to be lucky enough to have no other incumbent senator lumped into the redrawn district. It now includes all of Marin and Napa and most of Solano.

BEHR'S PROBLEM starts with the fact that San Francisco does not have enough population. With 20 million people in the state and 40 senators to go around, each of the senate districts will need about 500,000 people. San Francisco, however, has only 710,000 people while it has two senators, Democrat George Moscone and Republican Milton Marks.

Two senators will have to spell almost a million people, leaving San Francisco with a deficit of some 290,000 souls.

Some thought had been given to picking up the 290,000 in northern San Mateo County. It would have become part of Moscone's district since it had a Democratic edge in registration.

But this solution had to be junked when Democrat Arlen Gregorio won in San Mateo. He will need those Democratic votes in the northern part of his county.

Democrat John Holmdahl won in the East Bay, foreclosing a move there to pick up San Francisco's deficit. That left Marin as the obvious target. There's even a precedent in Rep. William S. Mailliard, whose Sixth Congressional District includes western San Francisco and most of Marin.

SAN FRANCISCO'S population deficit could not be covered just by Marin's 204,000 total. The San Francisco district could make it up, however, by taking in Sonoma County south of Santa Rosa. The net effect would be to add to one of San Francisco's senate districts everyone living in the Seventh Assembly District now represented by William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

San Francisco, of course, would have to abandon its present system of electing each senator at-large.

The northern end of Bagley's district, incidentally, probably will be lopped off, making the Seventh District again a largely Marin creature. Most of Sonoma thus may get its own assemblyman.

The betting in the Senate redistricting is that Marks will be the one to get the district extended northward. Moscone, after all, is a leader of the majority party, and presumably would use that power to hold onto his more comfortable base at home.

Marin, it seems, again will become a political football for San Francisco's benefit.

And Behr is likely to get bruised when the football gets kicked.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Confusion In Terms On 'Liberal Arts'

Your editorial "Devotion to Liberal Arts: Cult of the Dilettante" (Dec. 12) has an unconvincing aspect to it. The suggestion of the article is that the liberal arts vis a vis the productive arts are useless and unimportant. As a consequence, the liberal arts should be de-emphasized in favor of engineering, science (technology, I assume) and business. This is the view of Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, of acting President Earl W. Jones of Sonoma State College, and of the editor.

The troublesome aspect of this argument is that (a) it is a judgment about the most important things in our society, namely, how we are to educate the young, and, implicitly, what are the aims and purposes of our society as a whole; and (b) it is a judgment that makes use of liberal education. Dr. Hayakawa, President Jones, and editor Craemer are not speaking as engineers, technologists or businessmen when they pronounce on the importance of the liberal arts. This "wisdom" which they are using (for non-productive purposes incidentally) pertains to liberal education.

Dr. Hayakawa rightly points out that the ancient Greeks promoted "liberal education" apart from the productive arts. They did this because they saw that it was not only important to know how to make better products, but it was more important to know how to use them. Knowledge is power only for the wise man . . .

Western civilization grew upon these "liberal arts," and it collapses today, in large measure, because they have eroded. When Dr. Hayakawa observes that "campus unrest is centered in liberal arts areas" is he not talking about the false coin of liberal education?

The question is not whether to keep the liberal arts. The question itself is an exercise of the liberal arts. The question is today, as ever, what is the truth of things? Dr. Hayakawa does not think it is to be found in the version of liberal education abroad in our colleges. That is wise. When sociology, semantics, and the so-called humanities — all tending toward social engineering (a productive skill) — are substituted for the genuine and time honored liberal arts this is an atrocity . . .

On Comparing Pay Of Teachers

Let's set the record straight for Mr. (Hyman I.) Krongard, the school teacher, about the earnings of overpaid tradesmen and the underpaid teachers ("Readers Say," Dec. 3). The actual pay of the carpenter, plumber and electrician in the Bay Area ranges from $6.28 to $7.97½ per hour when employed. (No tenure.) The unemployment rate for these trades has varied from 25 to 50 per cent, it is therefore very obvious that the delectable plumn in the teaching profession known as tenure is denied to all except teachers. I don't know of another occupation that rewards the inefficient as well as the deserving a yearly raise plus a cost of living adjustment . . .

I have additional news for this gentleman. He seems to think that payroll deduction is limited to teachers alone. I sincerely hope that his teaching is far superior to his research . . . otherwise he is one of the grossly overpaid teachers in our school system . . .

If we are to judge the quality of education by the number of unmotivated, unprepared and uneducated students graduating from our schools today I would say that many tenured, unmotivated teachers are accepting especially fine salaries under false pretenses and are grossly overpaid for the rubbish that they teach. As for his deep compassion for his fellow underpaid teachers I would suggest that he change his priorities as follows: 1. To the overburdened taxpayers. 2. To the thousands of professional people in the fields of engineering, accounting, business executives who are unemployed and may never be able to find jobs again in their chosen fields because of the state of the economy in this country today. 3. To the thousands of store clerks, secretaries, etc., who earn from $2 to $3.50 per hour and must work 50 weeks per year to qualify for two weeks vacation.

In closing, I regard the teaching profession very highly . . . I have a daughter with teaching credentials in both California and Massachusetts and a son at Ohio State College school of agriculture at Wooster, O., doing research work in entomology. I believe that as parents my wife and I had a great deal of influence in guiding our two children into the educational field. We both feel very strongly that it is a very vital and prestigious occupation, well paid and with the opportunity for dedicated professionals to guide our youth in the right direction.

Need More Liberal Arts Emphasis

As a liberal arts graduate who spend part of his productive time teaching liberal arts subject (interpersonal communication) at College of Marin I was greatly offended by your Saturday editorial (Dec. 12) on the subject. Apparently you consider thinking to be a non-productive activity that should be de-emphasized.

I admired Dr. S.I. Hayakawa greatly as a semantics scholar to whom I owe much. But in politics he is off base more frequently than on target, and his attempts to manipulate history to support an anti-intellectual bias are tortuous to say the least. The quality that made ancient Greece what it was was not the physical labor of its slaves — they existed in every ancient country — but precisely the efforts of those "non-productive dilenttantes" in analytical and constructive thinking about the society in which they lived rather than taking it for granted.

Rather than de-emphasizing liberal arts we should require every student, regardless of his primary discipline, to take one such course every semester. In this fashion his eyes might be opened to what is really important in the world: people, not things. He would look beyond the narrow discipline that enables him to make a living while the world beyond him crumbles, instead of merely entering the job market as another servile cog.

If it is "elitism" to question the wisdom of a society of elders who have made the biggest mess the world has ever been in — so be it!

Humphrey's Party Unity Plan Looks Difficult To Accomplish

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Hubert Humphrey has a beat-Nixon plan which may be the Democrats' best hope.

In effect it would help Sen. Edmund Muskie and hurt Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Humphrey believes the Democratic party simply can't afford to spend the money, time and energy and cut itself to pieces in a series of political blood-letting primaries.

Instead, it must save its money, its talent and its unity for the real contest against President Nixon.

HUMPHREY IS URGING his colleagues to avoid what he calls "this path to political disaster.' His alternative:

1. — Encourage every Democratic presidential aspirant to get maximum exposure throughout 1971 to show how they stand with party workers, with Democratic voters and with the whole electorate.

2. — By December next year it will almost certainly be evident which candidate has a commanding lead.

3. — At that time the rivals and the party leaders should unite behind him to bring about his nomination under circumstances to enable him to enter the championship bout with a good chance of winning.

IS IT DESIRABLE? Can it be done?

Humphrey is quite aware that it has never happened before and that usually the Democrats fight harder and more bitterly over the nomination than the Republicans.

His view is that today's circumstances are different and demand a way to the nomination which doesn't tear the party apart and dissipate its lean resources. His arguments:

His own election in Minnesota this November and that of a Democratic governor show what can be achieved when the dissident factions of the party are brought together in the common cause of victory.

The Democrats, already $9.5 million in debt, simply can't command the money to conduct a nationwide series of primaries against each other and expect to get enough contributions to pay for an effective campaign in the finals.

Unless campaign spending is radically cut by law, the Democrats will be at a perilous disadvantage in '72. Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien estimates that the GOP will have about $50 million to spend on the presidential campaign, Democrats $5 million to $10 million.

The overriding need of the Democratic party is to achieve political unity rather than dissipate it in the strife of primaries.

And the drumbeat of all of Humphrey's advice to the party is: Don't underestimate the power of President Nixon. Get ready to focus all our resources on the main event.

CAN HUMPHREY bring it off? Conceivably — but there is one major argument against it and one barrier in front of it.

At the very time when the Democratic party is trying to democratize the nominating convention and lead the way to "participation politics," can it afford to put the nomination so visibly in the hands of the party leadership? This could alienate many normally pro-Democratic voters.

Different Christmas Play – By Very Different Cast

By Ernest B. Furgurson

WASHINGTON — Before the lights dim, the cast and stagehands rap with the audience, hugging sweethearts and mothers, joking with kids. One actor sits still while a girl friend combs out his Afro natural.

The audience, in the auditorium of a downtown Unitarian church, is black and white. The blacks are dressed as if for Sunday, the whites mostly in sweaters and slacks, for a weekday evening's informal entertainment.

The set is a plain but realistic men's prison dormitory. Bunks, stools, wall lockers, a table with the words "Ain't No Love" scrawled on the side.

To warm up, the cast sings a few songs, makes living group statues expressing fear, sorrow and hope, and takes turns demonstrating versions of the ghetto strut that used to be called hot-dogging.

THE PLAY is titled "Christmas in Time." A master of ceremonies explains, "We all already know about white Christmas — this production is going to tell us about a black Christmas."

The house lights drop, the footlights go up and a perfectly cast company begins its work. A primping pimp called Sporting Life and his flunky, Weasel; a mostly comic team named Lookout Fats and Stickemup Slim; a studious newcomer called Youngun; a bitter veteran named Hardrock; a silent, depressed Confucius and his brother Joe-Joe, just out of solitary for Christmas, and a cute homo prison mailman called Flossie.

By the time each character has established himself, the bitterness beneath their horseplay is clear. Then Hardrock states it:

"Black Christmas is one where there's no turkey on the table. . . and someone's missing. Usually it is the old man. It's where everyone is taking and no one is giving, because if you want anything you have to take it."

WEASEL SNEAKS in with a bottle of prison-made rotgut under his jacket. "Have a drink," one man says to the reluctant Youngun. "It'll help you forget Christmas."

Another reads a letter from home, about the baby being scared by Santa Claus. The others laugh. He responds. "Suppose you ran into a big old fat black cat with a red suit and white beard and saying 'Ho, ho, ho!'? That'd scare you to death, man."

After Flossie appears and everyone on stage seems softened by his/her affection, the hitherto braggardly Sporting Life narrates a ghetto version of the first Christmas.

It's about this cat who just got out of jail and went to his pregnant wife and tried to find her a bed. Finally they spent the night on a flophouse floor, and their baby was born there. The three men who pass by and testify to the event are "one big-time numbers writer one boss crapshooter and one professional stickup man."

"The last word I got about the baby he was uptight had jumped bail and was doing good out on the West Coast," Sporting Life concludes, and his brothers approve his version.

Reading back over this disjointed description, I realize it gives no inkling of the impact the play had on those watching, who stood and applauded till their palms were sore when it was over. You need to have been there.

You also need to know that the production was perfectly cast because the actors were playing themselves: they are prisoners at the District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Va.

They are members of a group called the Inner Voices which began performing inside the prison last year and now has taken its talent into the community. Besides "Christmas in Time," they have mastered two other productions, a tribue to Martin Luther King and a series of skits performed at local schools and on educational television offering the voices of experience on why drug abuse is suicidal.

THE SWEETHEARTS and relatives out front come to every performance. It is a kind of extra visiting privilege, a dividend for those who take part on and backstage.

Holiday Spirit Brings Brief Respite From Board's Secrecy Phobia

We sort of smiled in sympathy last summer when they announced they were going to collect 800,000 Betty Crocker box tops to trade in for a kidney machine. We gave them as much chance as a youngster collecting tinfoil from Lifesavers to build a battleship.

But just the other day, Recreation Director Bill Gordon of Marinwood revealed they've already got something like 750,000 box tops, and will soon be able to plunk down their box tops to claim a new kidney machine.

The spirit of helping other is especially pronounced this time of year, says Gordon. Cub Scout Pack 64 is collecting clothes, toys and a canned goods for families in need. And the Funsters (senior citizens) are still campaigning for money for the Nathan Seidenberg Fund, to help children of Highway Patrolman Seidenberg, who died in an auto crash in October.

For a brief moment this time of year, the spirit of giving and helping provides welcome respite from violence and hate.

COME JANUARY, we'll get right back to clobbering each other over such burning issues as Civic Center security.

The public will put up with a lot, when the occasion calls for it. When security measures sealed off the Civic Center buildings after the Oct. 8 courtroom bombing, the big majority took it in stride. They even put up with body and baggage searches.

Now, after two months of the stop-and-frisk system, which seems to be getting more intense as weeks go by, the public is showing signs of discontent and even revolt.

We hope that the new year will permit a general relaxation in the rules, although a return to normal is not likely, at least until disposition of the Angela Davis case.

EVENTS OF THE last two months give us an inkling of how a police state can operate.

The supervisors on Oct. 13 ordered a special 18-man security force to guard the entrances, and authorized "related physical changes" to seal off the accesses around the building.

We didn't realize how extensive those "related physical changes" would be until the other day when they awarded contracts for about $40,000 in grillwork and called for bids on steel fences at both ends of the building.

There's an example of how fear of conspiratorial attack can be used to justify government by secrecy. There's no reason why those fences would not have been just as effective, had they been discussed in public before going to bid.

THE COUNTY supervisors are trying to get legal sanction for even secrecy. Among bills proposed for 1971 is an amendment to the Ralph M. Brown Act to permit local governments can meet in secret "to protect citizens, public buildings, facilities, and services from revolutionary or conspiratorial attack, in those instances were effectiveness of security measures would be vitiated by public revelation."

In plain language, that means: in protecting you from conspiratorial attack, we will meet in secret whenever we feel public disclosure might hurt the effectiveness of security.

That bill is not yet law. It hasn't even been introduced as yet. And the legislators may not even want to touch it.

And yet, even without benefit of such a law, the county supervisors have seen fit to quietly build a steel fence with barbed wire on top. The public had no chance to discuss the pro and con; they didn't even know such a fence was planned.

WE'RE NOT asking them to reveal any secret codes the sheriff may use over his walkie talkie, or detailed battle plans in the event of a emergency. But certainly, the public has enough sense and enough and enough taxes invested in the Civic Center to be consulted before fences or guard towers are erected.

If they can spring a steel fence with barbed wire around one end of the Civic Center, even without benefit of their hoped-for new law, you can imagine what they'll do if they ever succeed in getting that law passed.

Any future fence, barricade, gun tower, moat, or machine gun nest could be hatched in secrecy, all in the name of public security, "whose effectiveness would be vitiated by public revelation."

President Weakens Own Pledge On Open Housing

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon says his administration is going to enforce the open housing laws, but is not going to force integration on the suburbs. That sounds like another loud argument getting ready to happen.

Just as he did in the case of school desegregation, Nixon said he would apply the letter of the law to the even more emotional field of housing. He said that forbids federal housing or urban renewal aid to communities that practice discrimination and show no sign of changing.

ALL CLEAR so far. But then the President moved into the area of the spirit of the law, and gave what he interprets it not to mean. It doesn't mean, he said "forced integration of the suburbs." That's where the hatchet hits the rock.

First, "forced integration" is one of those phrases like "free choice" or "right to work." Who would be in favor of the picture "forced integration" evokes—the massive power of a pitiless federal government crushing the will of decent, citizens whose only sin is seeking a quiet safe neighborhood where they can rear their children and raise flowers in peace and safety?

Except that there are people who don't get that image. They see a picture of the racist or selfish middle and upper classes setting themselves up in suburban comfort and privilege while using every device imaginable to keep blacks and poor people locked in the rundown inner cities. They see use of "forced integration" as an attempt to make enforcement of a long-delayed civil right sound tyrannical, or ridiculous, as speed limits might if called "forced slow driving" laws.

THE SECOND source of controversy is more legalistic. The President obviously is right in saying he will enforce the law and no more. But while the President certainly has to have an understanding of what the law provides, his opinion in that regard is not final. The same Constitution that tells him to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed" reserves to the courts final judgment of exactly what the law requires and forbids.

If the Nixon declaration should mean that the administration intends to give a soft interpretation to the open housing laws, the President should not count on everyone placidly accepting his word that a matter of "forced integration" is involved.

This is of some note because the open housing issue is moving into a new phase. With the law flatly forbidding owners, landlords and real estate operators from denying housing to anyone because of their race, religion or national origin, overt discrimination has started to fade.

'A Little Corn And Oil' Has Come A Long Way

More than three quarters of a century ago, Mark Twain, in an essay on "Purchasing Civic Virtue," cited what he saw as parallels between the United States of that day and the Roman Empire in the years of its decay.

Teachers of his youth, Mark Twain recalled, had pointed to the virtues of republican Rome and how they were lost in the so-called glories of the empire.

"The teacher reminded us that Rome's liberties were not auctioned off in a day," he wrote, "but were bought slowly, gradually, little by little; first with a little corn and oil for the exceedingly poor and wretched, later with corn and oil for voters who were not quite so poor, later still with corn and oil for pretty much every man that had a vote to sell — exactly our own history over again . . .

"We have the two Roman conditions: stupendous wealth with its inevitable corruptions and moral blight, and the corn and oil pensions — that is to say, vote bribes, which have taken away the pride of thousands of tempted men and turned them into willing alms receivers and unashamed."

THE GOVERNMENT largesse (or vote bribes) against which the sage of Hannibal was railing consisted of what he saw as unconscionable extension of Civil War pensions.

Their effect on the whole American body politic cannot have been great. But the seed had been planted.

Could Sam Clemens have foreseen how that seed would grow and flower by 1970, no doubt he would have been seized by an extreme fit of apoplexy. It would have confirmed all too completely his thesis in "Purchasing Civic Virtue" that the United States was headed toward monarchism — whether or not the populace actually crowned its hero as did the Romans.

THE VOTE BRIBES that Mark Twain saw in an extension of war service pensions were as nothing compared to the vote bribes of our generation in the form of the dole, federal "allotments" to local governments, federal "grants" to research organizations, federal contracts which make whole sections of the nation dependent for a major source of livelihood on the whims of those in power (as, for instance, the Seattle area on government contracts to the Boeing Aircraft Corp., the San Francisco Peninsula on government spending on the space program).

Other observers in recent years have seen parallels between the course of the United States and that of Rome in the years of its downfall. Mark Twain detected the beginning long ago. He was ahead of his time.

NO BETTER PROOF of his thesis is needed than the cries of outrage heard from some quarters because President Nixon and Governor Reagan have suggested that able-bodied persons be required to work for the taxpayers' money handed to them as welfare.

What started as "a little corn and oil" has become a great deal more. And it is inevitable that what started as distribution of alms to the helpless needy has turned into what Mark Twain called it: a vast "vote bribe" which has robbed both those receiving it and those taxed to pay it of much of their freedom.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Sen.-elect Peter H. Behr will take office in two weeks for what normally would be a four-year term. But he very well may have to face a re-election campaign in two years.

His problem is that redistricting of the state this coming legislative session almost certainly means radical surgery on his Fourth Senatorial District.

The only way Behr will be able to avoid facing re-election will be to be living in the Fourth District in 1972 — whereever it may be by then — and to be lucky enough to have no other incumbent senator lumped into the redrawn district. It now includes all of Marin and Napa and most of Solano.

BEHR'S PROBLEM starts with the fact that San Francisco does not have enough population. With 20 million people in the state and 40 senators to go around, each of the senate districts will need about 500,000 people. San Francisco, however, has only 710,000 people while it has two senators, Democrat George Moscone and Republican Milton Marks.

Two senators will have to spell almost a million people, leaving San Francisco with a deficit of some 290,000 souls.

Some thought had been given to picking up the 290,000 in northern San Mateo County. It would have become part of Moscone's district since it had a Democratic edge in registration.

But this solution had to be junked when Democrat Arlen Gregorio won in San Mateo. He will need those Democratic votes in the northern part of his county.

Democrat John Holmdahl won in the East Bay, foreclosing a move there to pick up San Francisco's deficit. That left Marin as the obvious target. There's even a precedent in Rep. William S. Mailliard, whose Sixth Congressional District includes western San Francisco and most of Marin.

SAN FRANCISCO'S population deficit could not be covered just by Marin's 204,000 total. The San Francisco district could make it up, however, by taking in Sonoma County south of Santa Rosa. The net effect would be to add to one of San Francisco's senate districts everyone living in the Seventh Assembly District now represented by William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

San Francisco, of course, would have to abandon its present system of electing each senator at-large.

The northern end of Bagley's district, incidentally, probably will be lopped off, making the Seventh District again a largely Marin creature. Most of Sonoma thus may get its own assemblyman.

The betting in the Senate redistricting is that Marks will be the one to get the district extended northward. Moscone, after all, is a leader of the majority party, and presumably would use that power to hold onto his more comfortable base at home.

Marin, it seems, again will become a political football for San Francisco's benefit.

And Behr is likely to get bruised when the football gets kicked.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Confusion In Terms On 'Liberal Arts'

Your editorial "Devotion to Liberal Arts: Cult of the Dilettante" (Dec. 12) has an unconvincing aspect to it. The suggestion of the article is that the liberal arts vis a vis the productive arts are useless and unimportant. As a consequence, the liberal arts should be de-emphasized in favor of engineering, science (technology, I assume) and business. This is the view of Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, of acting President Earl W. Jones of Sonoma State College, and of the editor.

The troublesome aspect of this argument is that (a) it is a judgment about the most important things in our society, namely, how we are to educate the young, and, implicitly, what are the aims and purposes of our society as a whole; and (b) it is a judgment that makes use of liberal education. Dr. Hayakawa, President Jones, and editor Craemer are not speaking as engineers, technologists or businessmen when they pronounce on the importance of the liberal arts. This "wisdom" which they are using (for non-productive purposes incidentally) pertains to liberal education.

Dr. Hayakawa rightly points out that the ancient Greeks promoted "liberal education" apart from the productive arts. They did this because they saw that it was not only important to know how to make better products, but it was more important to know how to use them. Knowledge is power only for the wise man . . .

Western civilization grew upon these "liberal arts," and it collapses today, in large measure, because they have eroded. When Dr. Hayakawa observes that "campus unrest is centered in liberal arts areas" is he not talking about the false coin of liberal education?

The question is not whether to keep the liberal arts. The question itself is an exercise of the liberal arts. The question is today, as ever, what is the truth of things? Dr. Hayakawa does not think it is to be found in the version of liberal education abroad in our colleges. That is wise. When sociology, semantics, and the so-called humanities — all tending toward social engineering (a productive skill) — are substituted for the genuine and time honored liberal arts this is an atrocity . . .

On Comparing Pay Of Teachers

Let's set the record straight for Mr. (Hyman I.) Krongard, the school teacher, about the earnings of overpaid tradesmen and the underpaid teachers ("Readers Say," Dec. 3). The actual pay of the carpenter, plumber and electrician in the Bay Area ranges from $6.28 to $7.97½ per hour when employed. (No tenure.) The unemployment rate for these trades has varied from 25 to 50 per cent, it is therefore very obvious that the delectable plumn in the teaching profession known as tenure is denied to all except teachers. I don't know of another occupation that rewards the inefficient as well as the deserving a yearly raise plus a cost of living adjustment . . .

I have additional news for this gentleman. He seems to think that payroll deduction is limited to teachers alone. I sincerely hope that his teaching is far superior to his research . . . otherwise he is one of the grossly overpaid teachers in our school system . . .

If we are to judge the quality of education by the number of unmotivated, unprepared and uneducated students graduating from our schools today I would say that many tenured, unmotivated teachers are accepting especially fine salaries under false pretenses and are grossly overpaid for the rubbish that they teach. As for his deep compassion for his fellow underpaid teachers I would suggest that he change his priorities as follows: 1. To the overburdened taxpayers. 2. To the thousands of professional people in the fields of engineering, accounting, business executives who are unemployed and may never be able to find jobs again in their chosen fields because of the state of the economy in this country today. 3. To the thousands of store clerks, secretaries, etc., who earn from $2 to $3.50 per hour and must work 50 weeks per year to qualify for two weeks vacation.

In closing, I regard the teaching profession very highly . . . I have a daughter with teaching credentials in both California and Massachusetts and a son at Ohio State College school of agriculture at Wooster, O., doing research work in entomology. I believe that as parents my wife and I had a great deal of influence in guiding our two children into the educational field. We both feel very strongly that it is a very vital and prestigious occupation, well paid and with the opportunity for dedicated professionals to guide our youth in the right direction.

Need More Liberal Arts Emphasis

As a liberal arts graduate who spend part of his productive time teaching liberal arts subject (interpersonal communication) at College of Marin I was greatly offended by your Saturday editorial (Dec. 12) on the subject. Apparently you consider thinking to be a non-productive activity that should be de-emphasized.

I admired Dr. S.I. Hayakawa greatly as a semantics scholar to whom I owe much. But in politics he is off base more frequently than on target, and his attempts to manipulate history to support an anti-intellectual bias are tortuous to say the least. The quality that made ancient Greece what it was was not the physical labor of its slaves — they existed in every ancient country — but precisely the efforts of those "non-productive dilenttantes" in analytical and constructive thinking about the society in which they lived rather than taking it for granted.

Rather than de-emphasizing liberal arts we should require every student, regardless of his primary discipline, to take one such course every semester. In this fashion his eyes might be opened to what is really important in the world: people, not things. He would look beyond the narrow discipline that enables him to make a living while the world beyond him crumbles, instead of merely entering the job market as another servile cog.

If it is "elitism" to question the wisdom of a society of elders who have made the biggest mess the world has ever been in — so be it!

Humphrey's Party Unity Plan Looks Difficult To Accomplish

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Hubert Humphrey has a beat-Nixon plan which may be the Democrats' best hope.

In effect it would help Sen. Edmund Muskie and hurt Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Humphrey believes the Democratic party simply can't afford to spend the money, time and energy and cut itself to pieces in a series of political blood-letting primaries.

Instead, it must save its money, its talent and its unity for the real contest against President Nixon.

HUMPHREY IS URGING his colleagues to avoid what he calls "this path to political disaster.' His alternative:

1. — Encourage every Democratic presidential aspirant to get maximum exposure throughout 1971 to show how they stand with party workers, with Democratic voters and with the whole electorate.

2. — By December next year it will almost certainly be evident which candidate has a commanding lead.

3. — At that time the rivals and the party leaders should unite behind him to bring about his nomination under circumstances to enable him to enter the championship bout with a good chance of winning.

IS IT DESIRABLE? Can it be done?

Humphrey is quite aware that it has never happened before and that usually the Democrats fight harder and more bitterly over the nomination than the Republicans.

His view is that today's circumstances are different and demand a way to the nomination which doesn't tear the party apart and dissipate its lean resources. His arguments:

His own election in Minnesota this November and that of a Democratic governor show what can be achieved when the dissident factions of the party are brought together in the common cause of victory.

The Democrats, already $9.5 million in debt, simply can't command the money to conduct a nationwide series of primaries against each other and expect to get enough contributions to pay for an effective campaign in the finals.

Unless campaign spending is radically cut by law, the Democrats will be at a perilous disadvantage in '72. Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien estimates that the GOP will have about $50 million to spend on the presidential campaign, Democrats $5 million to $10 million.

The overriding need of the Democratic party is to achieve political unity rather than dissipate it in the strife of primaries.

And the drumbeat of all of Humphrey's advice to the party is: Don't underestimate the power of President Nixon. Get ready to focus all our resources on the main event.

CAN HUMPHREY bring it off? Conceivably — but there is one major argument against it and one barrier in front of it.

At the very time when the Democratic party is trying to democratize the nominating convention and lead the way to "participation politics," can it afford to put the nomination so visibly in the hands of the party leadership? This could alienate many normally pro-Democratic voters.

Different Christmas Play — By Very Different Cast

By Ernest B. Furgurson

WASHINGTON — Before the lights dim, the cast and stagehands rap with the audience, hugging sweethearts and mothers, joking with kids. One actor sits still while a girl friend combs out his Afro natural.

The audience, in the auditorium of a downtown Unitarian church, is black and white. The blacks are dressed as if for Sunday, the whites mostly in sweaters and slacks, for a weekday evening's informal entertainment.

The set is a plain but realistic men's prison dormitory. Bunks, stools, wall lockers, a table with the words "Ain't No Love" scrawled on the side.

To warm up, the cast sings a few songs, makes living group statues expressing fear, sorrow and hope, and takes turns demonstrating versions of the ghetto strut that used to be called hot-dogging.

THE PLAY is titled "Christmas in Time." A master of ceremonies explains, "We all already know about white Christmas — this production is going to tell us about a black Christmas."

The house lights drop, the footlights go up and a perfectly cast company begins its work. A primping pimp called Sporting Life and his flunky, Weasel; a mostly comic team named Lookout Fats and Stickemup Slim; a studious newcomer called Youngun; a bitter veteran named Hardrock; a silent, depressed Confucius and his brother Joe-Joe, just out of solitary for Christmas, and a cute homo prison mailman called Flossie.

By the time each character has established himself, the bitterness beneath their horseplay is clear. Then Hardrock states it:

"Black Christmas is one where there's no turkey on the table. . . and someone's missing. Usually it is the old man. It's where everyone is taking and no one is giving, because if you want anything you have to take it."

WEASEL SNEAKS in with a bottle of prison-made rotgut under his jacket. "Have a drink," one man says to the reluctant Youngun. "It'll help you forget Christmas."

Another reads a letter from home, about the baby being scared by Santa Claus. The others laugh. He responds. "Suppose you ran into a big old fat black cat with a red suit and white beard and saying 'Ho, ho, ho!'? That'd scare you to death, man."

After Flossie appears and everyone on stage seems softened by his/her affection, the hitherto braggardly Sporting Life narrates a ghetto version of the first Christmas.

It's about this cat who just got out of jail and went to his pregnant wife and tried to find her a bed. Finally they spent the night on a flophouse floor, and their baby was born there. The three men who pass by and testify to the event are "one big-time numbers writer one boss crapshooter and one professional stickup man."

"The last word I got abou the baby he was uptight had jumped bail and wa doing good out on the Wes Coast," Sporting Life concludes, and his brothers approve his version.

Reading back over this disjointed description, I realize it gives no inkling of the impact the play had on those watching, who stood and applauded till their palms were sore when i was over. You need to hav been there.

You also need to know that the production was perfectly cast because the actors were playin themselves: they are prisoners at the District of Columbia Reformatory a Lorton, Va.

They are members of group called the Inne Voices which began performing inside the prison last year and now has take its talent into the community. Besides "Christmas in Time," they have mastered two other productions, a tribue to Martin Luther King and a series of skits performed at local schools and on educational television offering the voices of experience on why drug abuse is suicidal.

THE SWEETHEART and relatives out front com to every performance. It i a kind of extra visiting privilege, a dividend for thos who take part on and back stage.

Holiday Spirit Brings Brief Respite From Board's Secrecy Phobia

We sort of smiled in sympathy last summer when they announced they were going to collect 800,000 Betty Crocker box tops to trade in for a kidney machine. We gave them as much chance as a youngster collecting tinfoil from Lifesavers to build a battleship.

But just the other day, Recreation Director Bill Gordon of Marinwood revealed they've already got something like 750,000 box tops, and will soon be able to plunk down their box tops to claim a new kidney machine.

The spirit of helping other is especially pronounced this time of year, says Gordon. Cub Scout Pack 64 is collecting clothes, toys and a canned goods for families in need. And the Funsters (senior citizens) are still campaigning for money for the Nathan Seidenberg Fund, to help children of Highway Patrolman Seidenberg, who died in an auto crash in October.

For a brief moment this time of year, the spirit of giving and helping provides welcome respite from violence and hate.

COME JANUARY, we'll get right back to clobbering each other over such burning issues as Civic Center security.

The public will put up with a lot, when the occasion calls for it. When security measures sealed off the Civic Center buildings after the Oct. 8 courtroom bombing, the big majority took it in stride. They even put up with body and baggage searches.

Now, after two months of the stop-and-frisk system, which seems to be getting more intense as weeks go by, the public is showing signs of discontent and even revolt.

We hope that the new year will permit a general relaxation in the rules, although a return to normal is not likely, at least until disposition of the Angela Davis case.

EVENTS OF THE last two months give us an inkling of how a police state can operate.

The supervisors on Oct. 13 ordered a special 18-man security force to guard the entrances, and authorized "related physical changes" to seal off the accesses around the building.

We didn't realize how extensive those "related physical changes" would be until the other day when they awarded contracts for about $40,000 in grillwork and called for bids on steel fences at both ends of the building.

There's an example of how fear of conspiratorial attack can be used to justify government by secrecy. There's no reason why those fences would not have been just as effective, had they been discussed in public before going to bid.

THE COUNTY supervisors are trying to get legal sanction for even secrecy. Among bills proposed for 1971 is an amendment to the Ralph M. Brown Act to permit local governments can meet in secret "to protect citizens, public buildings, facilities, and services from revolutionary or conspiratorial attack, in those instances were effectiveness of security measures would be vitiated by public revelation."

In plain language, that means: in protecting you from conspiratorial attack, we will meet in secret whenever we feel public disclosure might hurt the effectiveness of security.

That bill is not yet law. It hasn't even been introduced as yet. And the legislators may not even want to touch it.

And yet, even without benefit of such a law, the county supervisors have seen fit to quietly build a steel fence with barbed wire on top. The public had no chance to discuss the pro and con; they didn't even know such a fence was planned.

WE'RE NOT asking them to reveal any secret codes the sheriff may use over his walkie talkie, or detailed battle plans in the event of a emergency. But certainly, the public has enough sense and enough and enough taxes invested in the Civic Center to be consulted before fences or guard towers are erected.

If they can spring a steel fence with barbed wire around one end of the Civic Center, even without benefit of their hoped-for new law, you can imagine what they'll do if they ever succeed in getting that law passed.

Any future fence, barricade, gun tower, moat, or machine gun nest could be hatched in secrecy, all in the name of public security, "whose effectiveness would be vitiated by public revelation."

President Weakens Own Pledge On Open Housing

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon says his administration is going to enforce the open housing laws, but is not going to force integration on the suburbs. That sounds like another loud argument getting ready to happen.

Just as he did in the case of school desegregation, Nixon said he would apply the letter of the law to the even more emotional field of housing. He said that forbids federal housing or urban renewal aid to communities that practice discrimination and show no sign of changing.

ALL CLEAR so far. But then the President moved into the area of the spirit of the law, and gave what he interprets it not to mean. It doesn't mean, he said "forced integration of the suburbs." That's where the hatchet hits the rock.

First, "forced integration" is one of those phrases like "free choice" or "right to work." Who would be in favor of the picture "forced integration" evokes—the massive power of a pitiless federal government crushing the will of decent, citizens whose only sin is seeking a quiet safe neighborhood where they can rear their children and raise flowers in peace and safety?

Except that there are people who don't get that image. They see a picture of the racist or selfish middle and upper classes setting themselves up in suburban comfort and privilege while using every device imaginable to keep blacks and poor people locked in the rundown inner cities. They see use of "forced integration" as an attempt to make enforcement of a long-delayed civil right sound tyrannical, or ridiculous, as speed limits might if called "forced slow driving" laws.

THE SECOND source of controversy is more legalistic. The President obviously is right in saying he will enforce the law and no more. But while the President certainly has to have an understanding of what the law provides, his opinion in that regard is not final. The same Constitution that tells him to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed" reserves to the courts final judgment of exactly what the law requires and forbids.

If the Nixon declaration should mean that the administration intends to give a soft interpretation to the open housing laws, the President should not count on everyone placidly accepting his word that a matter of "forced integration" is involved.

This is of some note because the open housing issue is moving into a new phase. With the law flatly forbidding owners, landlords and real estate operators from denying housing to anyone because of their race, religion or national origin, overt discrimination has started to fade.

High Court Drops U.S. Voting Age

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled today that 18-year-olds may vote in federal elections for presidential and congressional candidates but held that state voting age laws will continue to govern state and local contests.

The justices were in greater agreement in upholding two other key sections of the law — one striking down state residency rules of beyond 30 days for voting in presidential elections, and the other banning throughout the country literacy tests for voting.

Black said that where Congress attempted to remedy racial discrimination by the states, its authority was enhanced by the 14th Amendment's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws" and other post-Civil War amendments.

But he said Congress had no foundation in the Civil War amendments for changing the voting age for the states.

On the other hand, legislation on the voting age in national elections, where Congress has more power, need not be tied to eliminating racial discrimination, he said.

Four justices — William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall — said the 18-year-old vote law should have been extended to state and local elections.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John M. Harlan, Potter Stewart and Harry A. Blackmun agreed however with Black that Congress could not interfere with the age set for voters by the states for nonfederal elections.

The 18-year-old vote was brought to a direct Supreme Court test because it was enacted in the form of legislation rather than the more drawn out process of a constitutional amendment requiring ratification by the states.

The Court decision means that all but three states must revamp their voting procedures in national elections to lower the age eligibility to 18. Georgia, Alaska and Kentucky

Marinite Convicted Of Smuggling Dope

I-J Special Report

HERAKLION, Greece — A Marin County man and four Northern Californians were convicted Saturday of smuggling hashish worth $500,000 into Greece last August.

Robert F. Black, 29, of Forest Knolls, was sentenced to 10 years in prison, as were three of his accomplices. A fourth got nine years. Black also is wanted in Marin.

Judicial authorities today set for February their appeal. Meanwhile, they will be held in Chanea Prison on the island of Crete. If their appeal is rejected, they are expected to be transferred to the island of Corfu, where most narcotics violators are kept, judicial officials said.

The wives of Black and two of the other accomplices said they would stay on Crete until their husbands' appeal is heard in February. The three women were in court for the three-day trial, and wept when the sentence was declared by the three-member court.

Black, however, still faces a no bail bench warrant issued for him in November by Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Black and four other persons were arrested in January 1969 in a $350,000 drug raid in Tamalpais Valley. Their trial was delayed by appeals, and a date still has not been set.

The raid disclosed a cache of LSD, hashish and marijuana in an antique shop said to be fronting for a narcotics dealing operation. At that time, Black listed his address as 3 Lincoln Avenue, Sausalito.

Marin drug officials said at that time that the suspects were real "pros" in narcotics dealing, and that the hashish came from Beirut, Lebanon. Black and his accomplices in the Greek trial also got their hashish in Lebanon.

Black's accomplices were John Moore, 50, Phillip Erwin Amos, 30, and Kenneth Connell, 28, all of Sacramento, and David Lee Mantell, 30, of San Francisco.

Their lawyers said they

28 Killed In Hotel Blaze; 19 Others Die In Fires

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Fires killed at least 47 persons across the nation Sunday—28 of them in an exclusive hotel in Tucson, Ariz., and a family of seven in their tarpaper shack in Grafton, N.H.

At least 63 other persons were injured and damages passed the half-million-dollar mark.

Arson was suspected in the fire which killed 28 and injured at least 44 early Sunday at Tucson's plush, 200-room Pioneer Hotel. Some of the victims — including four children — jumped from upper-floor windows. Damage was estimated at $300,000.

New Hampshire fire officials today were investigating the blaze which destroyed a two-room tarpaper shack, killing Raymond and Bernice Pickard, their three children and two other children who were state wards.

All of the victims were found dead in their beds. The shack had burned down by the time firemen arrived. Authorities said the children ranged in age from eight months to 16 years.

An 11-year-old boy was killed

Poland Gets Hardline Politburo; Party Chief Gomulka Replaced

WARSAW (UPI)—Calm began to return to rebellious Poland today with the announcement that Wladyslaw Gomulka had been ousted as leader of the nation's Communist party and replaced by Edward Gierek. Gierek began talks today to try to straighten out the country's economy.

Warsaw Radio said 80 per cent of the shipyard workers were back at their jobs in Gdansk (Danzig) and Gdynia, where the riots that finally toppled Gomulka began last Monday. There was no word from the other Baltic seaport of Szczecin (Stettin), where the worst rioting occurred, and which was still sealed off from the rest of the nation.

In Warsaw, the tension of the past week seemed to be lifting. There had been rumors of a general strike here today' but none materialized and residents of the capital went about their work, gossiping and joking about the leadership changes.

Gomulka, 65, was fired Sunday after 14 years of leadership and the 57-year-old Gierek, a former miner and engineer, was named his successor in an attempt to end the crisis and rebuild the nation's economy.

Telephone connections to Gdansk and Gdynia were restored. It was believed the Baltic region was still tense, specially in Szczecin, where deaths and injuries ran high and the riots left a sharp taste of bitterness that will take months—or years—to erase.

A Soviet Embassy official denied that Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev or any other high Russian official was here recently to check on the riots or oversee the change of leadership in the Polish party.

Glos Pracy, the Polish trade union newspaper, called the leadership change a "turning point...the moment of political decisions which take into account the situation that has arisen and which have met halfway the expectations of workers and of all the working people in general."

Ignacio Man Is Returned In Slaying Of Policeman

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The man accused of killing patrolman Richard P. Radetich of Ignacio has been returned here from the Midwest where he was arrested a month ago.

Wesley Allen Johnson, 26, accused of shooting Radetich, as the San Francisco officer wrote out a parking ticket arrived by plane Saturday manacled to a homicide inspector.

The suspect, also known as Joe Allen Johnson, was then whisked from the airport in an unmarked car to San Francisco County Jail.

He was booked on suspicion of murder, assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer, attempted armed robbery, and being in possession of a firearm as a convict.

The charges stemmed from — in addition to the murder — a shoot-out with police last year during an attempted robbery of a Western Union office on Market Street.

Bail was set at $50,000, but no court appearance had been scheduled today.

Johnson, who has a long police record, was brought back from Dayton, Ohio, where he had been held since Nov. 7 on a federal warrant charging him with interstate flight to avoid prosecution. He was arrested in nearby Xenia by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, then resisted extradition.

Radetich of 468 Via Del Plano was shot in the head in the pre-dawn hours as he wrote out a ticket for a parked car. He died several hours later.

Father Of 3 Dies In Mill Valley Fire

An intense fire swept a stucco house in Mill Valley last night, killing its three occupants — a man and two pets.

The Marin County Coroner's Office identified the man as Edward Snyder, 44, a maintenance worker for the Tamalpais High School District. The family dog and a pet rabbit also died in the blaze.

Firemen said they responded to the alarm at 97 Lomita Drive at 8:05 p.m. to find the kitchen and living room "completely involved" in flames. The intense heat had exploded many of the windows, they said.

A fireman who entered a rear door found Snyder face down on the floor in the back bedroom. He was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage and rushed to Marin General Hospital by ambulance, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Deputy Coroner Jack Darblay said death apparently was due to smoke and carbon monoxide inhalation.

Snyder's wife, Jeanne, and their three children, Charles, Cookie and Jeanne, were attending a church service when the fire broke out, Darblay said.

Fire Chief Joseph E. Regalia said the fire apparently started near the fireplace, where the family reportedly had been burning magazines earlier in the day. He estimated damage to the house at $10,000.

Snyder, a former Mill Valley city employee, had lived six years in Marin and 20 years in California. Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Angela Davis Loses Appeal

By PAT ANGLE

Black militant Angela Y. Davis was turned down today in her appeal to a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in what appeared to be her last legal means to block extradition to California.

All other efforts before New York state courts and lower federal courts had failed to overturn a Marin County request that she be extradited.

"I find no legal basis for staying her extradition," said Justice John M. Harlan in denying the application, according to United Press International.

The action came as widespread activist support for the former philosophy instructor was swelling throughout the country.

One such rally of supporters was held Saturday night in Marin City where a sympathetic audience of approximately 100 persons was told the government is determined to murder Miss Davis in order to silence her.

Massive public support is needed to free her, five persons told the rally for Miss Davis' defense.

The speakers, who drew cheers and applause from the supporters of the Black activist included her sister, Fania Davis Jordan; her attorney, Terence Hallinan; and Peggy Jackson sister of Jonathan Jackson who was killed in the shootout Aug. 7 at the Marin Hall of Justice. Ellis Shepher of the Bay Area Committee to Free Angela Davis and Royce McLemore, a Marin City resident, also spoke.

Hallinan, who termed Miss Davis, "a brilliant, brilliant woman," said she is charged with "four capital offenses," murder, kidnapping, conspiracy to commit murder and conspiracy to kidnap, all punishable by death.

"After we in this country have seen what has happened to Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, Fred Hampton and dozens of others, we should have no doubt about what the ruling

Massive Storm Is Tapering Off

The season's latest massive storm, which whipped the entire state during the weekend, tapered off in Marin during this morning's commute hours after dumping more than two inches of rain on Sausalito.

The new storm piled about five feet of snow at some Southern California locations Saturday stranding 1,000 travelers on Highway 5 between Los Angeles and Bakersfield. The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department provided four-wheel drive vehicles and four helicopters to evacuate some travelers while others walked out after snow plows cleared a path.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said there would be partly clearing skies over Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties tonight, but predicted a 30 per cent chance of showers for tomorrow.

In Marin, the heavy downpour which began at about noon yesterday dumped more than two inches of rain on Sausalito, according to the fire department's 8 a.m. reading. San Rafael was washed by 1.55 inches during the 48 hours ending at noon today.

Other locations in Marin and Southern Sonoma reported 24-hour 8 a.m. readings as: Bolinas, 1.24 inches; Fairfax, 1.07; Larkspur, .74; Novato, 1.35; Petaluma, .75; Point Reyes Station, 1.55; Tiburon, 1.26; and Woodacre, 1.77 inches.

Only major storm damage reported occurred at Inverness where county public works crews worked from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. yesterday clearing slide rubble from county roads, the department said today. Additional information was not available. Elsewhere in Marin, cities reported some tree damage and clogged catch basins.

Travelers warnings continued for heavy snow in the Sierra Nevada and Southern California mountains. The forecast was for poor visibility and gusty winds.

Another storm from the Gulf of Alaska was predicted to hit Northern California by Wednesday and weather bureau predictions say Marin, Southern Sonoma and much of the state can expect a wet, windy Christmas Day.

UAL Boots President; Hotel Group Takes over

CHICAGO (UPI) — George Keck, the personal choice of founder William A. Patterson to head United Air Lines in 1963, was replaced today in a surprise move that put the management of a West Coast hotel company in charge of the finncially ailing airline and its parent firm.

Edward E. Carlson, chairman of Western International Hotels Co., of Seattle, succeeded Keck as president and chief executive of UAL, Inc., the holding company, and will become president of the airline in a few days.

United is the world's second largest airline behind Aeroflot, the Soviet line. In 1969 it carried 30,109,000 passengers and reported 25,484,753,000 revenue passenger miles.

Western International, which operates 60 hotels in 14 countries, was acquired by UAL Aug. 10.

Carlson has no airline experience but long has been a civic leader in Seattle and has wide experience in the travel business. He headed the Seattle World's Fair organization in the early 1960s.

A UAL source said the announcement of Keck's re-

U.S. To Withdraw 17,000 Troops From Asian Bases

TOKYO (UPI) —The United States announced today it is withdrawing 12,000 American servicemen from Japan and 5,000 from Okinawa in a cutback of its military presence in northeast Asia.

Reduction of strength in Japan will bring U.S. forces to a level of about 27,000 from a present figure of 39,000, the lowest since U.S. armed forces came to Japan as conquerers at the end of World War II.

The American withdrawals from Japan and Okinawa were agreed on at a meeting of high level Japanese and American military and diplomatic officials at the Japanese foreign office.

Most of the changes will take effect before the middle of 1971.

Official U.S. sources in Tokyo did not disguise the fact that the cutbacks were inspired by American financial difficulties, since they involved the American relinquishment of bases which a short time ago were deemed irreplaceable for the U.S. military posture in the Far East.

Court Favors Parent Firm In Hughes Fight

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Tate murder trial broke into an uproar today when the three young women defendants began struggling with bailiffs and shouting at the judge that they were not being permitted to conduct their own defense.

Leslie Van Houten slapped a burly sheriff's deputy as he attempted to hold her in her chair on orders of Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older as the defendants were brought into the courtroom for the first time since Dec. 3.

The three young women—Miss Van Houten, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel—were finally pulled from the courtroom by bailiffs, screaming at the judge in defiance.

A few moments later, chief defendant Charles Manson also began shouting at Older and he was taken out of the courtroom.

Maxwell Keith had been appointed by the court to represent Miss Van Houten in place of missing attorney Ronald Hughes but before the new attorney could present a motion for a mistrial for the 20-year-old Miss Van Houten, she was on her feet demanding that another lawyer, Mary Fielder, be appointed in his place.

Crime Didn't Pay

The pair gave station attendant Albert Mitchell a $10 bill, asked for change and then told him it was a holdup when he unlocked the cash register.

Red Shells Explode Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) —The Cambodian Command said today Viet Cong and North Vietnamese units bombarded Cambodian positions slightly more than seven miles from downtown Phnom Penh Sunday night.

Communiques from Saigon said Viet Cong gunners shelled Da Nang Air Base and a nearby U.S. Marine unit and terrorists set off a bomb near a Saigon rail yard.

The Cambodian Command said the Communist mortar attack was against the village of Peam Oknha Ong on the east bank of the Mekong River.

In other parts of Cambodia, the Command said Viet Cong forces blew up another bridge on Highway 4 linking Phnom Penh to the port of Kompon Som.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said four rockets hit Da Nang Air Base early today.

Traffic Toll

CHICAGO (UPI) —The National Safety Council has estimated that between 550 and 650 persons will die in traffic accidents across the nation during this year's three-day Christmas weekend.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

NSA Refused

KENT, Ohio (UPI) —Kent State University has refused the National Student Association (NSA) permission to hold its annual leadership conference on campus next month.

Kent State Dean of Student Affairs Dr. Richard Bredemeir said Sunday University President Robert I. White desired a one-year moratorium fromsuch activities as the result of the May 4 shooting of four students by National Guardsmen.

GIs Fly Out

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. Air Force brought in a fleet of its own planes today to fly 376 American GIs home for Christmas after the South Vietnamese government refused to allow a chartered Pan American airways 747 jumbo jet to land at Tan Son Nhut airbase.

Military sources said the last of the temporarily stranded GIs left late today aboard four Air Force C141 Starlifter jet transport planes. The C141s were rushed to Vietnam after the 747 scheduled to arrive Sunday night failed to arrive.

The Pan Am 747 would have been the first 747 to land in South Vietnam. But the flight was canceled before it left San Francisco after the Saigon government refused permission to land at Tan Son Nhut.

"There are technical problems and the (Tan Son Nhut) landing strip is not available right now for jumbo (747s) jets," a South Vietnamese spokesman said.

Crime On Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sevrious crime climbed 10 per cent nationwide during the first nine months of 1970 with the largest increase reported in the sukburbs, Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced today.

The rate of increase was the lowest for the 9-month period since 1965 and was 1 per cent lower than for the corresponding period of 1969, according to the FBI's uniform crime reports.

Large cities of over 250,00 reported crime up 6 per cent, compared to a 14 per cent rise in the suburbs and 9 per cent in rural areas.

Inflation Burn

LONDON (UPI)—The average contents of a three pence (three cents) box of matches has gone down from 44 to 41, Bryant and May, the nation's largest match manufacturer, said Wednesday.

Bumpers Blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Five law students organized under the name SMASH said today the government's plan to require better bumpers on cars is so weak it would not even insure a car would run after a five mile per hour crash.

The George Washington University Students said they would petition the transportation department to drop its plan in favor of one requiring that cars withstand crashes at 15 miles per hour without damage.

The Transportation Department proposed Nov. 21 that 1973 model cars be required to withstand a five mile per hour crash without damage to lights, reflectors, latching devices, or fuel, cooling and exhaust systems.

"The rules do not require that the car be able to be driven away following the test," SMASH said in a statement.

Cabs On Street

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yellow taxicabs dotted city streets for the first time in 15 days Sunday on approval of a contract dependent on the City Council authorization of a 40 per cent fare increase to give the drivers higher wages.

Most of the city's 11,700 taxis were cruising their beats today fueled by a shaky truce spelled out by Harry Van Arsdale Jr., president of Local 3036 of the Taxi Drivers Union, who warned there would be another walkout unless the council acted quickly and without "any undue delay."

He said the vote by some 4,500 union members during a tense meeting technically only was to "discontinue" the strike staged Dec. 12 by 36,000 fleet and independent cab drivers.

Heart Falters

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—The heart of Rep. L. Mendel Rivers faltered Sunday night but a quick-acting physician restored the heartbeat of the 65-year-old chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

Rivers, recovering from open heart surgery, was listed in "serious condition" after the incident.

Dr. John Kirklin of University Hospital, the South Carolina Democrat's physician, said Rivers' heart stopped beating at 8:55 p.m. EST Sunday but "fortunately, a resident physician was just a few feet away and resuscitive measures were begun promptly."

Decision Delayed By Israel

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel, despite pressures from both the United States and Britain, postponed a decision Sunday on whether it will resume the Middle East peace talks.

The Israeli cabinet decided at its regular Sunday session to continue its debate on the talks. Diplomatic sources said today the action was taken to make it clear Israel will not be rushed into resuming the talks with U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring. the next cabinet meeting is not expected for a week. week.

Both the United States and Britain are urging the indirect discussions be resumed as soon as possible.

Two Soviet-made rockets hit Jerusalem Sunday only a mile from where the cabinet was in session.

High Court Rejects Angela Davis Appeal

class has in mind for Angela Davis — the gas chamber", the attorney said.

Miss Davis, a former instructor in philosphy at the University of California at Los Angeles, is accused of purchasing the guns used in the Aug. 7 escape attempt at the Marin Hall of Justice. Judge Harold J. Haley, Jonathon Jackson, who brought the guns to the courtroom and two San Quentin inmates, William Christmas and James McClain, died in the abortive escape.

Hallinan said officials "have sought from the first to lynch her (Miss Davis) and deny her right to a free trial. They are anxious to get her out here while there is still the hysteria in Marin, so they can be sure of a conviction," he continued.

Miss Jackson said she felt "It wasn't any more of a crime for Jon (her brother) to take guns into the courtroom than for the police to kill Fred Hampton or pay to have Malcolm X killed." Hampton was shot as he slept during a pre-dawn police raid on a Chicago Black Panthers headquarters, Malcolm X by black political rivals.

"Jon couldn't kill anyone — I know that," Miss Jackson continued, saying she could not think of the Aug. 7 incident as "a shoot-out. We don't even know if the guns the brothers were carrying were loaded."

She commented briefly on the charge that Miss Davis signed for the guns used and implied that her signature on the forms did not necessarily mean she had actually signed them. Miss Jackson noted Miss Davis had been arrested several times in the past 18 months, since she announced she was a Communist and began to speak publicly in defense of the Soledad Brothers, three black prisoners accused of stabbing a prison guard.

"When she began to speak out, the oppressor came down on her and we all know they will go to any lengths and use any means necessary to get what they want," Miss Jackson said. She pointed out that any person arrested must turn over his driver's license (which includes his signature) to police "who could easily make a photostatic copy of that signature."

Mrs. McLemore warned that "if Angela Davis is convicted, there isn't really any future for Marin City, which has already been put through much harassment because of the Civic Center thing."

Mrs. Jordan said Marin City "has to serve as an example to people in the rest of the world who are anxious to free Angela. She also decried the fact her sister had "been placed on the FBI's Most Wanted List and talked about as a dangerous criminal, when she wasn't even charged with committing any overt act of violence."

She went on to say that "Angela is dangerous and a threat, but not because she killed anyone. Angela didn't kill anyone and neither did Jonathon," she continued, "the only ones who killed on that day were the San Quentin guards and they should be charged with murder." The audience burst into applause.

"Angela has exposed the true criminals by talking about ending their exploitation of capitalism and racism; her fight is everyone's fight," Mrs. Jordan continued, "She has put her life on the line."

Shepherd said the decision to charge Angela Davis with murder "was part of the government's attempt to destroy the black liberation movement in this country. Her only crimes are her fight against terror and oppression in the black community, her exposure of prison conditions and her devotion to her people," he added.

Walter Turner, of the Marin Steering Committee to Defend Angela Davis, which arranged the rally, said a demonstration to free Miss Davis is scheduled for tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the Federal Building in San Francisco. On Wednesday, Miss Davis' supporters will march from San Francisco to Marin to begin a vigil.

GREECE

will appeal the lengths of the sentences but not the guilty verdicts, which also included fines totaling $76,000.

The five claimed that a Sausalito man they identified as Jim Vincent had hired them to rescue political "friends in trouble" in the Middle East. They said that Vincent hired them to fly "highly placed Arab political refugees" to Europe.

They denied they knew there was 1,425 pounds of hashish in the toilet of the Martin 220 airplane police captured when they landed here for refueling on their way from Lebanon.

The prosecution said that the five were supposed to pick up 60 bags of the narcotic at a secret landing strip in Lebanon, but had to take off with only 13 bags after police suddenly arrived and began shooting at the Arab cargo handlers.

Greek police confiscated the $250,000 airplane and $52,000 found on the five men.

Black, the original contact with Vincent, told the court he had introduced the others to the Sausalitan. He testified that "Vincent" said the trip did not involve narcotics.

Greek police told the court that the five men "worked for the Mafia," and said that Moore had asked for protection for his family in California against Mafia retaliation for his cooperation with the police.

already allow 18-year-olds to vote.

The vote on the residency requirements was 8 to 1, with Justice John M. Hartan dissenting.

Oregon and Texas asked the Court to declare the law an unconstitutional invasion of the right of states to set voter qualifications.

The Nixon administration opposed passage of the measure on constitutional grounds but was required to defend it under challenge in the high court.

The Justice Department had also asked that sections on residency rules to ban literacy tests be upheld.

The Court acted in its last session before taking a holiday recess. It returns Monday, Jan. 11.

TV Film Arguments At Trial

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — Legal arguments over television films today delayed resumption of the Solano Superior Court trial for seven men arrested at the violent Feb. 14 rally against the Independent-Journal.

The TV station contends it should not be forced to show its "outs" — films not broadcast. The station's attorney, said such "outs" are similar to a reporter's confidential notes, and should be protected under the First Amendment of the Constitution.

Judge William E. Jensen ordered in-chambers showing of the "ins" — film actually broadcast. He said this would let defense attorneys see whether the film contain enough material for the case they are presenting.

Defense attorneys are trying to establish a foundation to put into evidence the film showing the arrest of John J. DeMartini, 46, of Mill Valley. He is vice president of International Typographical Union 21 which struck the I-J on Jan. 7.

AIRLINE

placement by Thomas F. Gleed, head of the UAL executive committee, came as a "bombshell."

Keck joined United Air Lines in 1946 from Owens-Illinois Can Co., and became a maintenance base executive. He was made president in 1963 and chief executive in 1966.

United prospered under Keck's management through 1969, but in the first-nine months of this year it had a $16.1 million loss compared with a profit of almost $50 million for 1969.

Keck will continue as a director of the airline and the parent firm. Gleed said he was sure the company would be able to utilize Keck's experience.

Keck attracted wide attention several weeks ago with a letter to the company's 51,000 employees, saying the airline's loss may reach $40 million for all of 1970, and that the domestic airline industry would have losses this year of between $100 million and $200 million.

The airline has laid off about 400 workers this year and by yearend its working force will be 2,400 under the number originally budgeted at the year's start.

Tallow Firm Gets Union Contract

Striking employees at the Royal Tallow and Soap Co., Petaluma, approved a new contract Saturday and returned to work today.

The terms of the contract were not revealed, but the signing ended a seven-day strike by the San Francisco Teamsters Union Local No. 85 and Sonoma-Marin Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Local No. 64.

Sonoma County health officials had hoped for an early end to the wage dispute because slaughter houses and ranchers had no other means of disposing of dead animals.

and his parents badly burned Sunday at New Paltz, N.Y., when the boy apparently started a fire by turning on the Christmas tree lights. Four other children fled but the body of Michael Brooker was found in a bathroom where he ran when the fire began.

Three persons were killed and five others injured by flames early Sunday in a fire which destroyed three buildings in San Francisco's Chinatown. A dozen firemen received minor injuries in fighting the fire. Later, another fire injured several other San Francisco firemen.

Only two weeks ago the Polish-West German treaty put Gomulka at the pinnacle of his career. Today he was out of a job—toppled by a week of riots and demonstrations protesting a 20 per cent rise in food prices and, more sweepingly, his government's entire economic policy.

The riots wracked six Polish cities, brought death and widespread destruction and led to strikes in Warsaw and other cities. A general strike was reported in Szczecin (Stettin), a riot center, and the nation waited to see if Gomulka's ouster would end the labor unrest.

Immediately after the announcement of his selection, Gierek went on television to call for "order and peace" in this tense nation. He admitted the "ill-considered economic policies," confessed that the party had not always been "in close contact with the...whole nation" and said Poland would receive an answer for the past week—"A self-critical one, but clear and true."

"There are many problems which...demand a solution," he said, citing the woes of working women, youth and housing. "These problems will be considered...and they will be solved."

Civic Center Security To Be Studied

A series of new developments in the controversy over security provisions at the Civic Center will go before the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow morning.

The board will discuss these recent developments:

1. County Administrator Alan Bruce has assured women they will not be subjected to intensified body search.

2. Fireman's Fund American Insurance Co. will formally report a compromise proposal on insurance coverage for county buildings.

3. A group of county employees has asked officials to stop body searches, open the building to night meetings, and stop building alterations.

In addition, the county administrator's office is scheduled to report on bids received for burglar alarms to be placed on various parts of the building. This is another one of the "related physical changes which county supervisors authorized in a blanket order on Oct. 13 after the Hall of Justice courtroom explosion.

Also, the human rights commission will ask for a public hearing in early January to discuss the increased security. Commissioners want to know if the body searches infringe on civil rights.

CAFETERIA — Report of six bids received from various vendors who want to take-over operation of the Civic Center cafeteria next month.

DEPUTIES — Jake W. Ehrlich, attorney for the Marin County Sheriff's Deputies Association, will ask for salary raises and a 1970-71 contract for the deputies.

WELFARE — The director of public social services will report on the number of high income families who are getting welfare aid, and on federal and state laws which allow families with $10,000 income to stay on public aid.

DRYDOCKS — Bids will be received for demolition of the huge drydocks in Richardson Bay. Bids on the work range from $75,000 to nearly $300,000.

TENNIS-SWIM — Karibuni Incorporated of Sausalito seeks county endorsement of a tennis-swim complex in Marin City.

FLOOD AID — County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost will report that a one or two-year delay is expected in federal reimbursement to property owners who removed flood debris on the assurance that federal reimbursement would be paid.

SIGN — Casa Marinwood Association will appeal, a 25-foot high Cala Foods sign approved for the former Lee Brother Market building in Marinwood.

Revenue Sharing Study Revealed

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin County would have received $859,390 in fiscal 1971-72 if Congress had acted on President Richard M. Nixon's proposal to share federal revenues with state and local governments, according to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy.

Flournoy said a U.S. Treasury Department study showed that the state would have received $370,550,670 and California cities and counties an additional $165,823,798.

Sonoma County would have received $1,072,080, he said.

Flournoy said the revenue sharing proposal probably will be reintroduced in Congress during 1971 but, even if approved, could not be expected to be effective before fiscal 1972-73.

Afghanistan became an independent state in 1747.

San Rafael Submits Viaduct Parking Plan

Detailed plans for a proposed parking area under the Highway 101 viaduct have been submitted to the state Division of Highways by the City of San Rafael.

A letter from City Mgr. James H. McCown sent Friday contains preliminary plans for construction of 250 to 275 parking spaces under the highway between Second Street and Mission Avenue.

The letter also includes estimated construction and operation costs plus a tentative fee schedule so that the state can determine a lease arrangement.

The state, which, according to McCown, has looked favorably on leasing its land under the overpass to the city, had requested the cost figures.

The city has estimated the cost of laying as asphalt surface, lighting the area, and purchasing ticket dispensers and gates at $87,990. Yearly operating cost would be about $4,000, according to McCown's letter.

Proposed parking rates are 35 cents a day or $7.50 a month, the same rates charged at the city's Second and Lindaro streets lot.

McCown said the city is hoping for an annual lease at low cost because of the uncertainty of future use.

The old northbound viaduct is to be torn down whenever funds become available, maybe in five to ten years, McCown said.

San Rafael would start construction as soon as possible after approval is gained, McCown said.

Bobby Baker's Appeal Out; Ex-LBJ Aide Faces Prison

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court today rejected an appeal by Robert G. "Bobby" Baker, former Senate Democratic secretary, who was convicted in 1967 of theft and income tax evasion.

The brief order meant that the former Lyndon B. Johnson protege, who now lives in Ocean City, Md., must soon start serving a jail term of one to three years.

After his conviction, the U. S. Court of Appeals here sent the case back to District Judge Oliver C. Gasch to determine whether the government's evidence was tainted by illegal eavesdropping.

Gasch held hearings and ruled in the negative. The appeals court then affirmed the conviction June 30, 1970.

Baker operates the plush Carousel Motel in Ocean City.

The court's denial of Baker's appeal came as the Washington Post reported that Baker had emerged from a long period of relative privacy to develop a 25-story condominium at Ocean City, costing about $50 million.

The Post quoted Baker as saying in an interview that the new structure would be adjacent to his motel.

Baker, according to the Post, planned as a first step in the new development to sell the 77 units in the Carousel as individual condominiums.

The Post said Baker declined to discuss other than business matters in the interview. "I'm not in politics and I don't want to get involved in politics," the newspaper quoted him as saying.

Campaign For School Overseas

San Rafael High School students have launched a campaign to raise $1,000 for construction of a school overseas in conjunction with a Peace Corps School Partnership Program.

Lesley Belfor, 17, student action chairman of the school's student body executive board, who is coordinating the project, said fund raising should start early next year.

The project was initiated, she said, after the executive board saw a Peace Corps promotional film on the program, in which more than 1,000 other American schools have participated.

The $1,000 will be used for purchase of building materials, she said, the school will be built by villagers under the supervision of a Peace Corps volunteer.

The site of the school will be selected by the Peace Corps, she said.

Among projects being planned, she said, are a benefit dance for San Rafael High School students and the sale of small plastic bricks for construction of a model of the planned school in the high school's library.

Miss Belfor, of 208 McNear Drive, San Rafael, said the students hope to elicit community support of the project.

Student Policy Is On Agenda

The San Rafael Board of Education is to consider a revised district policy on student rights and responsibilities at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the district office.

Also to be considered is recommending that the City of San Rafael annex the San Pedro School site at 1565 Vendola Drive.

Mekong Unit To Be Withdrawn

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command announced today the phasing out of the Navy's River Assault Squadron 15 in the Mekong River Delta as part of the Phase Five troop withdrawal. About 255 sailors are involved.

The unit, composed of armored patrol boats, armored transports and landing craft and various other support craft, was formed in 1968 as part of the combined Army-Navy "Riverine" assault force in the Mekong Delta.

The command said that some of the unit's boats had been transferred to other units in June and November and that the remaining vessels had been moved to the former U.S. base at Dong Tam in the Mekong Delta and would be turned over to the Vietnamese Navy later this month.

Riot Held Spur To Army Spying

DETROIT (UPI)—The 1967 Detroit riot "came as a surprise" to Army intelligence officers and "touched off the whole increase" in its controversial domestic spying' a former Army agent said in a report published today.

In a telephone interview with the Detroit Free Press, Ralph M. Stein, Flushing, N.Y., said the size of the national intelligence collecting office was multiplied fivefold after the riot, which claimed 43 lives, brought out gaps in the Army's knowledge of civil disorders.

Prior to the Detroit riot, Stein said, "The Army had only a few people in Washington moitoring newspapers and reports." He said the riot "came as a surprise and the intelligence officers got up tight because they were unable to answer all the questions to the generals."

Stein, 27, said that in 1967-68 he was in charge of the Army intelligence "left-wing desk" in Washington, a national collection point for information about radical activity. He is one of three ex-intelligence officers who have recently revealed what they knew about the Army's surveillance of civilian dissenters, protesters and politicians.

Stein said in the Free Press interview that his superiors in intelligence "were very conspiracy-oriented. They felt like if they could just find out who organized the riots and who ran them, then they might be able to stop them."

He singled out the riot here as "what touched off the whole increase in Army intelligence surveillance."

After the riot, during which Stein had an open line to the Army's Detroit intelligence branch, he said, "The colonel who commanded the group called me over and said: 'I want you to be Mr. New Left. This will be the left-wing desk, and it will be the pilot desk for the other desks.'"

Two other desks were added, Stein said, one for right-wing activity and another for racial matters. The size of the intelligence section was increased from three men to 15, he said.

As "Mr. New Left," Stein said he became well informed on the activities of several radical groups, particularly the Students for a Democratic Society. He said most of the reports he received on the SDS came from FBI infiltrators of the group.

"Some of the reports were from public meetings, but others were from persons on the inside circle, or a penetrator," Stein said.

He said FBI reports were accepted as gospel by Army intelligence, with the Army making no cross-checks of its own.

"The Army was often called on to give reports and this (the FBI reports) would be the source material," he said.

Stein said the Army collected files and still may not have destroyed them on such public figures as Mrs. Martin Luther King, the Rev. Ralph Abernathy and the Rev. Jesse Jackson of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, folk singers Joan Baez, Arlo Guthrie and Phil Ochs, actress Jane Fonda and Georgia state Rep. Julian Bond.

Squandering Charged In Pennsy Failure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The bankrupt Penn Central railroad lost almost all of its $21 million investment in a subsidiary airline whose chief officer squandered its assets on women and high living, congressional investigators have charged.

A report issued by the House Banking Committee Sunday said the money was lost over a six-year period by Executive Jet Aviation Inc. (EJA), a subsidiary of the railroad formed to provide transportation for flying business executives.

The congressional investigators charged retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Oibert F. Lassiter of Beverly Hills, Calif., "squandered millions of dollars" of the airline's resources. Lassiter was ousted as president of EJA last July.

"Lassiter consistently and insistently attempted to palm his monumental living expenses off on EJA through the credit card expense account route," the report said.

The investigators also quoted testimony of former EJA employes that Lassiter provided female companions for two men who played key roles in financing the airline. They were identified as David Bevan of Philadelphia, Penn Central's former chief financial officer and former Air Force Gen. Charles J. Hodge, a New York investment banker.

Contacted by API, Lassiter described the charges as "sensationalism" and "most absurd." He said EJA's legal and financial problems were the fault of Bruce Sundlun, a Washington lawyer who took over the presidency and served previously as EJA's general consul. Lassiter predicted he would win a legal fight to regain control of the airline.

Brazil Considers Kidnap Demands

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—President Emilio Medici met today with two cabinet ministers on antigovernment guerrillas' demands for freedom for 70 political prisoners in exchange for the life of kidnaped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher.

A military source today denied the government had already gathered the 70 prisoners at Rio's Galao International Airport to fly them out of the country.

Reliable sources said, however, authorities in the states of Sao Paulo, Minas Gerais, and Rio Grande Do Sul had begun performing medical examinations on the prisoners listed by tha guerrillas who seized Bucher Dec. 7.

Hip Protest

BARNSLEY, England (UPI) —Workmen clearing a drain at the home of Mrs. Audrey Kenn, 34, found the blockage was caused by a grdle and a pair of tights. The local council sent her a bill for 19 pounds ($45.60) —but she and her husband have refused to pay it. She says the girdle, for 35-inch hips is not hers. Hers are 44 inches.

Fuel Supply Up, Lincoln Says

WASHINGTON UPI) —Increased coal production and good supplies of natural gas have ended the threat of an energy crisis this winter, barring extraordinary interruptions, according to the Nixon Administration.

George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, said during the weekend that adequate preplanning by the fuel industries plus warm fall weather have averted the energy crisis anticipated earlier this year.

He said the amount of natural gas in storage is higher than had been anticipated earlier this year, and the year's coal production will be the highest since 1947. He said the picture was also optimistic for butane and propane gas inventories.

Burglary Suspects Arrested

Two persons have been arrested on suspicion of attempted burglary in San Rafael according to police.

Herman Joseph Sanchez, 25, of 16 Meadow Avenue, was arrested Thursday after three witnesses heard a window break at Marin Metal Salvage, 718 A Francisco Boulevard. The three identified Sanchez after police caught him nearby at 6 p.m.

Sanchez, also known as Rivera, was booked into Marin County Jail and posted $1,250 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Carl D. (Buddy) Anger, 15, of 81 Graceland Drive was arrested after he allegedly kicked in a door at 275 Prospect Drive and was caught by the resident, Don T. Rademaker, police said.

He was booked into juvenile hall, police said.

Classic Case

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—A man walked into the Jefferson County clerk's office and demanded $8 for the four days he had spent confined in jail.

"You misunderstand, sir," a deputy clerk replied. "The four days was in lieu of payment of $8 to the county on your case. It's like board and room."

The man listened quietly and then answered: "Well, if that's the way it is, you can keep your $8. It's a lousy jail and a lousy way to earn $8."

Driver Reports He Was Robbed

John B. Sabris, 22, said the woman asked him to drive to Marin City last Wednesday but when they arrived there about 10:45 p.m., she asked to stop and pick up a woman friend.

As they stopped at a lot on Drake Avenue, the first woman pulled a gun and then two men also entered his car, one carrying a gun.

He said the four took his wallet containing about $15 and some stereo tapes.

ETHNIC MAKEUP OF MARIN SCHOOLS

An ethnic-racial breakdown of Marin schools indicates Caucasians outnumber others 42,510 to 3,206. This report, required by the state department of education, is forwarded each year by the Marin County Schools Office. Compared with last year's, it shows a drop in student population of about 800, primarily Caucasians. "Other White" listed above is defined as all those Caucasians not counted under "Spanish Surname." "Oriental" is limited to Chinese, Japanese or Korean descent, while "Other Nonwhite" includes Filipinos, Polynesians, Aleuts, Eskimos and Asians other than those listed under "Oriental." Breakdown for the county on a percentage basis shows Spanish, 2.13 per cent; white, 93.01; black, 2.92; oriental, 1.5; American Indian, .17 and other nonwhite, .27 of a per cent.

Innocent Pleas To Pot Charges

A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 12.

Drug agents who raided Susnow's home Dec. 11 said they found a half kilo of suspected pot.

Thirteen other persons arrested were not charged.

OEO Battle: Blackmail, Or Checks And Balances?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some might call it blackmail. Others might see it as an exercise in the checks and balances that stabilize the U.S. political process. But whatever the label, it certainly was a clear example of how things get done, or in this case undone, in Washington.

It really began 18 months ago when Donald Rumsfeld, the new Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), decided to pull the antipoverty agency's relatively small program of legal services for the poor out of the big community action division and give it standing of its own.

Rumsfeld made the change and chose Terry Lenzner, a soft-spoken former civil rights lawyer, to run the program. The young New Yorker made legal services the hottest OEO program with a series of lawsuits, some started in the previous administration, that challenged the treatment of poor people by federal, state and local governments, with emphasis on the politically volatile welfare field.

Legal services under Lenzner made lots of governors and mayors mad, and Rumsfeld repeatedly indicated it was better for government officials to be embarrassed by lawsuits than threatened by marching mobs. He successfully fought congressional efforts to hobble the program in 1969 and overrode several governors' vetoes of legal service projects in 1970. And, as never before, the big and prestigious bar associations threw full support to the program.

It may be worth noting that the vetoes Rumsfeld overrode were cast by Democratic governors and that the bar groups began to find the federal legal services program attractive about the time the legal profession was coming under heavy criticism for failing to help make good on the principle of equal justice for the poor as well as the rich. But the record was there: legal services was alive and well in Washington.

Then something happened. Rumsfeld and his tough operations chief, Frank Carlucci, decided it was time to push Lenzner's program out of the responsibility for its operations to the agency's regional directors.

Such decentralization is good Nixon administration doctrine, but Lenzner and the program's friends in Washington saw the plan as a move to deliver legal services into the clutches of bureaucrats who might hesitate to offend governors and mayors. They began fighting the "regionalization" plan inside OEO and finally brought the bar associations into the battle.

As a man who had instructed local antipoverty leaders to work with rather than against the power structure, Rumsfeld felt it best to bow to the legal establishment. He withdrew the plan.

Rumsfeld did not give up, however. He issued a set of policy guidelines that required the legal services Washington staff to work with the regional offices in working up new programs. Lenzner and his deputy, Frank Jones, took that to be "back door" regionalization. The bar was called to the rescue once again.

At that point, the battle no longer was one of those quiet bureaucratic knife fights that Washington is famous for. It was out in the open, and it became obvious that there were going to be public winners — Rumsfeld and Carlucci or Lenzner and Jones. Remsfeld made sure no one missed the point by dismissing Glenzner and Jones.

But the OEO director was far from victorious. Opposition now became loud and insistent. His opponents played their trump card: the Democratic-dominated House Education and Labor and Senate Labor and Welfare committees demanded an accounting.

Rumsfeld got through the House hearings without too much trouble, mainly because that committee was more interested in a Detroit community action program that Carlucci was closing down than the legal services battle. But the senators were another story. They were prepared to wash every stitch of legal services' linen publicly. On top of that, the Senate committee was sitting on several OEO appointments the administration wanted confirmed before adjournment.

The balance was tipped when Nixon decided to announce the appointment of Rumsfeld to the full-time job of counsellor to the President and his replacement as OEO director by Carlucci. He wanted Carlucci confirmed quickly, which meant within the week or so that Congress had left to run, and he didn't want a big nasty fight over legal services hitting the papers and television.

Rumsfeld surrendered. He had OEO issue a brief, unsigned notice that the legal services guidelines had been rescinded. Within an hour, the Senators called off their legal services investigation. The word was passed that the confirmation hearings might be held.

Lenzner and Jones called a news conference and expressed their happiness. But both men displayed a keen awareness of the real world and the irony of victory: they noted that they had won, but were no longer running legal servies Rumsfeld and Carlucci had lost, but one of them would be running OEO and through it, legal services.

AEC Reports Business Boom

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Oak Ridge National Laboratory reports a booming business in its enrichment services program under the Atomic Energy Commission.

Since the enrichment program started at the Oak Ridge Gaseious Diffusion Plant, about 3 million pounds of nuclear fuel has been processed for customers throughout the free world.

Soldiers Helping Bridge Gap Via Operation MARS

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (UPI) — Soldiers who staff the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS) station here are helping families bridge the miles between them and their men overseas.

Twenty-five men from the 176th Signal Co. operate the station which, through contact with similar stations in Vietnam, enables threa-minute conversations between soldiers and wives or parents.

The Ft. Lewis station, which will place about 80,000 calls this year, is known around the United States as "The King of MARS," because it makes about 20 per cent of all MARS calls to Southeast Asia, explains Sgt. Mike E. Philpott, who is in charge of the station.

Since it began operating in 1967, Philpott says, the station has put through about 175,000 calls.

By utilizing the MARS net, the price of a call is figured on the long distance rate from Tacoma, which is near Ft. Lewis, to the home town. By going through civilian channels, the price would be about $20 for three minutes and the quality often would be poor.

"We've had many calls that sound like the two parties are just across the street from each other," says Philpott.

Working 24 hours a day with three different radios, the Ft. Lewis station can contact any three of 49 radio outfits in Vietnam for MARS connections.

$400 In Play Equipment Set

New play equipment costing $400 has been voted by the Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission.

The purchase will include a $300 swing set for the Las Gallinas playground, to be installed in early January, and $100 in games and toy sets for the tiny tots program, reported William A. Gordon, director of parks and recreation.

The commission will hold its annual old fashioned Christmas caroling Monday for convalescent homes, senior citizens and shut-ins, he said. The caroling, open to everyone, will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the center.

Soviets Haunted By Many Technological Hangups

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer, Managing Editor of the Financial Times of London, recently was in Moscow.

By CHRISTOPHER JOHNSON
London Financial Times-UPI

LONDON —The Russians have shown they can put a remote-controlled vehicle on the moon. A remarkable technological achievement. But in all sorts of more mundane ways their technology lags behind that of the West.

It does not make sense to consider the Soviet economy in isolation from Russia's world power role, any more than one can write about the United States economy without mentioning the Vietnam War.

As the Soviet leaders try to move nearer to parity with America, they are finding the economic burdens of world power status increasingly onerous.

The Czech crisis reopened the prospect of trouble in Central Europe. The Middle East turmoil is a drain on Russian military and economic aid. The frontier clashes with China have raised the spectre of a war in Siberia. And it is a constant struggle for the Russians to keep up with the Americans in advanced nuclear hardware.

The importance of the German-Soviet treaty signed this summer is that it brings stability on one of Russia's many fronts. Talks between the Russians and the Chinese also are proceeding, and an ambassador has gone to Peking. The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Helsinki also hold out some hope of a deal with the Americans on nuclear weapons.

Soviet military spending is running at nearly 10 per cent of Gross National Product (GNP), and it is absorbing an important share of the country's best technological brainpower. Until the Russian leaders know how this key element in their allocation of resources is going to develop, it is difficult for them to plan the rest of the economy meaningfully.

This must be one of the reasons why the next Five-Year Plan, for 1971-75, still has not seen the light of day, and the 24th Party Congress, at which the plan would be a showpiece, was postponed from the Lenin Centenary last April to March 1971.

According to one school of thought, the Soviet leadership's main objective is to get more rapid economic growth so as to catch up with the West, thus proving that Communist economic methods are more effective than capitalist ones, and silencing opposition on the home front by telling Soviet citizens they never have had it so good.

Another, more familiar, hardline view is that the Soviet leadership's main concern is to keep itself in power and to build up the satellite empire around its frontiers wherever a power vacuum develops.

In the collective leadership system which superseded Khrushchev, there must be a constant tension between these two approaches, and it is anyone's guess which way the emphasis will shift from one year to another.

The long-run result is likely to be a compromise. The Soviet economy doubtless will be allowed to go on expanding at about the same rate as the Common Market —in the region of 4 to 5 per cent real growth of GNP per annum —so that living standards continue to improve just enough to stave off the sort of widespread political discontent that could involve the authorities in a return to the repression of the Stalin era.

The demands of defense and foreign policy are, however, unlikely to be relaxed enough to permit the sort of double-figure growth rate which would allow the Soviet Union to follow the example of Japan and catch up with the West in a generation or so.

In trying to catch up with the West, the Russians do it by means of gigantic investment projects which have the prestige bonus of being bigger than any similar Western project. The Bratsk power station is the world's most powerful; the Fiat car plant at Togliattigrad one day may produce a million cars a year; the truck factory on the Kama River, with help from Daimler-Benz and Renault, is to be the world's biggest with a capacity of 150,000 vehicles a year; the Rossiya Hotel in Moscow is said to have 6,000 beds —and so on.

These projects nearly always take longer to build and cost more than is allowed for in the original plan. The Russians lack the managerial and technological capacity to carry them all out; hence their eagerness for co-operation agreements with Western companies, particularly for the largest-scale operations.

Some of their Western friends are advising them, however, that the cost advantages of large-scale production taper off after a certain point and that the current vogue for "gigantism" leads to a wasteful use of investment resources.

The Russians clearly are prepared to take advice from the West, but the Soviet leaders are anxious to rebut the "convergence" theory. This theory predicts that Communism and capitalism will become more and more like each other, and eventually meet at a mid-point somewhat similar to that which Yugoslavia already has reached.

It would be a great blow to the prestige of the world Communist movement if it was ever admitted the differences between the two systems were unimportant. More positively, the Russians still believe in the virtues of central planning on grounds of economic efficiency and social justice.

The Soviet system still gives power to the ministries to decide who should produce what, how much of it and at what price. Variations from the norms often are negotiated by agreement at local level, but there still is too little scope for initiative by enterprising managers, too little wholesale trade of producer goods and too little feedback from the market to indicate what consumers actually want.

The main difficulty the planners have is allocation of scarce investment resources between competing economic priorities —quite apart from the military burden. The Soviet Union invests about 27 per cent of GNP somewhere, between the average Western rate and the very high Japanese rate. The real debate is about the allocation of investment as between making machinery for consumer goods industries and other, more long-run, priorities.

Some Kremlinologists see this as a tussle between agriculture, championed by party chief Leonid Brezhnev, and industry, represented by the more technocratic Premier, Alexei N. Kosygin.

Agriculture still absorbs about a quarter of the Soviet work force and yet it still cannot guarantee self-sufficiency in basic foodstuffs. Brezhnev thus has been arguing in favor of more mechanization and modernization on the farms.

In deciding to what extent to help the Soviet Union speed up its economic development, the West always has been in a dilemma, which is becoming more acute as Western technology becomes more advanced and thus more desirable to the Russians. Cocom, the Paris committee handling embargoes on trade with Communist countries, is split between the hard American line —which would be softened in the event of a political thaw —and the more permissive attitude of Britain and other Western European countries.

The argument for helping the Russians is that we shall do good both to our own exports and to the living standards of the Soviet people, thus, either making their lack of democratic freedom more tolerable or making it possible for the leadership to give in more easily to pressure for liberalization.

The argument against helping them too much is that if their economy grows faster they will be able to afford to spend more on defense, and that if the Communist system takes on too prosperous an image it may become more tempting than it now looks to the developing countries of the Third World.

It is an argument which is unlikely to be resolved in a hurry.

TORTE OR LOAVES

Banana Cake Ideas For Holiday Eating

One recipe — start-from-scratch version or quick mix marvel — makes a whole variety of holiday goodies. With one batch of banana batter you can layer a spectacular torte, turn out two nutty loaf cakes, or make close to three dozen cupcakes.

BANANA BATTER

1 package yellow cake mix
⅛ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 cup mashed bananas

Place cake mix in large bowl of electric mixer. Stir in baking soda. Add buttermilk, eggs and bananas. Beat according to the package mix directions.

BUNDT CAKE

Grease a nine-inch bundt or tube pan. Dust with flour. Fill with one recipe of banana cake batter. Bake at 350°F. for 50 minutes or until a toothpick or straw inserted in center of cake comes out dry. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Invert onto wire rack and while still warm add orange glaze. If you wish, when glaze is cool decorate further with sour cream drip frosting. Serves 12.

ORANGE GLAZE

½ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup orange juice
3 teaspoons grated orange peel
Peel of one orange cut into very thin strips (optional)

Heat syrup, orange juice and grated peel to boiling point. Pierce cake all over with a skewer, then spoon glaze on top and sides. If you don't add frosting, set aside about two tablespoons of the glaze before covering cake. Now stir in peel strips and arrange in a circle on top.

SOUR CREAM DRIP FROSTING

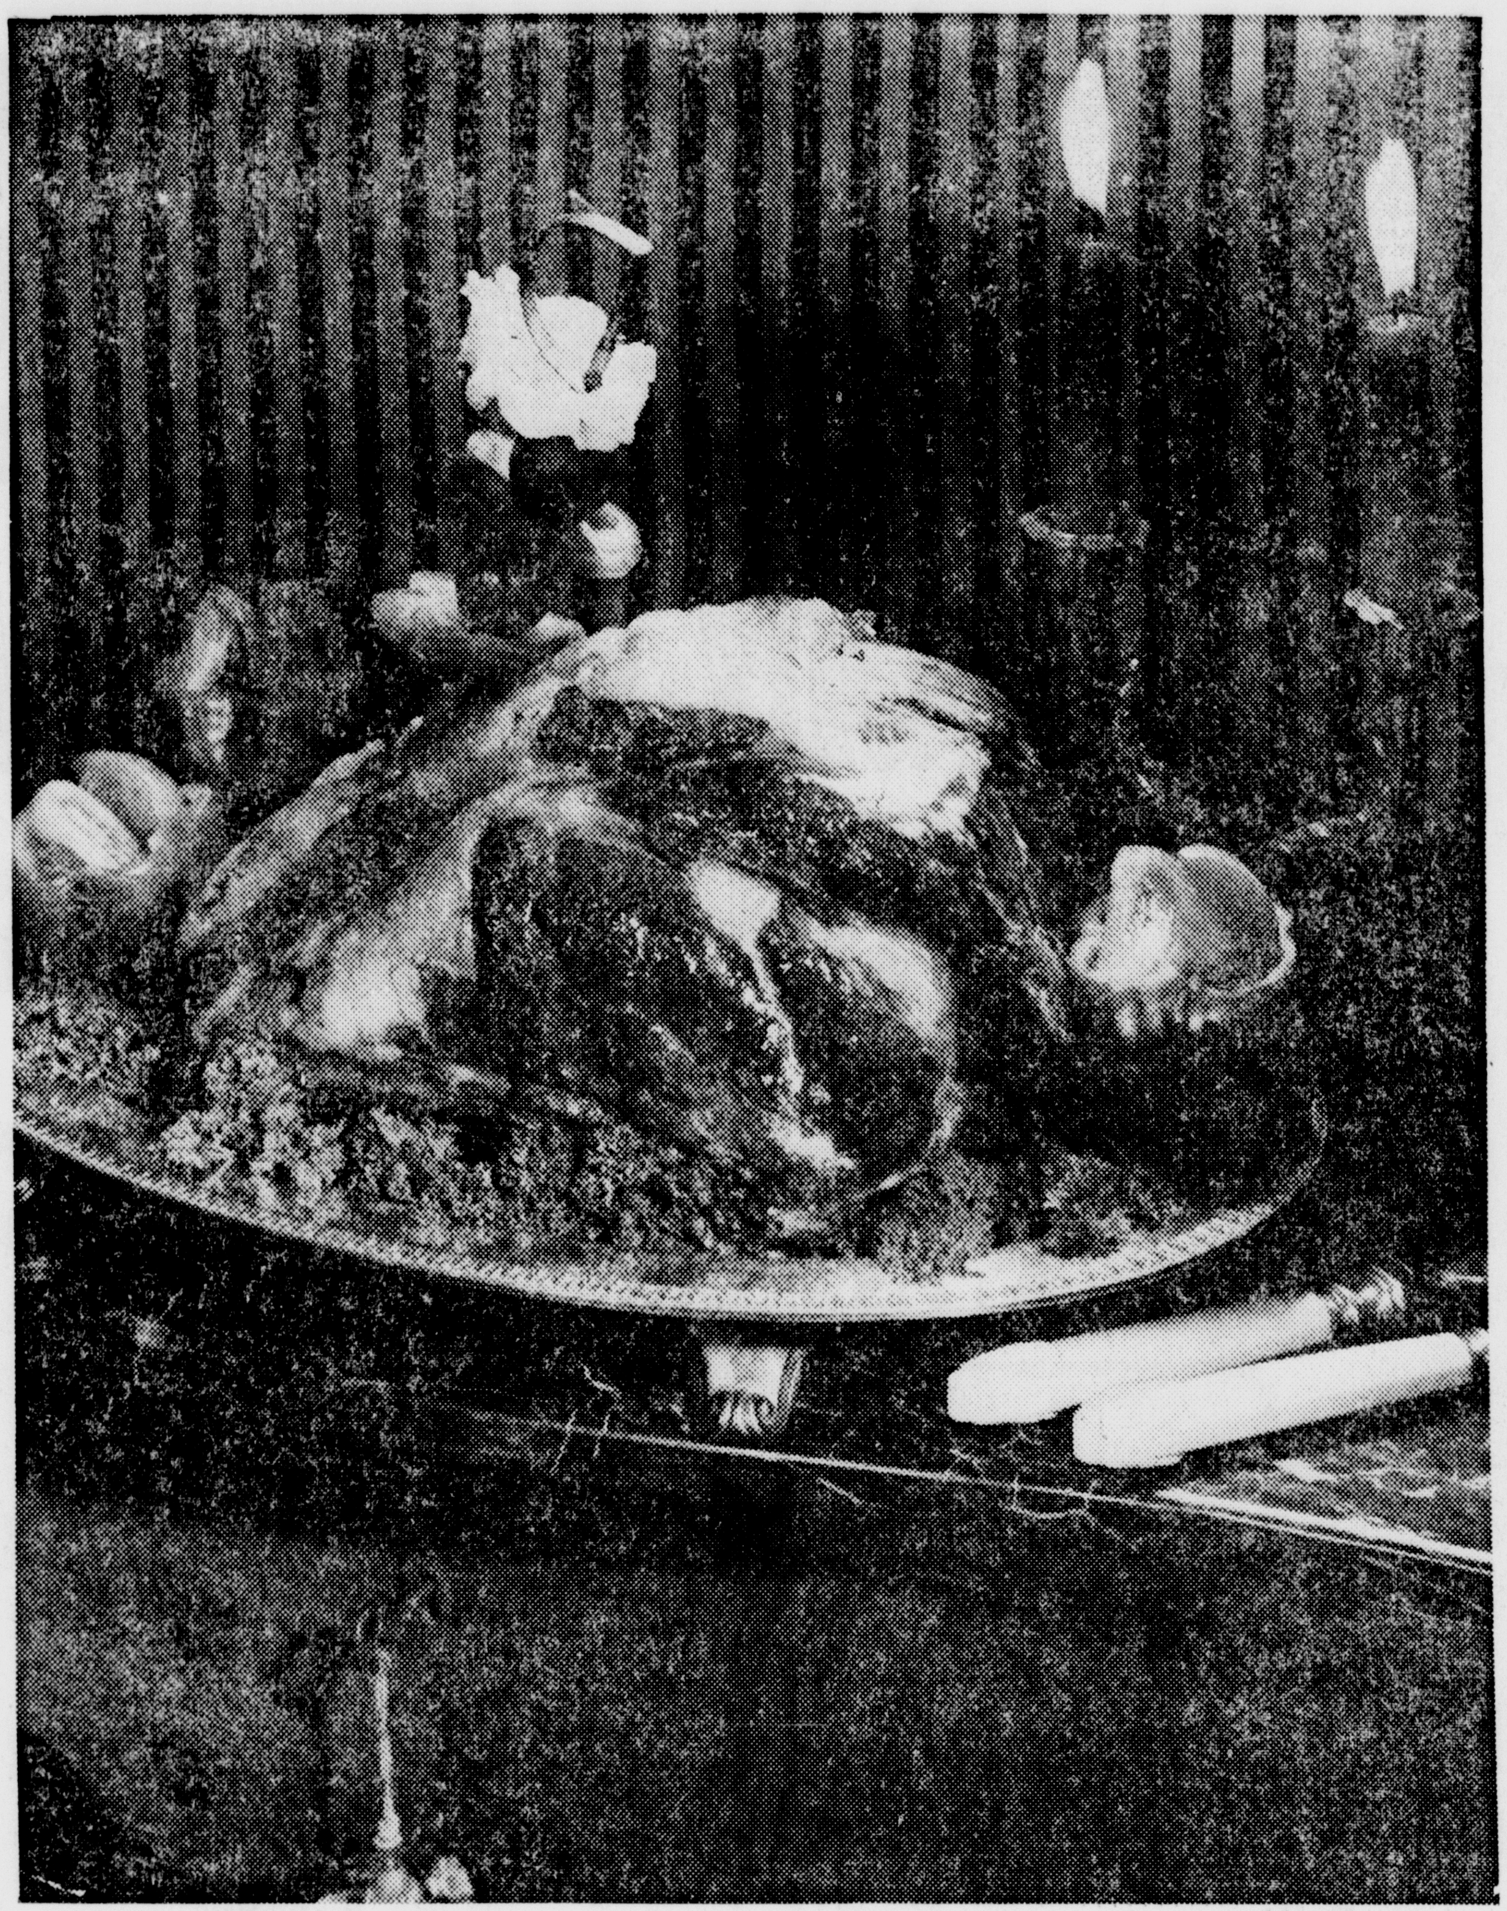
1 package (13 oz.) sour cream frosting mix
1 tablespoon soft butter
1 tablespoon hot water
1 tablespoon milk

Open frosting mix and take out one cup only. Put it in small mixing bowl, add ingredients listed above. Beat at high speed until smooth and creamy - still slightly liquid but not runny. Pour over cake in attractive drips. While frosting is still sticky, you might decorate with nuts, pieces of candied cherries and silver dragees. Note: You will still have two-thirds of the frosting mix in the box. Save it to use later (with two-thirds of the amounts of other ingredients listed on package).

OLD-FASHIONED BANANA CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup vegetable shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas

Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and spices; sift into bowl, using an electric mixer or wooden spoon, beat shortening until fluffy and gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time, then vanilla. Now add about three-fourths cup of the sifted dry ingredients and beat in just enough to combine. Add one-fourth cup of mashed bananas and a tablespoon of buttermilk and beat again. Repeat until all ingredients are added alternately. Bake in greased and floured bundt pan, at 350°F., one hour or until the center is springy to the touch. Glaze and frost as above.



TIMING THE roast to perfection with a meat thermometer is the safest way to get those cheers when the prime rib roast is carved at the holiday dinner table. Remember that the meat continues cooking for some 20 minutes after it is removed from the oven and placed in a warm place. Use leftover roast in thin strips for hors d'oeuvres.

Plan a beautiful beef roast for a holiday buffet dinner. A succulent prime rib roast of beef goes with anything and everything. Make the menu simple or elaborate as the occasion demands.

For a colorful garnish in traditional red and green colors, skewer the beef with a dagger threaded with a flouncy ruffle of western iceberg lettuce and alternating cherry tomatoes and end slices of crisp green pepper. Repeat the idea alongside the roast by using small scopped out green pepper shells to be filled with wedges of rosy red tomatoes.

A timely reminder recommends using a meat thermometer to judge doneness of the roast. Insert the tip of the thermometer into the center of the large center muscle. Remove the beef from the moderately slow oven when the thermometer registers about 10 degrees lower than ready-to-eat temperature. To please Californians who enjoy rare beef, internal temperature will be about 130 degrees. During a 20 minute resting period in a warm place, the beef will continue to cook after having been taken from the oven. Include this extra time when estimating when the standing beef ribs should be put into the oven.

Leftover roast beef makes popular hors d'oeuvres. Spread thin strips of beef lightly with mayonnaise seasoned with Dijon style mustard. Roll around a crisp vegetable stick — carrot, cucumber or zucchini. Skewer with picks and sprinkle with salt and pepper.

BUFFET STANDING RIB ROAST

3 to 4 rib beef roast, about 8 pounds

One pound of beef will serve no more than 2. Stand beef ribs in shallow pan, fat side up. Insert meat thermometer with tip in center of large muscle. Roast in moderately slow oven (325° F.) to desired degree of doneness. Let beef stand 20 minutes in warm place to settle juices and finish cooking. During this time the internal temperature will rise 5 to 10 degrees. Many Californians prefer roast beef done to the rare stage.

Remove from Oven
Internal Temperature

130 degrees	Rare
140 degrees	Medium Rare
150 degrees	Well Done

Mini Grilled Beef Sandwiches: Trim crusts from thin bread slices. Spread bread lightly with horseradish. Put together, sandwich fashion, with thin roast beef slices sprinkling lightly with seasoned salt and pepper. Brush outside of bread with melted butter. Grill in sandwich grill until golden brown. Cut into quarters and serve hot.

Mince Meat Topping

BAKED PEARS WITH MINCE MEAT

(Makes 6 servings)

3 firm, fresh Barlett pears
1-1/3 cups (½ of 28-oz. jar) Mince Meat
½ cup Marsala wine

Cut pears in half lengthwise, through stem end. With melon baller or teaspoon, carefully remove cores, leaving stems intact. Sprinkle cut surfaces with lemon juice. Place pear halves in 10-inch pie plate or shallow baking dish; fill with mince meat. Spoon any remaining mince meat around pears. Carefully pour wine over and around pears. Bake in moderate (350°F.) oven 45 to 60 minutes, or until pears are tender. Remove from oven; cool. Serve slightly warm with sauce from baking dish.

OLD-FASHIONED brandied plum puddings are presented in a new fashion this holiday season. Made of the traditional suet and flavored with brandy and spices, these individual puddings are nevertheless a 1970 confection. They do not require long aging and the brandy in the pudding batter and in the accompanying sauce give them excellent flavor.

Little Plum Puddings For Each Guest

Brandy has a beautiful image. We think of it being poured in the living room with or after the coffee that tops a very special dinner. But in these changing times a lot of it is being used to enhance the flavor of the food.

In the festive season ahead, brandy will enhance mince pies, mellow fruit cakes, season sauces, flame desserts and spark the cup of hot chocolate or hot coffee that is so welcome on a winter evening.

More, in individual plum puddings, it creates a depth of flavor that is usually attributed only to time. Like most steamed puddings, these may be made well in advance, then wrapped and stored for later serving or for gift-giving. However, their greatest contribution to the holiday season may well be the fact that they need not be made in advance. With brandy to blend all the flavors in this old-fashioned recipe, the puddings will be mellow and pungent in a day or two.

BRANDIED HOLIDAY PUDDINGS

1 cup candied cherries, halved
1 cup pitted dates, sliced
1 cup golden raisins
2 cups diced mixed candied fruits
1 cup sifter all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 cups ground or very finely chopped suet (about ½ lb.)
5 eggs
1¼ cups brown sugar (packed)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger
½ cup brandy
3 cups soft fine bread crumbs

Prepare fruits. Resift flour with salt and baking powder onto fruits. Add suet and mix well. Beat eggs; beat in brown sugar and spices until light. Pour over fruit mixture, add brandy and bread crumbs, and mix well. Spoon ¼ cup batter into small greased molds, about ½ cup capacity (3½ oz. individual gelatin molds are ideal). Cover each tightly with foil. Set molds on rack in large kettle with boiling water to half the depth of the molds. Cover kettle, and steam for 2 hours, replenishing water, if necessary. Serve warm with Brandy Lemon-Butter Sauce or Creamy Brandy Hard Sauce. Makes 2 dozen tiny puddings.

To Serve As Shown in Photograph: Pyramid hot puddings in tree shape on serving plate. Garnish with glace cherries, walnut halves and small leaves.

BRANDY LEMON-BUTTER SAUCE

½ cup sugar
1-1/3 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
½ cup brandy

Combine sugar, water, salt and cornstarch in saucepan. Boil stirring constantly, until thickened, about 5 minutes. Add all remaining ingredients; heat a few minutes longer. Serve warm. Makes about 1½ cups.

CREAM BRANDY HARD SAUCE

Beat 2/3 cup softened butter, 2 cups sifted powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 tablespoons brandy together until well blended. Makes about 1½ cups sauce.

DOMINICAN STUDENTS

Last Year Christmas Was Different

Five Dominican College students who spent last year in France studying at the University of Aix-en-Provence are happy to be back with their families during the Christmas holidays this year.

The quintet are the first students to participate in Dominican's new study-abroad program in conjunction with the California State College Program of International Study. Six other students are at Aix and the Unitersity of Madrid this academic year.

The group back on campus in San Rafael includes two young women from Marin County, Mary Frances Jeffrey of San Rafael and Ealish McCarthy of Sausalito. The others are Barbara Dudley of Honolulu, Hawaii; Jeanne-Marie Grabarczyk of Oakland, and Nan Farasyn of Los Altos. Patricia Langlais of Hillsborough who spent the year with them has returned to Aix for a second year, and the seventh student, Ingrid Marcantoni, has returned to her home in Puerto Rico.

THE STUDENTS all agree that Christmas is not the same outside of the United States. Last year they missed their families, traditional Christmas trees, and the exchange of gifts but found substitutes in various parts of Europe: Mary Frances spent the holidays in Aix and Marseilles, Nan Farasyn in Thessaloniki, Greece; Ealish McCarthy in Rome and Barbara and Jeanne-Marie in Le Super-Sauze, France, skiing near the Italian border. Jeanne-Marie flew to Brussels for New Year's when her mother, Mrs. Zygmunt Grabarczyk arrived from Oakland, unexpectedly, to spend the holidays with Jeanne-Marie's grandmother, who lives in Belgium.

Nan Farasyn, who traveled by train to Thessaloniki, Greece, was the only student in the group who spent the holidays within a family circle. Nan found her Greek Christmas a formal affair that started at midnight Christmas Eve when the women, in long dresses, and men, in dinner jackets, left their homes to call at friend's houses, eat various types of food "like a progressive dinner", and collect their friends who went on with them to the next house.

"Each individual was welcomed in each home with a special berry drink," Nan said. "A single cup on a tray was brought by the hostess to each guest, who drank it immediately as a symbol of a kind of close tie with the family." When all the friends had gathered together, Nan explained that they arrived at a large hotel at the "top of the hill" where "everyone in the city seemed to be dancing" until sunrise.

NAN NOTED that there was no exchange of gifts until New Year's Eve when the family gathered for presents, "mostly clothing" for the coming year. Nan found that French was the language that she had in common with her hosts and most of their friends. She is happy to be back in Los Altos this year with her own family, that includes four brothers and sisters, but would like to go back to France again.

Mary Frances and Nan will both be graduated from Dominican College this month. All the students are majoring in French except Mary Frances whose special field is English.

For Mary Frances, Christmas in Aix was as different as it could be. For one thing, she is one of 11 children of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Jeffrey in San Rafael. She remained in the University town of Aix for the holidays because she had not been well enough to travel.

"THE HOLIDAYS are not the time to be away from your family," Mary Frances declares. "I had to remind myself that it was Christmas. There were no lighted trees in the stores or homes, no Christmas caroling, decorations or flowers in the church on Christmas day though there was a small nativity scene."

Mary Frances and some friends were the Christmas Eve guests of the owners of a Greek restaurant in Marseilles where a tree was decorated for them. "The Greeks seem to think that if you have a good time, you break dishes. So we danced and threw dishes," said Mary Frances.

"New Year's seemed to be a greater time of celebration in France," according to the San Rafael girl. "And gifts are exchanged on Jan. 6, the Feast of the Epiphany, or Little Christmas." By that date the students were all back in their classes but were the guests at a family party where the special wreath cake of the season was cut and distributed with two little crowns baked into it. The two who found the crowns in their slices of cake were presented with paper crowns and reigned as Kings or Queens for the evening.

Ealish McCarthy traveled with a group of University students to Rome for Christmas where the Swiss manager of their pension decorated a Christmas tree "specially for the Americans" with "real candles on the tree and fresh fruit tied to the branches with ribbons. I'd never seen one like it," said Ealish, "but my mother has told me about them."

Ealish found many green branches decorating the homes or buildings with green trees outside the stores but did not see any of the lighted trees or ornaments associated with Christmas "at home."

ON CHRISTMAS day, Ealish and her friends attended services at St. Peter's where the Pope celebrated the Mass at 11 a.m. She happened to meet old friends of her family, some French girls from the train, and "the whole world seemed to be at the Vatican that day. After Mass, the bells rang for about twenty minutes and everyone seemed so happy greeting one another. The Pope delivered his Christmas greetings in eight languages."

The students bought bread, cheese, salami and wine and had their lunch by one of Rome's great fountains. Ealish spent New Year's Eve in Venice before returning to Aix for the new semester. She noted that Venice celebrated the evening with firecrackers and loud horns. Ealish and Barbara Dudley are both seniors at Dominican this year.

CHRISTMAS IN the snow was an entirely new experience for Barbara Dudley who has lived all her life in Honolulu where Christmas is an outdoor affair which begins on Christmas Eve with a traditional Portuguese dinner with her parents and two sisters and brother.

Barbara and Jeanne-Marie traveled with a University bus-load of students to the skiing slopes of Le Super-Sauze near Gap on the Italian border. Barbara had never seen snow until she came to Dominican College and went skiing in her freshman year. The students "were mostly

LISTENING TO songs of popular French singer Guy Beart are Barbara Dudley, left, and Jeanne-Marie Grabarczyk, who spent last Christmas in France skiing near the Italian border. Now back on the Dominican College campus, five of six girls who studied in France last year, compared their away-from-home Christmas experiences as celebrated in other countries.

That's what I like about LAMB."

The holidays aren't complete at our house until we enjoy a tender, flavorful roast leg of lamb. The good taste of lamb gives a special flair to the feast. Our guests love it. Put lamb on your holiday shopping list now—and try this easy recipe.

GLAZED LEG OF LAMB (makes 6 to 8 servings)

Leg of lamb
Salt and pepper
½ cup apple jelly
½ teaspoon rosemary leaves
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Lemon Baked Louisiana Yams*

Season lamb with salt and pepper. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in 325° (slow) oven 30 to 35 minutes per pound or until meat thermometer registers 175° for medium doneness. Meanwhile, combine jelly, rosemary and lemon juice in small saucepan. Stir over medium heat until jelly melts. Brush on lamb during last hour of roasting time.

*LEMON BAKED LOUISIANA YAMS – Drain 3 cans (1 pound each) Louisiana yams and arrange in baking dish. HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Now A Young 50 She Wants A New Life With Handsome Man

DEAR HELEN:

I have been separated 10 years, and was finally divorced last year. In all that time, I never dated, as I was busy raising the children. But now they're grown and married, and I'm a young 50, ready for still another life.

My son-in-law brought over his business partner, thinking to help me out. My daughter also has a man in mind for me. But Helen, they aren't exactly my ideals. One is short, the other looks 20 years older than me, though he's only 55. My loving children tell me I'm too particular, but I know what I want. He should be at least five feet nine, fairly good looking, and must have hair. I met such a man at a bowling party. We danced together, but he didn't get my phone number. I'm afraid he is married, just having an evening out. He was so handsome.

With him in mind, I can't bring myself to go out with those ordinaries my kids bring around. Am I really living in a dream world, searching for a fairy tale man, as they say? — GINA

DEAR GINA:

If a tall handsome man with hair is all you want, then I don't think you've learned much in your "single" years. My IGAP tells me you divorced such a man, right?

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it that men can go hunting in the wilderness, and survive just great without their little wives ministering to their every want? But at home —they're lost souls without Mama.

I can't go on a short vacation unless I prepare weeks in advance, write down instructions for turning on the oven, arrange for the laundry to be done and the house cleaned. My husband can't even prepare a TV dinner by himself — at home.

When I get back, there are dirty dishes piled in the sink and all over the kitchen. The bed is unmade and the garbage hasn't been taken out in a week. Husband? He's lost in the shuffle of old newspapers: unshaven, dirty, hungry — with the television log in his hand.

What makes men so self-sufficient on camping trips and so helpless when they are wifeless in their own domain? — HUNTING AND FISHING WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW:

Maybe it's because they want to let wives know how important we are to them. Or maybe it's just more fun (a matter of survival perhaps) fending for themselves in the wilderness. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Pants suits to work? Great. Even nurses are allowed to wear white pants suits now. With all the bending, etc. it's high time they lowered the requirements. (The thigh's the limit for sick men.)

Recently the leading door-to-door cosmetic sales company okayed pants suits for its saleswomen — and when sellers of beauty supplies are allowed such wear, it must be accepted universally.

A few banks and government offices are still holdouts, but they'll come to pants before long. This is a style that is feminine and practical — and so much better looking than the midi-boot monstrosities.

French" but there were three Americans and three Canadians at the ski chalet where the students enjoyed a Fondue party on Christmas Eve and skiied all Christmas Day.

"For me, it wasn't Christmas because my family wasn't there," said Barbara but she also noted that all her life she had seen photographs of Christmas in the snow and the mountains were white and beautiful. Barbara also said that she did not see any Christmas decorations or hear any carols during the holiday season.

JEANNE-MARIE is a citizen of Belgium though her family has lived in Oakland for 15 years. She said that the ski chalet management welcomed the two Dominican students with the information that they knew all about the college because their "sister-in-law or aunt" lived in San Anselmo. She felt that May Day was a bigger holiday celebration in France than Christmas. With the unexpected arrival of her mother, Jeanne-Marie, an only child, did fly to Brussels to spend the New Year's holidays with her mother, grandmother and great aunt, where the family enjoyed a holiday specialty which she described as a loaf cake "like a shepherd's bread," with special religious decorations which the family shares for the holiday.

Jeanne-Marie and her family will spend Christmas in the snow at Heavenly Valley before she returns to college next semester to complete work on her teaching credential and master's degree in French. Jeanne-Marie has been a student teacher this semester at Davidson Junior High School in San Rafael.

The students are unanimous in their appreciation for their year's study abroad. All of them would like to return but "not at Christmas time."

THE FIRST Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo was the settin for the wedding of Debera Sullins and Frederick Lepage. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sullins of San Anselmo and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Lepage of San Anselmo. The couple will live in San Rafael.

Phillip DeMaria Will Wed Virginia C. King

At a small party given by her parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert West of Belvedere, the engagement of Virginia Curtis King of Belvedere and Phillip Anthony DeMaria of Greenbrae was announced recently.

Ginny, a Marin Debutante in 1967, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. King and sister of Mrs. John P. Nutting, all of Belvedere. She was graduated from San Domenico High School in San Anselmo. Ginny attended Stephen's College in Columbia, Mo. and was graduated from California State Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo.

VIRGINIA CURTIS KING

Mr. and Mrs. John DeMaria of Greenbrae are Phillips's parents and his brother is John DeMaria. His local grandmother is Mrs. John DeMaria of San Rafael. Phillip was graduated from Bellarmine High School in San Jose and attends University of Santa Clara.

The couple plan a June 26 wedding.

When Toothpaste Is Harmful

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — For many years dentists have been distrubed about the possibility that some toothpastes may do more harm than good because of excessive abrasiveness.

People who brush their teeth after every meal, as they are told to do by most dentists, sometimes find that they destroy tooth enamel which they are trying to preserve in the fight against decay.

Dentists have known that some toothpastes are more abrasive than others, but until recently they have not been able to pinpoint the problem and cite scientific evidence on the matter.

That absence of evidence is no longer. The American Dental Association has announced results of a study showing that tooth enamel is indeed destroyed by some toothpastes more than others. It is the first time the association conducted such a study.

Abrasiveness is only one of the matters to be considered in buying toothpaste. Others are germ-fighting ability, presence or absence of fluoride and, of course, taste and general acceptability to the user.

But abrasiveness has become increasingly important because of the new emphasis on whiteness, which, according to one company, can give your mouth "sex appeal."

Give a compulsive brusher a very abrasive toothpaste, and the result may be the destruction of more tooth enamel that would occur from cavities without any brushing. The dental Association puts it this way: "Dental enamel is hard and resistant to abrasion. It is likely that significant amounts of enamel will not be lost by the judicious use of most of the dentifrices marketed today.

"It should be noted, however, that the compulsive brusher may wear away significant amounts of dental enamel, especially with the more highly abrasive formulations.

"A dentifrice should be more abrasive then is necessary to keep the teeth clean — that is, free of accessible plaque (the film that forms ridges of tartar) debris and superficial stain."

The Association concedes that the needs of each individual vary, that some people may be able to clean their teeth with a toothbrush and water alone. Most dentists also recommend use of dental floss or ribbon.

People who should be most concerned are those with gum problems which have exposed the softer portions of the teeth normally protected by the gum.

The study listed the relative abrasivity of 21 toothpastes, from lowest to highest, as follows:

T-Lak 20, Listerine 26, Pepsodent with zirconium silicate 26, Ammi-dent 33, Colgate with MFP 51, Ultra-Brite 64, Macleans spearmint 66, Macleans regular 70, Pearl Drops 72, Crest mint 81, Close-up 87, old formula Macleans spearmint and regular, both 93, Crest regular 95, Gleen II 106, Plus White 110, Phillips 114, Plus White Plus 132, Vote 134, Iodent #2 174 and Smokers Tooth Paste 202.

Any questions should be addressed to your dentist.

Change In National Diet Could Lower Heart Disease

NEW YORK (UPI) — A change in the national diet — now one of the highest in the world measured in fats and cholesterol —could lower the rate of heart disease in the United States by as much as 30 per cent, a panel of medical experts reported last week.

They recommended "safe and reasonable" changes in Americans' eating habits to reduce the "epidemic" of fatal heart attacks. Of a million people who suffer heart attacks in this country each year, half a million die quickly, and a third of that group is younger than 65 years old.

"Premature death from heart seizures occurs three times as often among men as among women.

The medical men, a federally-funded panel of 115 experts from medical and nursing societies, recommended action to curb the "three major risk factors" in artery and heart disease: high-fat diets, high blood pressure and smoking.

The group said the tobacco industry should be taxed, to provide funds for smoking control programs and treatment, and finally put through an "orderly phase out" to eradicate smoking as a "national habit."

Regarding fats, cholesterol and blood pressure, the physicians said the body of scientific evidence does not include enough scrutiny of the suspected connection to heart attacks and hardening of the arteries. They asked for a long-term program of national research into the American diet and, in the meantime, these "suggestive" changes until the "conclusive" results are in:

—Less consumption of fatty meats, egg yolks, butter, bacon, lard and baked goods and dairy products which have high levels of saturated fats and cholesterol.

— Development of leaner meat animals by the meat industry, and initiatives by the dairy industry to lower or eliminate saturated fats in its products.

—Revision of federal laws and regulations to require labeling indicating the precise fat content of foods: also, revision of certain regulations that prohibit producers' attempts to modify the fat content, as in the case where dairy firms are unable to substitute unsaturated vegetable oils for butterfat in milk without calling it "artificial milk."

These changes were recommended last week in a summary report from the Inter-society Commission for Heart Disease Resources, set up under the government's Regional Medical Programs to formulate policy guidelines to prevent heart disease and improve its treatment.

Accidents Can Be Prevented

CHICAGO (UPI) — Last year. 5,900 children under 15 years old were killed in all types of motor vehicle accidents.

"If any of the several types of approved restraining devices available for young children had been used, many of these children would not have died," says Howard Pyle, head of the National Safety Council.

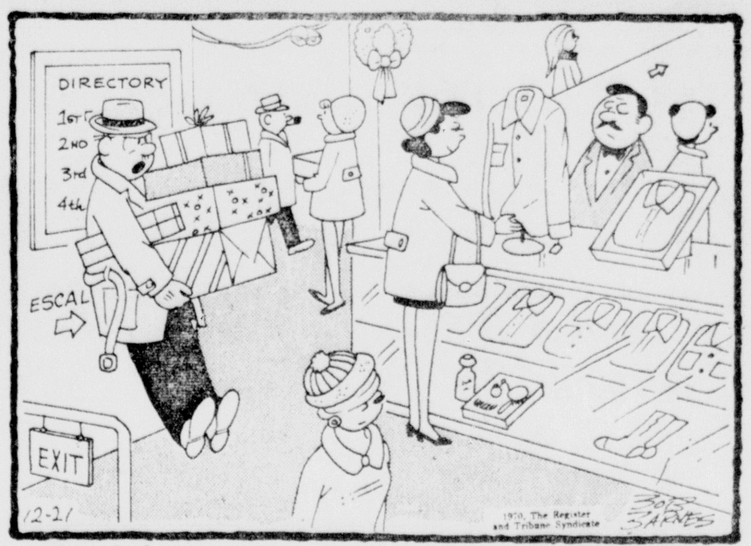
Pantyhose Sales

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Sales of pantyhose are still going up in Holland and other stockings are going down. A total of 55 million pairs of pantyhouse were sold in the first half of 1970, compared with 31 million in the first half of 1969. Other stocking sales dropped from 33 million to 8 million pairs.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes



"Don't let it get around, but my admiration for Ebeneezer Scrooge is growing by leaps and bounds."

FLEXIBLE FURNITURE

NEW YORK (UPI) —Furniture designers must give the American consumer furniture pieces that can be used in any room, in any size home, in any way the consumer chooses, says a leading case goods manufacturer. A. H. White, vice president of furniture marketing, Lea Industries, Inc., said in this era of "new functionalism and freedom of choice in home furnishings" traditional furniture categories are no longer valid.

Quality Is Pearl Factor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The factors to consider when buying cultured pearls include size, shape, color, luster and surface smoothness, says the Cultured Pearl Association.

Fine quality can come in any size and usually the bigger the pearl, the higher the prices. Shape varies from perfectly round to semi-round and baroque. The more perfectly circular, the more valuable and, again, the higher the price.

RUBBISH FOR REUSE IN RECYCLING DRIVE

Breaking glass with a hammer, Mrs. Earl Stanley helped fill one of the barrels used for collection of reusable material Saturday at the Coop parking lot on Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera. Glass, of separate colors, is one of the items collected in the drive by the Marin Ecology Center. It also collects tin cans and aluminum cans, but not cans of mixed metals. Boy Scouts have a permanent newspaper drop at Prime Market, Camino Alto and East Blithedale where bundles of tied newspapers may be left at any time. The next recycling collection will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Ali Baba Cafe at the Tam Junction in Mill Valley.

Forgotten Candle Was Fire's Cause

A fire which gutted a Tiburon apartment early Saturday and sent a woman occupant to the hospital was caused by a peculiar and dangerous type of candle, fire investigators said today.

Inspector Ken Howie of the Tiburon Fire Department said the blaze has been traced to a snowball candle which ignited a coffee table in the living room.

Elaine Griffiths, 59, who was carried from the burning apartment at 15 Harbor Oak Drive, was reported in fair condition today in the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital suffering from first and second degree burns. Her husband John, 58, was treated for smoke inhalation.

Howie said the couple apparently went to bed leaving the round snowball candle burning on the living room table. The candle is made of whipped wax and the wick is designed to burn down into the middle, he said.

"With the flame hidden from sight it's easy to forget to blow it out when you retire," Howie said.

The candle probably touched off the blaze when it burned through the bottom, releasing a pool of melted wax and then igniting it, Howie said.

Marin City Party

A 14-year-old Sausalito magician, Clifford Raisbeck, will perform at a children's Christmas Party Wednesday from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Manzanita Center, Marin City. The party, sponsored by the center, the Marin City Boys' Club and Mrs. Mary Brooks, is for youngsters from 3 to 13 years of age. Younger children must be accompanied by their parents.

Bomb Threat, Armed Theft Mar Concert By Joan Baez

The Joan Baez concert at Pepperland Saturday night was sprinkled with hidden excitement of a bomb threat and armed robbery, unknown to the crowd, San Rafael police reported.

"There's a bomb set to go off in Pepperland at 10 o'clock; we don't dig Joan Baez around here," a male voice telephoned the amusement place at 9:25 p.m., according to police.

Nathaniel Erskin Weathers, head of security, searched the building without interrupting the concert, police reported.

Outside the building, Thomas Robert Smiley of 25 Melville Avenue, San Anselmo, was robbed at knife point of $35 by three men in their early 20's, he reported to police. He ran from the parking lot to a phone several blocks away before alerting police who were unable to locate the men.

By MARIE RAMEAU

The Marin Civic Ballet's Sunday afternoon performance of "Nutcracker" revealed thorough and painstaking preparation on the part of the entire cast, complemented by tasteful costuming and well-proportioned sets.

Although Act I of "Nutcracker" usually leaves one impatiently awaiting some serious dancing, the pantomime, which forms its essence, was carried out with a good deal of character within the general framework. The act, culminating in the famous Snow Scene, featured a very poised pas de deux performed by Jane Thelan and Rocky White. Miss Thelan, although rather mechanical, showed a fine sense of line.

In Act II, however, the real potential of the company came to the fore. Out of the colorful pageantry of the Candy Kingdom proceeded a number of colorful divertissements. Outstanding among these were Becky Jones' Spanish dance and Carol Brannan's Arabian, both of which were permeated with a strong sense of style and humor. But speaking of humor, the buffoonery in the Russian dance appeared exaggerated to the point of distorting the "Russian" style.

The grand pas de deux, the highlight of the ballet, was staged in the traditional manner and was thereby a refreshing experience. Cindy Lucas as the Sugar Plum Fairy demonstrated lightness, precision and classical style and was elegantly partnered by Charles Perrier, whose natural stage presence was truly impressive.

As a vivid artistic experience displaying a wealth of young talent, the company's "Nutcracker" makes an important contribution to the cultural life of the Marin community. The Marin Civic Ballet is directed by Mrs. Leona Norman.

Santa's Sleigh Towed Away (Jingle)

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Vel Phillips, Milwaukee's only alderwoman, has won permission for women to swim in city swimming pools on Saturdays.

Saturdays used to be restricted to men in the city's five pools, Mrs. Phillips told a committee, a practic begun when men worked during the week and could only swim on Saturdays.

2 Kent Staters Get Suspended

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—Two Kent State University students have been disciplined for selling underground newspapers on campus without a permit to raise money for the legal defense of 25 persons indicted in the May disorders.

Jerry Persky, 21, a senior from South Euclid, Ohio, and president of the KSU chapter of the Youth International Party, and Gerald Alter, 20, a sophomore from Westfield, N.J., were put on probation for one quarter.

Alter was also suspended for one quarter for giving campus police false information when arrested.

Car Struck, Driver Charged

A 21-year-old Tamalpais Valley man was injured yesterday at 7:30 p.m. when his parked car was struck by another vehicle in front of 222 Evergreen Avenue, Tamalpais Valley.

Albert Von Der Werth III, of 515 Browning Street, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a bruised forehead.

The California Highway Patrol said Von Der Werth was working in his car when it was struck by a vehicle driven by William Strode, 43, of Los Gatos.

Strode was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of drunken driving and released on $360 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Wednesday.

Span Cycling Set Next Week

The east sidewalk of the Golden Gate Bridge is expected to be opened to bicyclists on weekdays sometime this week.

Bridge directors voted Dec. 11 to make use of the sidewalks toll-free and to open the east walk to cyclists on weekdays. Cyclists now are limited to the west walk and on weekends and holidays only.

The toll barriers were eliminated early this week, but yellow striping has yet to be added on the east walk to keep cyclists away from the roadway. Poor weather prevented the painting of the stripes this past week.

San Anselmo Planners To Hear Commercial Zoning Arguments

The San Anselmo Planning Commission, meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall, will hear arguments against rezoning four commercial properties at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Oak Knoll Avenue.

The commission initiated the action last month claiming there is no need for commercial zoning at that location. It has indicated it favors single-family residential use of the property.

Property owners, however, have objected saying the property was approved for commercial use by the city council in 1956. A review of city council minutes shows the original zoning for commercial use was rejected twice by the full council in 1955 and 1956 but then passed at a meeting which only three councilmen attended.

The 1956 council's 2-to-1 vote, the commission's staff has been told by city attorney John Buresh "may have been unethical but probably not illegal."

The commission's staff will recommend tonight that the commission consider residential zoning for the property other than single family.

Other agenda items the commission will consider include a rezoning request from Sunny Hills Children's Services for one parcel of land, continued consideration of a use permit for dance instruction at 205 The Alameda and a public hearing on rezoning property at 800 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from general commercial use to single family residential as proposed by the planning commission.

Water Board To Accept Land Deed

The Marin Municipal Water District board, meeting Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the district office, will accept a deed from George Kappas for land at his houseboat colony at Waldo Point on which the district will build a water main.

Also on the agenda is a report on the lease of the Jumpin' Bean Restaurant in San Rafael. The water district's attorney has notified the firm that the lease is being terminated for nonpayment of rent.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

A Second Chance Or A Head Start

By ERIC M. INGRAM

Michael Henry Mills is 25, in reasonably good health, married and the father of one. He also is unemployed and scrapes by each month thanks to county welfare checks. Since leaving high school eight years ago with no employable skill, he has in his words "been through the route and out the wringer."

George Bodenhamer, in contrast, is 17 and a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School from which he will graduate next month a semester early. He thinks a little about the draft and wonders whether he'll be accepted by the College of Marin this spring. He hasn't been "the route."

However opposite their lives may appear, both Mills and Bodenhamer have a similar goal for the future. Both want to be auto mechanics. Both are working toward that goal through a new county program.

For Mills, the Marin Career Education Program sponsored by the county schools office is an opportunity to learn a much needed trade, a trade in which he has always been interested but had no opportunity for training.

The two year automotive mechanic's course they attend from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. weekdays at San Rafael High School is part of a fledgling vocational training program started in September.

Besides the mechanics course, the county offers six other fields of training at various Marin high schools. They include marine technology, food service, welding, office occupations, plastics technology, and a second mechanics course dealing specifically with brakes and wheel alignment.

The courses have an enrollment of about 270, according to county schools office officials, who say the program is open to anyone from students to dropouts to hard-core unemployables, as long as they show a combination of need and desire.

The program, jointly financed by the county and state, is guided by an advisory board of educators and businessmen.

It is through the melding of experience and needs on the advisory board that the program has achieved its success, according to Lyle O. Wright and William Sovel of the schools office.

"Purpose of the program is to give students entry level skills into occupations that interest them," said Sovel, work experience coordinator, adding that the county's new program should not be confused with high school industrial arts courses. He said in the county's new program students learn specific jobs, how to find them and how to keep them.

Goals of the program are to give college-bound students a trade which they can use to aid them financially through college and immediate employment to the others upon completion of the course they choose, he said.

The seven courses are individually broken up into units so that students may gain one skill, such as radiator repair or several, which after two years would give a student in the mechanic's course for instance, immediate skills in service station, muffler, radiator, electrical, engine and transmission work.

Both Wright and Sovel agreed this type of program is overdue and may represent a trend away from the great emphasis on college preparatory studies in high school. However, both indicated it would be years, if ever, before vocational training will receive the emphasis at the high school level that it deserves.

"On a national average," Wright said, "80 per cent of the high school students do not go on to college and 50 per cent of those that do, don't graduate . . . As far as vocational training goes, high school students have been short changed."

The program, which Wright and Sovel judge to be successful and ahead of schedule after four months of operation, is costing Marin taxpayers about $200,000 per year.

Under a regional county wide concept, each program is centered at a high school and interested students from other high schools in Marin (as well as adults) travel to the course which interests them.

The courses also can be taken for credit towards high school graduation, Wright said.

Such is the case with Sue Krudop of San Anselmo, a senior at Sir Francis Drake High School and Billie J. Wright of Novato, a junior at San Marin High School, who are attending the office occupations course at Sir Francis Drake.

Both agreed the county's program is more stimulating than business courses offered at their high schools.

Since the program is not compulsory, the girls said, it attracts those that want to learn and does not become a dumping ground for uninspired students.

"I would rather come here all day than to regular school," said Miss Wright adding that the rate of learning is much faster because the students want to learn.

Her instructor, David J. Anderson, agreed that the students are stimulated but added that students are allowed to set their own pace. Thus a slow learner does not receive pressure which can be defeating.

Cash, Supplies Reported Stolen

Tools, supplies and cash totaling about $950 in value were stolen sometime between closing Friday and 5:07 a.m. Saturday from the Cerutte Brothers Service Station at Third and C streets, San Rafael, police said Saturday.

The items were later recovered abandoned in a truck parked near the station.

"My husband works harder than he should. He hardly ever wants anything for himself but, for some reason, he really wants that car."

"I think he should get it. After all, it's Christmas."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

How The Tournament Player Gets Extra No-Trump Trick

Today's hand will be of greater interest to tournament players than to rubber bridge players. There is no great problem in winning nine tricks, and that is all the rubber bridge player would care about. The match-point tournament player would work hard to get a 10th trick, since overtricks are the most important factor in tournament championships.

SLIGHT OVERBID

South's jump to two no-trump was a slight overbid by American standards, but this didn't matter since South was not an American. Jose Le Dentu, the great Parisian expert who held the South cards in an international tournament, didn't mind stretching a point or two to reach a desirable contract.

West opened the ten of spades, and East ducked to South's jack. Declarer counted 26 points for his side, which left 14 points for the opponents. Obviously, East held at least 12 of these high-card points for his first-hand opening bid. West might have a stray queen, but he could not have either of the missing aces.

NINTH TRICK

Le Dentu was sure of two spades, two hearts and four clubs. He developed his ninth trick by leading a club to dummy and returning a diamond to the queen. East had to play low to avoid giving declarer two diamond tricks instead of just one.

Declarer next led another club to dummy and returned a spade. East took the ace of spades and got out safely with a spade.

Now declarer took his clubs and dummy's high hearts. East had been forced to discard a spade and a heart on the clubs and was therefore reduced to one high heart and the A-J of diamonds.

THIRD HEART

When declarer led a third heart, East had to win and lead diamonds, thus yielding a 10th trick to dummy's king of diamonds. It was a routine exercise for a fine tournament player, but a rubber bridge player might have taken his nine tricks and conceded the rest in the interest of saving time.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠-K J 7
♥-9 8 4
♦-Q 7 6
♣-K Q 9 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs.

Since you have 11 points in high cards, your hand is too strong for a simple raise to two spades. Show your suit, such as it is, and await developments.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, Dec. 21, the 355th day of 1970 with 10 to follow. It is the first day of winter.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Jupiter and Mars. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1942 the supreme court upheld the validity of six-week divorces granted in Nevada.

In 1944 horse racing was suspended in the United States for the duration of World War II.

In 1968 Apollo 8 blasted off for the Moon orbit carrying astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders.

A thought for the day: Richard Trenth said, "we kneel, how weak, we rise, how full of power."

Police Hopeful Has To Grow

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police Chief Alfred Nelder hopes Fred Lau is successful in attempts to stretch himself by three-quarters of an inch.

"Now that we have a good man we wouldn't want to lose him over three-quarters of an inch," the chief declared Thursday.

Lau, 21, is a San Francisco State College student who wants to become a policeman, but is only 5 feet 7 1-4 inches tall.

Police regulations call for recruits to be 5 feet eight inches

A message to I-J newspaperboys and their parents

During the past 10 days or so I-J carriers have faced difficulties which would try anyone's patience and devotion to duty - and so have their parents.

It was hard enough that the paper was late, forcing the boys to wait and their parents to wonder just when they'd get through with delivery. But on top of that it rained day after day with record intensity. It was a time of trial for both newspaperboys and parents. (Many parents even helped their youngsters out on the route).

As you probably know the lateness of the I-J has been due to a major technological change-over here in the I-J plant.

The transition has brought problems which can only be solved by actually producing the paper with the new facilities, similar to "road testing" an advanced automobile.

This was temporary but we have been greatly concerned with the inconvenience it has brought you . . . the waiting, the cold and the rain.

As we overcame these production problems we will remember how you continued to deliver the I-J under the most trying conditions. It was an admirable effort . . . when time ran short and the rains came down.

We also appreciate the letters and comments from parents encouraging us, too, during this difficult period.

Our sincere thanks to all.

Military Academies Strapped

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) —Like the cadets of Gascoyne, those "defenders of old homes, old names, old splendors," the sons of Southern gentry once were schooled early in the use of bugles and gunpowder.

Military academies flourished across Dixie. Their histories — or legends —are filled with stories of how boy soldiers fought and died in the Yankee onslaught.

Time mutilates tradition. Values are sometimes reversed.

Faced with a wave of anti-military sentiment, growing permissiveness in the home, and a general shortage of money, the nation's military prep schools are struggling to keep their doors open.

SOME CLOSE

Some have succumbed and closed. Others are staying alive on the strength of endowments and cutbacks. A few have obliterated tradition by admitting girls.

"In today's world, children don't want to go to a place and be under rules and regulations where they can't have cars and do what they want all the time," said Capt. Earl M. Clark, headmaster at Admiral Farragut Academy in St. Petersburg.

And some parents, according to Jack Natcher of Miami Military Academy, "feel military training is a passport to Vietnam."

ENROLLMENT DOWN

The National Association of Independent Schools said 14 military prep schools responding to a recent survey reported their enrollments down this year. Kentucky Military Institute recently closed its winter facilities in Venice, Fla., and prestigious old Culver Military Academy in Indiana is now accepting coeds as day students.

Goergia Military Academy at Milledgeville, Ga., McCallie School at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bolles in Jacksonville, Fla., have dropped their military programs.

Gordon Military College at Barnesville, Ga., having experienced a 15 per cent enrollment slump since the start of the Vietnam War, has started admitting girls and letting its boys grow longer hair.

While Farragut's Clark admits enrollment at most military schools is dropping, he is optimistic about the future. "I think the pendulum has begun to swing the other way."

A notable exception to the current trend is Sanford Naval Academy, sister institution of Castle Heights Military Academy in Lebanon, Tenn., which has shown steady growth since it first opened here seven years ago. This year it has 319 midshipmen in grades 6-12.

"We believe a young man with college acceptance on his mind will concentrate and succeed in a strictly masculine environment," Turner said. "Occassionallz we lose a boy who wants to be home with his girl friend, but the Sanford battalion is generally willing to work harder for weekend furloughs."

Miami Military Academy enrolled 17 coeds as day students for the first time this year to help ease the economic pinch. Natcher, executive vice president, says he is "gratified" with the result.

Conspiracy Trial Set Precedent

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — The Seattle conspiracy trial is over for the moment, but the legal implications of its sudden end may strongly affect future trials where disruptive courtroom tactics are employed.

U.S. District Judge George Boldt's declaration of a mistrial and his ruling that the defendants must serve their contempt sentences before a new trial can be held may chill the hopes of radicals who plan to use the courts as a political platform.

But the "Boldt doctrine," which the judge said came as an answer to his "daily prayers," must first be upheld in the appeal courts.

In essence, the "Boldt doctrine" involves calling a mistrial when the actions of the defendants have, in the opinion of the judge, prejudiced their own case with the jury.

Then, the judge would sentence the defendants for contempt of court and uphold the beginning of a new trial until the contempt terms had been served.

If disruptions continue to occur in subsequent trials, the procedure could be repeated, apparently endlessly.

Not only could the use of such a plan have a direct effect on limiting courtroom outbursts, but it would deny radical defendants news exposure and fund-raising appearances between trials.

In short, Boldt's plan has considerably upped the ante for those defendants who consider their strongest defense to be a direct attack on the court system-in the courtroom itself.

However, attorneys for the seven defendants, charged with conspiring to damage federal property at a Feb. 1 demonstration at the U.S. Courthouse in Seattle, have already started vigorous appeal.

Attorney Michael Tigar said he knew of no case where a mistrial had been called on such grounds.

Tigar, a law professor at UCLA, said it was possible there never will be another trial for the Seattle Seven. His appeal will attempt to show the mistrial order was not justified and a second trial would be double jeopardy.

Boldt called the mistrial Dec. 10 after the six male defendants held up the start of the court session for nearly 30 minutes to protest part of the overflow crowd of spectators being forced to wait outside in the rain.

Last Monday, when the judge announced the contempt sentences of six months each for the male defendants, Susan Stern, the only female defendant, insisted on addressing the court, even though illness had prevented her from being in court when the disruption occurred.

The judge warned her that if she spoke during the contempt hearing, she, too, would be found in contempt. She spoke anyway and a near-riot broke out in the courtroom when deputy marshals attempted to physically cut short her emotional, 25-minute speech.

In all, defendants Marshall, Jeffrey Dowd, Michael Abeles, Joseph Kelly and Roger Lippman were sentenced to a total of one year in jail on two separate contempt charges each. Lerner and Mrs. Stern were sentenced to six-month jail terms on one charge of contempt each.

Five-Year-Old Hurt By Car In Petaluma

Richard Stilwell, 5, of 124 Howard Street, Petaluma has been treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts of the hands and arms suffered when he was struck by a car near his home.

Police said he darted from between parked cars Thursday into the path of a car driven by Ralph L. Duncan, 40, of 1265 Tamales Road, Petaluma.

Police Use Radio To Talk Car In

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The Los Angeles County sheriff's department lost one of its patrol cars Sunday but a persuasive radio dispatcher talked a 16-year-old youth into bringing the auto back.

"You've got problems," dispatcher Roy Beattie told the young thief, explaining things would go easier for him if he returned the car.

Thirty minutes later, the youth drove up to the place where he had stolen the vehicle from deputy George Leake. Leake was waiting. The teenager was booked under the juvenile code for grand theft auto.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Permanent Damage Results From Neglected Arthritis

Approximately 50 per cent of persons with rheumatoid arthritis get well spontaneously. Exceptions occur when the disease is neglected or deformities develop. Arthritics never should assume a wait and see attitude because the condition is painful and neglect may result in permanent damage to the involved tissues.

More than a dozen remedies are capable of bringing relief. Home physical therapy — warm baths, massage and gentle manipulation — keeps the joints flexible and the muscles in good tone. The majority of arthritics get along well so long as they continue to take their medicine and keep up their resistance. When treatment is stopped, symptoms may recur, but improvement often lasts for months or years.

THE EARLY care of rheumatoid arthritis is stressed because surgery is becoming an encouraging alternate treatment. Best results are obtained when the involved tissues are removed early in the course of the disease. In rheumatoid arthritis, the membranes lining and surrounding the bony joint are swollen and inflamed. Removal of these membranes theoretically results in cure, but total success depends upon whether the bony tissue is undamaged and whether the joint will function normally without them. Better results can be expected when the operation is done early because at this point the damage is usually minimal. Paradoxically the victim is less inclined to consider surgery when his symptoms are not severe.

ASPIRIN AND other salicylates are most useful, regardless of the severity of the arthritis. Those who develop gastric irritation should use a buffered aspirin, a coated product or an acetaminophen. Other standard rheumatoid arthritis remedies include gold salts, antimalarial drugs, the corticosteroids, Butazolidin and Indocin. These are potent drugs and frequently cause side reactions.

Meanwhile, we can expect more news concerning the experimental drugs. In the past, most of these have enjoyed a period of initial enthusiasm, succeeded by one of caution, and then, after several years of use, they find a true niche in the treatment regimens.

GERM PHOBIA

Miss J. G. writes: I would like to know how to cure germophobia. Can I accomplish this without psychiatric help? I am 22 years old and single.

REPLY

Much depends on the severity of the problem, your emotional status and what precipitates this abnormal fear of germs. If you cannot answer these questions or gain an insight into your problem, a psychiatrist may be needed. Most victims of this phobia are able to live with it even tho they constantly wipe off dinnerware, door knobs, telephones, and avoid close contact with others.

A CARROT A DAY

REPLY

Carrots provide roughage, minerals, vitamins A and C, and carotene. Furthermore, you have selected an item that is virtually free of calories.

TB OF BONE

L. B. writes: How is tuberculosis of a leg bone treated?

REPLY

With anti-tuberculosis agents, such as PAS, streptomycin, and isoniazid.

To place the "world" in readable form before you the I-J and United Press International draw upon some rather fantastic facilities

At the I-J we extend your subscription to the entire globe of events daily . . . with an almost magical assist from United Press International.

As the world's largest "nervous system" for communicating news, UPI links the I-J newsroom (and you) with virtually every place on earth. The nerves are 658,000 miles of cable and telegraph circuits and another 110,000 miles of intercontinental radio teleprinter channels. It is a two-way complex that speeds news to and from even the most remote part of the world in a matter of seconds.

To gather and write the news UPI employs an army of more than 10,000 reporters, correspondents, editors and technicians . . . operating from 238 bureaus in 62 nations. Whether the source is Moscow, Saigon, Madrid or Chicago, UPI is literally there in person.

With the news come pictures, sent electronically to the I-J where a UPI Unifax machine creates an exact image of a photograph which may have been taken within the hour in Cairo or London.

The point of course is that you are kept informed. You gain perspective on the world . . . on events which are always in the process of happening. Welcome to the world . . . 8 columns wide in the I-J, daily.

MAGICAL MACHINE. I-J editors select news photofacsimiles produced by UPI's UNIFAX equipment. Pictures take form in the I-J newsroom 8 minutes after transmission over the wire.

Electricity Magnet Passes Test

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI)—A massive magnet capable of heating gases to temperatures 20 times hotter than the sun for one-second periods has passed its first tests.

The 13-ton "Baseball II" magnet is designed to meet two of the three requirements for harnessing the power of the hydrogen bomb for generation of electricity.

The three criteria for achieving a controlled thermonuclear reaction—in which light atoms such as hydrogen and helium are fused with a tremendous outpouring of energy—are time, temperature and density.

Scientists at Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, an Atomic Energy Commission facility operated by the University of California, said Sunday that Baseball II will form a "magnetic bottle" in which the temperature and time requirements are met.

This will allow concentration in building up the density of hot gases—or plasmas—trapped inside the magnetic field of the six-foot diameter, superconducting magnet which got its name because it is shaped like the seam of a baseball.

After minor modifications and further engineering tests, the magnet will be hooked up in March to Livermore's thermonuclear fusion experiment.

The new apparatus will not meet all the requirements for a full fusion reaction, but scientists expect it to significantly advance their research on the problem.

They indicated the unique combination of large size and high strength made it an important predecessor of a potential reactor.

A number of fusion devices have met different combinations of two of the requirements, but none has achieved all three. A Russian device called tomamak has come the closest so far.

The first engineering tests on Baseball II were conducted under the direction of Dr. Carl Henning, project engineer. Dr. Charles Damm is physicist in charge of the overall experiment and Dr. Richard Post, who pioneered the "mirror" fusion approach used in the program, is the group leader for the research.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Promptly Relieved

In many cases Preparation H gives prompt, temporary relief from such pain and itching and actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. In fact, many doctors, themselves, use Preparation H® or recommend it for their families. TELEVISION REVIEW

Public Affairs, Sports On Tap

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Christmas week on television will be marked by an outpouring of sports, entertainment and public affairs specials.

Tuesday night, Bill Cosby and Shirley MacLaine are hosts of an hour entertainment salute to youngsters around the globe, "A World Of Love," presented in conjunction with the United Nations Children's Fund.

Other stars on the CBS-TV hour include Barbra Streisand, Audrey Hepburn, Richard Burton, Julie Andrews, Harry Belafonte and Paul Sills' "Story Theatre" performers.

There is also a notable documentary rerun Tuesday night—"The Journey of Robert F. Kennedy," to be seen on ABC-TV's "Movie of the Week." And, same night, NBC-TV offers another repeat of its Bing Crosby-Danny Kaye movie musical, "White Christmas," which includes 15 Irving Berlin songs.

On Thursday, Christmas Eve, there will be three midnight services from New York City houses of worship: St. Patrick's Cathedral (NBC-TV); the Chapel of the United Nations Church Center (CBS-TV) and the Church of the Epiphany (ABC-TV).

In addition, CBS-TV will present a half-hour Christmas Eve special with folksinger Pete Seeger, who once had trouble getting on commercial television at all because of his social views.

On Christmas Day, NBC-TV's "Today" program offers Yule music that underscores paintings and drawings of religious festivals, churches and Christmas scenes by famous artists, including Norman Rockwell, Andrew Wyeth and Grandma Moses. The same network will also air an hour Christmas Day service from the Washington (D.C.) National Cathedral.

There will be an hour Christmas Day concert on CBS-TV, "Sol Hurok Presents—Part IV," with violinist David Oistrakh and pianist Sviatoslav Richter performing chamber music duets by Beethoven and Brahms.

ABC-TV, meanwhile, will have two Christmas Day sports events: A pro basketball game between the Atlanta Hawks and Phoenix Suns; and the North-South Shrine All-Star football contest, with top college seniors of the 1970 season participating.

On Christmas night, CBS-TV will present the movie version of the renowned comedy "Life With Father," about the eccentric head of a family with four redhaired sons that lived in a New York brownstone in 1880. The stars are William Powell, Irene Dunne and Elizabeth Taylor.

The weekend will bring the start of the pro football playoffs. On Saturday, CBS-TV has the Detroit Lions-Dallas Cowboys contest; and NBC-TV has the Baltimore Colts-Cincinnati Bengals game. ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports," meanwhile, has the World Cup Soccer Championship match between Italy and Brazil, at Mexico City. And NBC-TV will show an hour special, "Rapping With Brinkley," in which David Brinkley and student newspaper editors discuss major news stories of 1970.

Sunday, the pro football playoffs continue, with CBS-TV offering the Minnesota Vikings-San Francisco 49ers matchup; and NBC-TV presenting the Oakland Raiders-Miami Dolphins contest.

Next Monday, by the way, William F. Buckley Jr. is a guest on NBC-TV's "Laugh-In"; and the same network reruns "Lilies of the Field," with Sidney Poitier in his Oscar-winning role as an ex-G.I. who helps a group of nuns build a chapel in the Arizona desert.

The Most Exciting Headache News In Years!

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Non-Narcotic Tablet That Needs No Prescription Proves Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

In recent medical tests doctors proved a famous tablet that needs no prescription gives the same complete headache relief as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors.

These doctors' tests proved, beyond a doubt, that Anacin is just as effective to relieve tension headaches, yet Anacin needs no prescription and is far more economical.

With Anacin, headache pain and its nervous tension vanish in minutes. Despite its strength, Anacin is not narcotic. You can take it without getting dizzy or an upset stomach.

Next time take powerful, fast-acting Anacin. Anacin Tablets give the same complete headache pain relief as the leading prescription product for which doctors wrote 21 million prescriptions last year.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Review Of Many Changes In Last Year's Tax Reform Act

We have a full year now under the new 1969 reform act, and there are a lot of changes in this law. In fact, it's the biggest change since 1954. It is a good idea to know what these changes are and to look out for them. Therefore, I am listing below the major changes that may affect you, the individual taxpayer. Clip this list and keep it handy for when you are making up your tax return. Review it now and see what you can do now about these changes to reduce your 1970 tax bill:

1. Capital gains: 25 per cent maximum tax applies only to first $50,000 — maximum tax on excess is 29.5 per cent for 1970, 32.5 per cent for 1971. Untaxed half of capital gains is preference income.

2. Casualty losses: All losses must be netted. Only net loss is fully deductible. Insurance covering extra living expenses when a casualty damages your home is not taxable. Keep a good record of costs.

3. Charitable contributions: New 50 per cent ceiling for gifts to public charities; 30 per cent limit for gifts of appreciated property. Deduction limited to your cost on gifts of ordinary income and short-term appreciated property.

5. Depreciation limited on real estate: New residential rental property 200 per cent. All other new property 150 per cent. Recapture on residential rental realty okay, all other has been changed.

6. Dividends-Stock: Your choice of cash or stock, and all stock dividends on preferred stock and other formerly so called "tax free" distributions are taxed.

7. Farmers: The new rules make a lot of changes for the so-called "farm tax shelters." These are exceedingly complex and you should study them carefully if you are a farmer. They provide for recapture of farm losses when the farm is sold, for recapture of farm land expenditure when the farm is sold, sharply limit the opportunities for capital gain on the sale of livestock, require capitalization of citrus grove development costs and really do a job on tightening the hobby loss provisions.

8. Income Averaging: Rules changed to include capital gains and lottery winnings.

9. Moving expenses: There are now deductions for house hunting, temporary living expenses and costs of selling and buying a home.

10. Personal exemptions: Now $625 for 1970.

11. Preference income: A new concept. There is now a 10 per cent tax on excess of preference income over $30,000 plus regular income tax.

There are nine different items that are considered preference income: (1) excess investment interest; (2) depletion; (3) accelerated depreciation on real estate; (4) restricted qualified stock options; (5) net long term gains; (6) amortization of certified pollution control facilities; (7) amortization of railroad rolling stock; (8) bad debts —financial institutions, and (9) accelerated depreciation on personal property subject to net lease.

12. Profit sharing distributions: Employer contributions made after 1969 are ordinary income when distributed to you subject to 7-year averaging; balance is long term gain. Income averaging can apply.

If any of these apply to you then you should purchase the book "Your Federal Income Tax — 1971 Edition" for sale by the Revenue Service for 75 cents and look up the answers before you file your return.

Pleads Innocent To Pot, LSD Charges

Cee Wind, 31, of Novato has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possession of marijuana and LSD and shoplifting. Preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 19.

She was arrested last Saturday outside the Roger Wilco Market at 2045 Novato Boulevard.

Wreaths On Light Standards Will Not Glow

The needed sockets for the outlets didn't arrive in time, reported Billie Garl, chamber secretary.

Chamber of directors also announced the city birthday party, sponsored by the chamber, will be held Jan. 23 at the officers' club at Hamilton Air Force Base, and appropriated $200 for promotion of the Junior Miss pageant to be conducted by the Novato Jaycees Jan. 10 at the community house.

$151 In Stereo Equipment Stolen

Thieves took $151 in stereo tape equipment from a car Thursday after smashing all the lights in a carport and kicking in the auto's $25 rear window. San Rafael police reported.

James C. Rasmussen of 95 Medway Road, Apt. 5, told police his car was entered between 1 a.m. and noon. The thieves also took a $7 air cleaner, police said.

Sewage Plant Plans On Tap

Preliminary architectural plans for the proposed Bolinas sewage treatment plan will be considered at a special meeting of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

Clerk Jane Boyer said the board will also consider a resolution to endorse the Brown and Caldwell master plan for sewage disposal in Southern Marin which calls for disposal through an ocean outfall line.

The board will meet in closed session to discuss negotiations for the purchase of property, Mrs. Boyer said.

Youths' Jailing Report In Error

The Independent-Journal erred Thursday in reporting that two Larkspur boys, aged 13 and 15, were ordered held in Marin County Jail because of repeated escapes.

The pair, William John Tadder of 52 Millard Road and Scott Elwin Baker of 40 Diane Lane were taken to juvenile hall.

Larkspur police arrested them Wednesday as escapees from juvenile hall and as suspects in a rash of burglaries.

SENSATIONAL CATCH —San Francisco receiver Gene Washington (18) made this spectacular catch of John Brodie's 33-yard touchdown pass between Oakland defenders Kent McCloughan and Dave Grayson in second quarter. Washington then jumped for joy (right).

JIM GILMARTIN

After 25 Long Years
It's Hard To Believe

I still can't believe it. Pinch me to prove I'm awake.

Yessir, those incredible 49ers did it yesterday and they did it good by rubbing the noses of the Oakland Raiders in the mud at the Oakland Coliseum, 38-7. A fantastic reversal of an earlier season loss to the same Raiders.

It meant the Western Division title of the National Football Conference and a chance at the Super Bowl in Miami next month. With a 10-3-1 record — the third best of the 26 professional teams — the Niners now start the rugged path to Miami. First they must meet those rugged Minnesota Vikings next Sunday and to play in Bloomington, Minn. in late December is like taking on the Russkies in Siberia. The quarterback doesn't say "Hike!" He says "Mush!"

The great all-around performance that produced 38 points made the 49ers the highest scoring team in the league. And much credit goes to an offensive line that made quarterback John Brodie the least sacked passer in the NFL. An all-time low of eight in 14 games. When John has time, he can really throw and the catches by Gene Washington and Ted Kwalick yesterday were masterpieces. I'd rather see re-runs of them than a rerun of a Rembrandt.

Sure, the 49ers blew a game to Atlanta and were tied by New Orleans, and suffered legitimate losses to Los Angeles and Detroit, but you must remember some of their good ones, like yesterday and some of those come from behind victories.

They had a lousy exhibition season, but I can't help but recall a conversation I had with middle linebacker Frank Nunley early in the season. Nodding toward Coach Dick Nolan, Nunley said: "Any success we enjoy will be totally because of and dedicated to that man. And I mean all 40 of us are behind him all the way." Other 49ers have told me the same thing.

Nolan is that type of a coach. A nicer guy you'll never meet and he is a perfectionist. He showed me his play book one day and it was so complicated I thought I was reading a computerized version of Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

That's why when he was hired prior to the 1968 season it was generally believed that it would take the 49ers three years to learn his complicated system. Right on schedule, gang!

After watching the 49ers through 25 fruitless years I just couldn't believe my eyes. Here is a club that has annually killed itself with mistakes. Yesterday the Niners forced the proud, poised and dynamic Raiders into nine —yes, 9 — turnovers. Hell, they don't have that many turnovers at the Baronial Bakery.

Another impressive aspect of this Niner club is its youth which means we could have the makings of a dynasty on our hands. They may be a year or two away from the Super Bowl, but with such great young players with years left in their careers, you can bet that San Francisco will be shooting for the Super Bowl in the not-too-distant future.

Hey, I'm not counting them out yet. I wanna go to Miami next Jan. 17. The 49ers vs. the Raiders. Incredible.

Cal State Tops Sonoma Quint

The Sonoma State College Cossacks absorbed their second loss in as many games at the Rogue Valley Invitational basketball tournament in Ashland, Ore., when they bowed to Cal State of Hayward, 69-65 Saturday night.

The game was not as close as the score indicates. Cal State had a 10-point lead with three minutes to play.

Larry Austin and Jeff Barker scored 18 points apiece to lead Sonoma State, while Jerry Dohling had a like amount for Cal State.

A Marin Catholic 'First'

Marin Catholic High School won its first basketball tournament ever Saturday night, defeating favored St. Patrick's of Vallejo in double overtime, 63-58 in the final game of the Rose City Invitational in Santa Rosa.

San Marin of Novato, the other Marin County Athletic League team in the tourney, dropped the consolation final to Santa Rosa, 62-44.

Heroes were plentiful for the Wildcats of Kentfield, who had not been considered, even as a dark horse, to figure in the finals. Bill Donellan, Tim Stone and Austin Sullivan, all of whom were named to the all-tourney team, were magnificent on offense, while Mike Hurley contributed a masterful defensive effort to hold Dan Dion, most valuable player of the three-day event, to just six points in the first half.

Donellan scored 23 points, Stone had 18 and Sullivan six, but it was Jack Stahl, a reserve guard, who provided the game's most clutch performance. In the second overtime, he connected on six of six free throws that sent the Wildcats ahead for good.

Had it not been for Stahl, Marin would have been in deep trouble, since they lost Sullivan, Hurley and Steve Vanni on fouls late in regulation time and during the first overtime.

Marin Catholic	14	14	10	11	4	10	— 63
St. Patrick's	9	10	15	15	4	5	— 58

Marin Catholic — Donellan, 10-3-23; Sullivan, 1-7-9; T. Stone, 7-4-18; Vanni, 0-1-1; D. Stone, 0-1-1; Stahl, 1-6-8; Totals — 21-21-63.

St. Patrick's — 8-10-26; T. Ward, 3-0-6; Kuykendall, 3-4-10; Lyon, 1-5-7; P. Ward, 0-1-1; Thompkins, 3-2-8; Totals — 18-22-58.

Redwood Wins Yuba Tournament

The Redwood High School Giants made their trip north to Yuba worth it Saturday night as they defeated Liberty of Brentwood, 65-55 to win the Yuba City Invitational basketball tournament.

In posting their third win in as many games, the Larkspur boys knocked off a team that had won seven games this season without a loss.

Down 9-1 almost before they got their warmup jackets off, Redwood came storming back to take a 15-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. They never trailed after that.

Two Giants, Steve McGee and Scott Trobbe, were named to the all-tourney team, and in the final game they showed why, scoring 19 and 17 points respectively to pace the victory. Dave Tikker had 11 points, but his major contribution was 15 rebounds.

Redwood	15	19	17	14	—65
Liberty	11	14	10	20	—55

Redwood — McGee, 7-5-19; Trobbe, 6-5-17; Tikker, 4-3-11; Hennessey, 0-3-3; Hagler, 1-1-3; Pedler, 2-1-5; Farb, 0-3-3; Conner, 1-2-4; Totals—21-23-65. Liberty — Fachner, 1-1-3; Fortner, 3-3-9; Jay, 1-0-2; Knight, 1-3-5; Hanneger, 3-6-12; Rosenski, 6-9-21; Stoneberger, 1-1-3; Totals—16-23-55.

Seals' Vadnais Injured

DETROIT (UPI) —It's still a question today as to whether Carol Vadnais, one of the stalwarts of the California Golden Seals' defense, will be ready for National Hockey League action this week.

The Seals prevailed, 7-3, but the victory was tempered somewhat by the injury to Vadnais.

In running their Western Division record to 10-19-2—just one point behind the sixth place Los Angeles Kings—the Seals enjoyed one of their best all-around games of the season.

They built up a 3-0 lead after one period of play and had it up to 5-1 at the two-thirds mark. The Hicke brothers — Billy and Ernie — supplied the offensive fireworks as each knocked in two goals.

On defense, the Seals permitted the slump-ridden Red Wings just five shots in the first period and eight in the second.

The Seals return to OAKLAND Tuesday to meet the Chicago Black Hawks, who are quickly building up to run-away leaders in the Western Division.

Hockey Victories

Marin Amateur Hockey League teams scored three wins in three tries yesterday, as the Bantams and Pee Wees defeated teams from Santa Rosa, 5-3 and 5-2, and the Squirts blasted San Francisco, 16-1. In that game Tim O'Hara and Chris Bonbright each scored four goals.

49ERS CRUSH RAIDERS, 38-7

It's On To The Playoffs!

OAKLAND (UPI) — Neither the San Francisco Forty Niners nor the Oakland Raiders, both division champions this year, plan anything different this week as they prepare for their respective playoffs.

The Forty Niners ended 25 years of frustration Sunday by routing the Raiders, 38-7, to win the NFC West title and set up a date next Sunday in Minneapolis with the Minnesota Vikings in the opening round of the NFC playoffs.

The Raiders won the AFC West title a week ago by beating Kansas City. So Sunday's game with the Forty Niners didn't mean a thing to them, except to their pride. Next Sunday the Raiders host the Miami Dolphins in the AFC playoffs.

John Brodie and an alert defense shared honors for Sunday's big victory over the Raiders, which gave the Forty Niners the title by a full game over the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm going to send George Allen (Rams coach) a telegram," said middle linebacker Frank Nunley, whose play season-long figured in San Francisco's winning. "I'm going to wire him out with the old and in with the new."

Nunley's humor was about the extent of San Francisco's celebration. The Forty Niners didn't tear up their dressing room, spill champagne or otherwise carry on any differently than they have in any other winning game this year. But there was no mistaking their job.

"This is my proudest moment," said coach Dick Nolan, a man not known for his exuberance. "We stuck to our game plan, hit hard and didn't make any mistakes. when you can do all those things you have to win."

Nolan said the club will prepare for the Vikings the same as it has for any other team.

"We'll hold our usual workouts and meetings," said Nolan, who in three years rebuilt the Forty Niners from chronic losers to division champs. "We'll leave for Minneapolis on Friday and if it snows, I don't think it will make any difference."

Brodie completed only 7 of 21 passes in the rout of the Raiders but three of them were scoring strikes. The Forty Niners also came up with the ball nine times on four Oakland fumbles and five pass interceptions.

Brodie, the NFC's leading passer season long, threw touchdown strikes of 26 yards to tight end Ted Kwalick, 34 yards to wide receiver Gene Washington and 27 yards to running back Bill Tucker. In addition, Ken Willard scored on a one yard smash, Jimmy Johnson ran 36 yards with an intercepted pass and Bruce Gossett booted a 42-yard field goal.

The three TDs gave Brodie 24 for the season. And he and the Forty Niner offensive line helped set a pro football record when the Raiders failed to dump him even once. That left Brodie with a season total of

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) Cal State Long Beach came from behind in the fourth quarter to tie Louisville, 24-24 in the Pasadena Bowl Saturday. The Cardinals from Kentucky had the momentum in the final minutes, and seemingly scored to break the deadlock, but the touchdown play involved two forward passes and was ruled illegal.

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Tech place kicker Dickie Ingram just couldn't believe it after he missed a 24-yard field goal attempt with three minutes left and his team trailing George Tech, 10-9 in the Sun Bowl Saturday. "I just missed it. I couldn't believe it. I shanked the ball and it was wide," Ingram said.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Fran Curci, who coached the University of Tampa Spartans to a 10-1 season this year, was named head football coach at the University of Miami Saturday.

Curci, a former quarterback for the Hurricanes, had been eyeing the Miami job for several weeks and the University reportedly offered him a five-year contract at $30,000 a year.

BASEBALL

The surgery was done by Dr. Frank Jobe, Dodger orthopedic specialist, Saturday at California Hospital. Jobe said the operation was successful and Singer should recover completely well before the baseball club goes to spring training in February.

BASKETBALL

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers, led by the newest member of the National Basketball Association's 20,000 point club, Jerry West, invade the stronghold of the Milwaukee Bucks for tonight's nationally televised game.

The game is highlighted by the second clash of the season between centers Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers and Lew Alcindor of the Bucks. The last time they met was in November on the Lakers' home court and Milwaukee scored a 117-100 victory.

BOXING

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Mike Quarry awaited the next step up the ladder in the light heavyweight ranks after having scored his 25th straight win to remain undefeated by decisioning Amado Vazquez Saturday night.

The 19-year-old Quarry's victory brought him a promise from promoter Don Faser that he would try to match the younger brother of Jerry Quarry of heavyweight fame with Andy Kendall of Portland, Ore. early next year.

French Skiers Aren't Really Unbeatable

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) —The supposed invincibility of the French ski teams seemed less real today as the Olympic coaches of more than a dozen national ski teams took stock of the just-ended Val D'Isere meet that poked holes in the French team's reputation as unbeatable.

At the first international meet of the current season in Sestrieres, Italy, French skiers swept the first places in both of the events which count towards the World Cup, and the French press boasted their teams were untouchable on the slopes.

But after the just-concluded meet at Val D'Isere on French territory, there is less talk in skiing circles about this year's World Cup being an all-French affair.

One of the U.S. team coaches, for example, said the Val D'Isere meet proved the French could be beaten, even though they proved the toughest on the slopes and won two of four first places.

Elizabeth "Betsy" Clifford, a 17-year old Canadian girl from Camp Fortune, Ontario, who plans to start courses at the University of Toronto next year, was the first skier to prove in Val D'Isere that the French could be beaten.

The pig-tailed Miss Clifford won the opening event Wednesday, a special slalom in which she upset more highly-rated girls from France, Austria and the United States.

French skiers came back to win the men's giant slalom on Thursday and the women's downhill race on Saturday.

But in spite of brilliant performances by the winners of these two races —Patrick Russell and Isabelle Mir —the French victories were less than the French coaches admit they had hoped for.

Austria's Karl Schranz proved to be a better all-round skier than French ace Henri Duvillard, the hero of the Sestrieres meet, and won more points than Duvillard in the two World Cup events that were held.

Pudgy, freckle-faced Isabelle Mir took top honors in the women's downhill, but Wiltrud Drexel took away more World Cup points, even though she did not win first place in either of the women's events. Miss Drexel was the winner of the five-day Criterium among the women competitors because her second place in the downhill and her third position in the special slalom gained her more World Cup points than Miss Mir won by placing first in the women's downhill.

Skiing circles said it was still too early to tell how the World Cup competition would turn out. But some coaches were saying privately that Val D'Isere proved that the French Olympic teams, which got off to a good start in the first international meet in Italy, were not as unbeatable as they were thought to be only a week ago.

Ohio State Gridders At Disneyland

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Ohio State's Rose Bowl football squad took a day off from workouts today in order to permit the players their first recreational break, a visit to Disneyland.

"It's wholesome entertainment and our schedule calls for hard work the rest of the week until Christmas Day," coach Woody Hayes explained.

Rain held the players to a picture session and limbering up drills Friday. The soggy condition of the practice field forced the Buckeyes indoors for morning and afternoon workouts Saturday.

Although there still were puddles and soft spots Sunday, the Buckeyes were able to get in a long passing drill.

Vikings Crush Falcons; Vs. 49ers In Playoffs

ATLANTA (UPI)—Given a choice, Bud Grant says he wishes his Minnesota team's opponent in next week's playoff could be somebody like, well—how about Boston or New Orleans?

Unfortunately for the Vikings, that was not to be their fate, San Francisco won a game later in the day, eliminating Los Angeles and gained the right (certainly not the privilege) to meet Minnesota in the playoffs.

"It doesn't matter whether we play Los Angeles or San Francisco in the playoffs," said Grant, shortly after his gang of "purple people eaters" destroyed the Falcons and their former boss, Norm Van Brocklin, 37-7 Sunday. "We can't play Boston or New Orleans."

No one doubted which team in Atlanta Stadium was the best.

"I'm glad that's over," said Van Brocklin, who coached the Vikings from their infancy until 1966 when he resigned. "That's the end of a disappointing season but not a discouraging one. We have some good boys here, but we need more."

What Van Brocklin may well have been driving at was that the Falcons need to get rid of some of the not-so-good-boys.

Goalie Pays The Price

By United Press International

That's the way it went for the Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League Sunday night. Their goalie, Joe Daley, doesn't wear a mask and wound up getting a face full of stick that knocked him to the ice and allowed George Armstrong to slam home a loose puck and send Toronto on its way to 4-2 victory.

Armstrong's tally came with 3:46 gone in the final period and gave the Maple Leafs a 3-1 edge, putting the game out of reach for the Sabres and giving Toronto its sixth straight win.

Although Armstrong's goal slipped by the bloodied Daley, Punch Imlach, coach of the Sabres, contended that the Leafs' second goal, a Dave Keon 12-footer that eluded Daley with only 43 seconds left in the second period, was "the one that beat us. Instead of coming into the third period even, we were one behind," Imlach pointed out. "We got pressure on us all the time. When we relax, they put the puck in the net —that's the way it is with an expansion team. Toronto took advantage of our lapses."

In other action, the Boston Bruins won their eighth straight as John McKenzie scored a hat trick and Phil Esposito got two goals in a 7-2 romp over the Minnesota North Stars.

Bobby Hull calmly batted in a rebound with less than three minutes to play to give his Chicago Black Hawks a 2-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

BASKETBALL

Tourney Time For Cal Bears

On Christmas Day, the Bears from Berkeley will be eating their holiday meal in a hotel somewhere in Cincinnati and preparing for a clash Saturday with the Bearcats (4-1).

Hopefully, the Bears would like to be celebrating a championship from the Michigan Tournament on Christmas Day. Cal, 4-1, meets Wyoming (2-4) in the first round of the tournament tonight at Ann Arbor while Michigan and Harvard collide in the nightcap. The winners play for the tourney title on Tuesday.

Among the west coast teams enjoying an early bit of holiday cheer over the weekend were Southern California, Utah, Fresno State and Oregon. All emerged triumphant in tournaments or against intersectional foes.

Sixth-ranked USC ran its perfect record to 6-0 by edging Texas-El Paso 65-63 for the championship of the Sun Bowl Tournament. Paul Westphal sank two free throws with 11 seconds remaining to pull it out. Teammate Ron Riley netted 15 points in the finale and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

At the Utah Classic in Salt Lake City, host Utah defended its title with an 89-78 fight-marred victory over Washington. A free-for-all broke out with eight seconds left when Utah's Mike Newlin and Charles Dudley crashed into each other while pursuing a loose ball.

Fresno State downed small-college power Puget Sound 88-75 for the Fresno Classic title. Oregon ran its record to 5-1 with a 76-65 victory over Temple in a non-tournament clash.

Elsewhere, Princeton got 42 points from sophomore guards Brian Taylor, brother of Bruce Taylor of the San Francisco Forty Niners, and Ted Manakas to top Stanford 81-76; Washington State defeated Boise State 69-44; New Mexico State humbled San Jose State 114-55; Portland State took advantage of 53 turnovers to beat Eastern Montana 112-94 and Pepperdine won its fourth straight, 95-87, over Idaho State.

Easter Oregon took the Rogue Valley tournament by whipping Southern Oregon 87-73 while Hayward State outscored Sonoma State 69-65 for third place. Cal Poly-Pomona outlasted Occidental 102-97 for the championship of the Occidental Invitational while Fresno-Pacific turned back Cal Lutheran 76-72 for unnerup honors.

St. Mary's also was a consolation winner by beating Northern Arizona 91-72 in the Fresno Classic.

In other tournaments, three West Coast Athletic Conference teams finished last. New Mexico overwhelmed Santa Clara 91-62 in the Lobo Invitational, Detroit handed San Francisco its sixth straight defeat in the Volunteer Classic and McMurry upended Nevada-Reno 92-82 in the Cowboy Classic.

Fifth-ranked Marquette defeated 19th-rated Long Beach State 83-66 to just about knock the 49ers out of the top 20.

UCLA (5-0), idle over the weekend, puts its top-ranking on the line this week while entertaining Missouri Tuesday night and St. Louis Wednesday night at Pauley Pavilion.

In other games tonight, Alabama visits USC, Washington is at Kansas State, Stanford hosts Temple, Western Michigan travels to Stockton for a game with the Pacific Tigers and Oklahoma City tests Nevada-Las Vegas.

Wynn Suffers Stab Wound

HOUSTON (UPI)—Jim Wynn, 28, an outfielder with the Houston Astros for the past eight seasons, was stabbed early today in what police said was an apparent domestic quarrel. Doctors said Wynn was in satisfactory condition.

Astro second baseman Joe Morgan said Wynn's wife, Ruth, had told him she had stabbed her husband. Police officers said Wynn's wife also reported the incident to detectives.

DEFEAT SIERRA

Marin Tars Run Record To 11-1

The College of Marin Tars exploded, slumped and then rallied to defeat Sierra J.C. of Rocklin in a non-league basketball game Saturday night, 67-59.

It was the second win in two nights for the high flying Kentfield team, and their 11th victory of the season against a single loss. They have not been defeated since Dec. 6, when they bowed to Los Angeles City College.

Since then the Tars have reeled off six straight impressive wins, including Saturday night's. As usual, guard Joe Smith and center Roosevelt Green led the way, although they got bountiful help from the rest of the team. Smith hit on nine shots from the floor and six from the charity line for 24 points, while Green added 13. Mike Peden and Ken Gommeringer contributed eight each.

The Tars were never behind, and led by 10 at the half, but Sierra closed to within one midway through the second half. As has been their custom, the Tars managed to pull out again to a comfortable lead, and were taking their time when the final buzzer sounded.

Clark's Key Basket Paces 76ers Victory

By United Press International

Archie Clark, Terry Dischinger and Bernie Williams weren't the high scorers for their teams in the National Basketball Association. But their baskets were the ones that meant victory.

Clark sank a 22-foot jumper at the buzzer in regulation time to tie the score 123-123 and then sank two free throws with 26 seconds remaining in the overtime to give Philadelphia a 134-132 victory over Portland. Clark finished with 27 points while Billy Cunningham and Hal Greer had 31 apiece for Philadelphia.

Dischinger's free throw sewed up a 136-135 double overtime victory by Detroit over Cincinnati. Dischinger's 21 points for the game made him second in scoring to Detroit teammate Jim Walker, who also tied the game 127-127 on a field goal with seven seconds remaining in the first overtime.

Williams stole the ball from Seattle player-coach Lennie Wilkens and drove the length of the court for the winning layup with less than a minute left as San Diego beat the Supersonics 110-108. Williams had only four points while Elvin Hayes led San Diego with 35.

In other games, the action wasn't quite as close as Milwaukee beat Buffalo 131-101, and New York defeated Phoenix 113-118 and Chicago rallied for a 116-103 victory over Cleveland.

Petalumans Win Ukiah Tournament

The Petaluma High School Trojans overcame a 15-10 first quarter deficit and defeated a surprisingly tough Rancho Cotate prep team, 67-59 Saturday night in the championship game of the Ukiah Invitational basketball tournament.

Joe Rodola and Dave Thomas scored 18 points apiece to pace the Trojans of the North Bay I League to their second tournament title in as many weeks. Last week they captured the Drake Invitational.

Rancho Cotate, the surprise team of the tourney, got 24 points from super center Ron Seiler and 18 from Steve Wlodarczyk, but could not stay with Petaluma in the second half.

Rodola, Thomas and Kevin Gillmore made the all tourney team for the Trojans, while the Rohnert Park team placed two men, Seiler and Wlodarczyk.

The Drake Pirates lost their bid for third place in the El Camino high school basketball tournament in Daly City Saturday night, bowing to Westmoor, 83-61 in the final round.

The Pirates, who got bombed by Lowell the night before, 88-44, never led, and after going behind, 20-12 in the first quarter, things just got worse.

Bob Gregg led the San Anselmo team with 15 points. Others in double figures were Jit Singh with 12, Tom Carlisle with 11 and Jim Forni with 10.

Warriors Quickly Fall Back To Second Place

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — The San Francisco Warriors must get dizzy in first place.

For the second time this season, the Warriors ran off a win streak to reach the top only to swoon back to second the next night.

San Francisco, after slipping by Portland Friday night, lost 108-99 here Saturday to the Philadelphia 76ers in a game that threatened to be decided by technical fouls.

Officials Don Murphy and Manny Gomes slapped Philadelphia with three technicals and the Warriors with one as both teams sporadically jawed at the two.

Since neither team could open a comfortable lead in the first three periods, the technical fouls seemed important.

However, Philadelphia burst from a 74-73 third period lead to an 11 point margin, 88-77, four and a half minutes into the fourth period.

Guard Wally Clark scored six points in that span and finished with 21 for the game. The aging, but still effective, Hal Greer, then took over the game and scored 10 of the 76ers' final 20 points.

Greer topped all scorers with 33 points. Nate Thurmond led the Warriors' shooters with 22 points followed by Jeff Mullins with 21Jerry Lucas with 19 and Bob Portman with 18.

The game was the second of a doubleheader viewed by 5,746 at the Oakland Coliseum Arena. In the first, San Diego dumped Portland 118-108.

The Warriors who had won four games in a row will try to start another streak at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Cow Palance against the Boston Celtics.

Neat, Tidy Package For NFL Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was as neat and tidy as a brightly wrapped Christmas package—and just as welcome for the officials of the National Football League.

After 182 games under the new alignment, the regular season ended Sunday with six undisputed champions and two best second place teams. There were no ties and no coin flips.

"It kept the owners from looking like a bunch of donkeys," admitted Detroit Lion owner Bill Ford, who promised the rules will be changed next year to make it impossible for coin flips to decide playoff spots.

And the irony is that, in this season when it's better to give than receive, the Los Angeles Rams won nothing themselves—but pride —as they guaranteed there would be no coin flips by clobbering the New York Giants, 31-3.

If the Giants had won, they would have taken a playoff berth and George Halas would have flipped a coin at halftime of the San Francisco-Oakland game on national TV to decide the playoff spot for the second best team between Detroit and Dallas.

Instead, this is the way the playoffs now look:

Five clubs—Detroit, Dallas, Miami, Cincinnati and San Francisco—all clinched spots with victories Sunday.

Detroit blanked Green Bay 20-0, Dallas routed Houston 52-10, Miami blasted Buffalo 45-7, Cincinnati routed Boston 45-7 and San Francisco beat Oakland 38-7.

The Rams were in contention for three hours after they beat New York, but the San Francisco victory ousted the Rams from the playoffs.

In the other games, Minnesota beat Atlanta 37-7 to finish with a 12-2 record for the second straight year, San Diego upset Kansas City 31-13, Cleveland beat Denver 27-13, Washington edged St. Louis 28-27, Philadelphia topped Pittsburgh 30-20 and Chicago topped New Orleans 24-3.

Detroit and Miami wound up qualifying with the best second place record this year and the other six qualifiers are the conference champions. Kansas City finished second last year and won the Super Bowl and Detroit, which closed out with five straight victories, has a good shot at it this time.

It didn't take much time for the Rams to make sure there wouldn't be any need for Halas to flip any coins. After being forced to punt the first time they had the ball, the Rams scored the next four times they had it en route to a 24-3 lead and coasted past the Giants.

The Rams were annoyed that they were written off as an "old" team after last Monday night's loss to Detroit.. As Merlin Olsen put it, "we were ridiculed and laughed at by a number of people who said we were a group of old men who couldn't do the job and this hurt us because this is a team of great heritage and pride."

But it was still a disappointing season for the Rams, who have yet to win a single playoff game in George Allen's vie-year term as head coach and failed to even make the playoffs three times during that span. Allen's contract is now up, and owner Dan Reeves, who tried to fire him two years ago, is unlikely to renew it.

San Francisco would have clinched the Western title if the Giants had beaten the Rams But once the Rams won, the Forty-Niners went out and won it on their own as John Brodie threw three touchdown passes to cap his finest year as a pro and beat Oakland.

Craig Morton threw five TD passes, four to Bob Hayes, as Dallas made the playoffs for the fifth straight year by beating Houston.

With second string quarterback Sam Wyche throwing two TD passes after Virgil Carter left thegamewith bruised ribs Cincinnati breezed past Boston stopping the Pats without a first down for nearly three quarters.

Lem Barney, having an erratic season, was brilliant as Detroit beat Green Bay. He set up 10 points with kick returns totaling 119 yards and then scored on a 49-yard pass interception.

Besides the Rams, the two teams expected to make the playoffs this year who failed to do it were Cleveland and Kansas City. Cleveland was eliminated by Cincy's win, but the Browns still beat Denver as Bill Nelsen tossed two TD passes. But Kansas City knocked out by Miami's triumph, was routed by San Diego as John Hadl threw three TD passes.

John Madden, the Oakland coach, wasn't too upset at his team's showing. He was happy, though, that the Raiders came out of it without an injury despite a game that was played from start to finish in the rain and mud.

"We'll do what we usually do by way of getting ready for Miami," said Madden, who saw his Raiders finish the year with an 8-4-2 record, compared to San Francisco's 10-3-1 mark.

"Obviously, we did a few things wrong," said Madden, "But give credit to the Forty Niners. They played a perfect game."

"Football is a game of hills and valleys," he said, "but this one looked more like the San Andreas fault."

Get tough about love.

The word "love" has been hurled at us so many times, sometimes we don't even hear it any more.

The fact remains, Love is what the world needs now. And it needs a lot of it.

But not "Love" on a poster. Or on a button. It's good-hearted, hard-minded acts of love the world needs. Acts of concern. Acts of respect for other human beings. Acts of creatively changing the world around us for the better.

Send for our free booklet, "How One Town Put Its Faith To Work."

It tells you how a group of ordinary people in an ordinary town turned things around. All because they wanted to live the commandment: "Love your neighbor."

It just might bring love back in style.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Immediate Outlook Unclear At Brody

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have 500 shares of Brody Seating bought at 3⅛. Now I am thinking about buying another 1,000 shares. Would this be wise? — N.S.

A. Until there is some indication of earning's recovery I would not add to these shares. Consumer spending, particularly for higher priced items, has been sluggish for many months. Brody, a leading manufacturer of kitchen and dinette furniture, which account for about 65 per cent of sales, has been hurt by consumer reluctance to part with cash.

For the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, sales dropped 4 per cent based on restated 1969 volume, which excluded $2 million contributed by a liquidated subsidiary. An operating loss for the year, equal to $0.21 a share, reflected deficits from the discontinued subsidiary, the trucking strike and reduced volume.

Although some attrition was noted in working capital during fiscal 1970, Brody's financial position is strong. Current assets were 2.3 times current liabilities and the long term debt was reduced 16 per cent to $733,194. Of the 711,300 common shares outstanding, the president and vice president, Harry and Leo Brody, own 58 per cent, leaving a small floating supply. Trading in these shares has been very light in recent months, indicative of the limited following for the stock.

Q. The writer is the owner of 128 American Telephone warrants. Would you advise holding these until the common is worth more than the $52 exercise price? — C.A.

A. Telephone warrants are trading at a 30 per cent premium, which means that the common would have to rise 30 per cent — to over 61 — to justify purchase at this level. Hypothetically, an upmove to $52, or 9.5 per cent, would produce a 60 per cent rise in the warrant, assuming that the 30 per cent premium held.

Unfortunately, this premium tends to narrow as the common stock appreciates, although, on a percentage basis, the lower-priced warrant would normally outperform the higher-based common stock. Warrants should be held for participation in growth anticipated for American Telephone.

Mixed Start For Week On Exchange

After more than three hours, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.96 at 821.81; Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.09 at 90.13; and advances narrowly topped declines, 647 to 611.

Volume at 1 p.m. amounted to 7,940,000 shares, down from 8,890,000 shares traded at a comparable period Friday.

Among the day's most active stocks were Japan Fund off 1/4 on 157,100 shares. Memorex 5⅝ higher on 140,100 shares, Federal National Mortgage off 1¾ on 101,000 shares, and Viacom down 1/2 on 83,700 shares.

Also heavily traded were Walter Kidde, American Electric Power up 1/8, and Union Carbine 1/4 higher.

Less active IBM and Burroughs rose 2 or better, while Telex Corp. and Honeywell tacked on fractions. Steels showed scattered strength, with U.S. Steel and Bethelehem up 3/8 and 1/8, respectively.

Slightly lower, however, were American Telephone, Xerox, General Motors, Chrysler, Du Pont, and Superior Oil.

Building Permits Drop Off

November building activity in Marin County dropped off 37 per cent from last year, according to figures from the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Total building permits for the month were valued at $3,659,491, compared with November permits last year amounting to $5,808,673. Last month's total was also down 38.9 per cent from the $5,989,681 recorded in October.

Novato incorporated and unincorporated areas were in the lead with a total of $1,314,733, most of this residential. Commercial activity amounted to only a small percentage of San Rafael's $590,380 and Mill Valley's $436,935. The $372,805 recorded for the Tiburon peninsula and Belvedere was also mostly residential. Corte Madera showed a respectable $326,260 in permits, but all of them were for miscellaneous construction — no new residential building.

Sausalito's $162,864 was 60 per cent residential, with the balance in miscellaneous construction. The $45,144 for San Anselmo was about half residential and half miscellaneous construction. There was no new residential construction at all included in the $23,300 for Ross, $22,820 for Larkspur or Fairfax's $20,400. Construction in West Marin and other unincorporated areas amounted to $169,350, 70 per cent residential.

Cumulative figures for 11 months of the year stand at $47.3 million — down 21.4 per cent from the $60.4 million during the 1969 period.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

New Lithograph Shop To Open At Northgate Industrial Park

Owner Thomas I. Gehres of San Anselmo, who has been located at 96 Jessie Street, San Francisco under the name of Tom Gehres — Trade Lithographer, has leased space at 53 Mark Drive through William W. Hoey and Co.

Northgate quarters are larger than before and will have more modern equipment — larger camera, film stripping and plate making equipment and a high-speed, two-color envelope press.

INSIDE REMODELING going on in American Savings and Loan Association's offices at 550 Las Gallina's Avenue, Northgate Shopping Center should be completed by the end of the month.

Principal expansion of facilities here will be an enlarged vault, with the installation of safe deposit boxes. These will be offered without charge to customers with $1,000 or more on deposit.

American's Northgate office, now five years old (including about 14 months in a temporary location) has seen impressive growth during this period. Deposits are now over $19 million.

TAGHI REZAIAN, who has operated Rezaian Persian Rug Co. at 256 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley for about a year, has been buying adjoining property with the hope of constructing a larger building for his business. It is sorely needed. He has what he believes is the largest stock of Persian rugs in Northern California — imported from his father in Iran.

GLENN R. McQUISTON of Belvedere (a Marin resident only since the first of this month) is new vice president of Security Management Corp. which recently moved to the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae from Sausalito. He is a former investment company executive from Pennsylvania.

FIRESIDE THRIFT has promoted John R. Kelsch, now living in Corte Madera, to assistant secretary and manager of its San Rafael office at 1011 C Street. He has been with the company about 18 months working as new business representative out of Redwood City. Before that he was four years with G A C Finance Corp. in Oakland. With him at the San Rafael office is head teller Joan Torres.

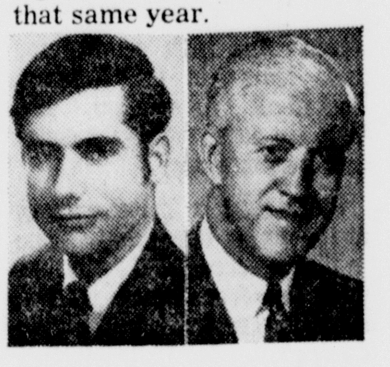
FREDERIC S. ALLEN JR. of Ross will open Wells Fargo Bank's new San Marino office in Los Angeles County as manager on Dec. 30. Formerly assistant manager of the Mill Valley office, he joined the bank in 1963 and was named credit officer at Mill Valley in 1964. He was promoted to assistant manager of the Brentwood office in South San Francisco in 1966 and reassigned to Mill Valley later that same year.



REAL ESTATE: Lester R. Johnson of Belvedere has joined Stephen Kramer, Realtor in San Rafael. He was formerly with Coldwell, Banker and Co. and before that was sales manager of the Diebold Co. Also new at the Kramer office is H. G. (Hy) Gravitch of Loch Lomond, a broker and for many years a member of the San Francisco Real Estate Board . . . Earle and Solvason, Corte Madera reports serving 47 per cent more transferred executives through Inter-City Relocation Service, Inc. during the 12 months ended Oct. 31 than during the preceding year.

FOAM FITTED BOOTS are something new in ski gear, different from earlier molded boots, and there is a machine that custom fits them while you wait.

A new device by Beconta, Inc., it is designed to be used with Nordica Astral boots. Special inner liners go inside plastic shells, the feet go in the liners and the machine injects liquid foam to create a mold to the configuration of the skiers' feet. It's all done in 10 minutes.

Stan's for Sports has the equipment for it.

'A Little Corn And Oil' Has Come A Long Way

More than three quarters of a century ago, Mark Twain, in an essay on "Purchasing Civic Virtue," cited what he saw as parallels between the United States of that day and the Roman Empire in the years of its decay.

Teachers of his youth, Mark Twain recalled, had pointed to the virtues of republican Rome and how they were lost in the so-called glories of the empire.

"The teacher reminded us that Rome's liberties were not auctioned off in a day," he wrote, "but were bought slowly, gradually, little by little; first with a little corn and oil for the exceedingly poor and wretched, later with corn and oil for voters who were not quite so poor, later still with corn and oil for pretty much every man that had a vote to sell — exactly our own history over again . . .

"We have the two Roman conditions: stupendous wealth with its inevitable corruptions and moral blight, and the corn and oil pensions — that is to say, vote bribes, which have taken away the pride of thousands of tempted men and turned them into willing alms receivers and unashamed."

THE GOVERNMENT largesse (or vote bribes) against which the sage of Hannibal was railing consisted of what he saw as unconscionable extension of Civil War pensions.

Their effect on the whole American body politic cannot have been great. But the seed had been planted.

Could Sam Clemens have foreseen how that seed would grow and flower by 1970, no doubt he would have been seized by an extreme fit of apoplexy. It would have confirmed all too completely his thesis in "Purchasing Civic Virtue" that the United States was headed toward monarchism — whether or not the populace actually crowned its hero as did the Romans.

THE VOTE BRIBES that Mark Twain saw in an extension of war service pensions were as nothing compared to the vote bribes of our generation in the form of the dole, federal "allotments" to local governments, federal "grants" to research organizations, federal contracts which make whole sections of the nation dependent for a major source of livelihood on the whims of those in power (as, for instance, the Seattle area on government contracts to the Boeing Aircraft Corp., the San Francisco Peninsula on government spending on the space program).

Other observers in recent years have seen parallels between the course of the United States and that of Rome in the years of its downfall. Mark Twain detected the beginning long ago. He was ahead of his time.

NO BETTER PROOF of his thesis is needed than the cries of outrage heard from some quarters because President Nixon and Governor Reagan have suggested that able-bodied persons be required to work for the taxpayers' money handed to them as welfare.

What started as "a little corn and oil" has become a great deal more. And it is inevitable that what started as distribution of alms to the helpless needy has turned into what Mark Twain called it: a vast "vote bribe" which has robbed both those receiving it and those taxed to pay it of much of their freedom.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Sen.-elect Peter H. Behr will take office in two weeks for what normally would be a four-year term. But he very well may have to face a re-election campaign in two years.

His problem is that redistricting of the state this coming legislative session almost certainly means radical surgery on his Fourth Senatorial District.

The only way Behr will be able to avoid facing re-election will be to be living in the Fourth District in 1972 — whereever it may be by then — and to be lucky enough to have no other incumbent senator lumped into the redrawn district. It now includes all of Marin and Napa and most of Solano.

BEHR'S PROBLEM starts with the fact that San Francisco does not have enough population. With 20 million people in the state and 40 senators to go around, each of the senate districts will need about 500,000 people. San Francisco, however, has only 710,000 people while it has two senators, Democrat George Moscone and Republican Milton Marks.

Two senators will have to spell almost a million people, leaving San Francisco with a deficit of some 290,000 souls.

Some thought had been given to picking up the 290,000 in northern San Mateo County. It would have become part of Moscone's district since it had a Democratic edge in registration.

But this solution had to be junked when Democrat Arlen Gregorio won in San Mateo. He will need those Democratic votes in the northern part of his county.

Democrat John Holmdahl won in the East Bay, foreclosing a move there to pick up San Francisco's deficit. That left Marin as the obvious target. There's even a precedent in Rep. William S. Mailliard, whose Sixth Congressional District includes western San Francisco and most of Marin.

SAN FRANCISCO'S population deficit could not be covered just by Marin's 204,000 total. The San Francisco district could make it up, however, by taking in Sonoma County south of Santa Rosa. The net effect would be to add to one of San Francisco's senate districts everyone living in the Seventh Assembly District now represented by William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

San Francisco, of course, would have to abandon its present system of electing each senator at-large.

The northern end of Bagley's district, incidentally, probably will be lopped off, making the Seventh District again a largely Marin creature. Most of Sonoma thus may get its own assemblyman.

The betting in the Senate redistricting is that Marks will be the one to get the district extended northward. Moscone, after all, is a leader of the majority party, and presumably would use that power to hold onto his more comfortable base at home.

Marin, it seems, again will become a political football for San Francisco's benefit.

And Behr is likely to get bruised when the football gets kicked.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Confusion In Terms On 'Liberal Arts'

Your editorial "Devotion to Liberal Arts: Cult of the Dilettante" (Dec. 12) has an unconvincing aspect to it. The suggestion of the article is that the liberal arts vis a vis the productive arts are useless and unimportant. As a consequence, the liberal arts should be de-emphasized in favor of engineering, science (technology, I assume) and business. This is the view of Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, of acting President Earl W. Jones of Sonoma State College, and of the editor.

The troublesome aspect of this argument is that (a) it is a judgment about the most important things in our society, namely, how we are to educate the young, and, implicitly, what are the aims and purposes of our society as a whole; and (b) it is a judgment that makes use of liberal education. Dr. Hayakawa, President Jones, and editor Craemer are not speaking as engineers, technologists or businessmen when they pronounce on the importance of the liberal arts. This "wisdom" which they are using (for non-productive purposes incidentally) pertains to liberal education.

Dr. Hayakawa rightly points out that the ancient Greeks promoted "liberal education" apart from the productive arts. They did this because they saw that it was not only important to know how to make better products, but it was more important to know how to use them. Knowledge is power only for the wise man . . .

Western civilization grew upon these "liberal arts," and it collapses today, in large measure, because they have eroded. When Dr. Hayakawa observes that "campus unrest is centered in liberal arts areas" is he not talking about the false coin of liberal education?

The question is not whether to keep the liberal arts. The question itself is an exercise of the liberal arts. The question is today, as ever, what is the truth of things? Dr. Hayakawa does not think it is to be found in the version of liberal education abroad in our colleges. That is wise. When sociology, semantics, and the so-called humanities — all tending toward social engineering (a productive skill) — are substituted for the genuine and time honored liberal arts this is an atrocity . . .

On Comparing Pay Of Teachers

Let's set the record straight for Mr. (Hyman I.) Krongard, the school teacher, about the earnings of overpaid tradesmen and the underpaid teachers ("Readers Say," Dec. 3). The actual pay of the carpenter, plumber and electrician in the Bay Area ranges from $6.28 to $7.97½ per hour when employed. (No tenure.) The unemployment rate for these trades has varied from 25 to 50 per cent, it is therefore very obvious that the delectable plumn in the teaching profession known as tenure is denied to all except teachers. I don't know of another occupation that rewards the inefficient as well as the deserving a yearly raise plus a cost of living adjustment . . .

I have additional news for this gentleman. He seems to think that payroll deduction is limited to teachers alone. I sincerely hope that his teaching is far superior to his research . . . otherwise he is one of the grossly overpaid teachers in our school system . . .

If we are to judge the quality of education by the number of unmotivated, unprepared and uneducated students graduating from our schools today I would say that many tenured, unmotivated teachers are accepting especially fine salaries under false pretenses and are grossly overpaid for the rubbish that they teach. As for his deep compassion for his fellow underpaid teachers I would suggest that he change his priorities as follows: 1. To the overburdened taxpayers. 2. To the thousands of professional people in the fields of engineering, accounting, business executives who are unemployed and may never be able to find jobs again in their chosen fields because of the state of the economy in this country today. 3. To the thousands of store clerks, secretaries, etc., who earn from $2 to $3.50 per hour and must work 50 weeks per year to qualify for two weeks vacation.

In closing, I regard the teaching profession very highly . . . I have a daughter with teaching credentials in both California and Massachusetts and a son at Ohio State College school of agriculture at Wooster, O., doing research work in entomology. I believe that as parents my wife and I had a great deal of influence in guiding our two children into the educational field. We both feel very strongly that it is a very vital and prestigious occupation, well paid and with the opportunity for dedicated professionals to guide our youth in the right direction.

Need More Liberal Arts Emphasis

As a liberal arts graduate who spend part of his productive time teaching liberal arts subject (interpersonal communication) at College of Marin I was greatly offended by your Saturday editorial (Dec. 12) on the subject. Apparently you consider thinking to be a non-productive activity that should be de-emphasized.

I admired Dr. S.I. Hayakawa greatly as a semantics scholar to whom I owe much. But in politics he is off base more frequently than on target, and his attempts to manipulate history to support an anti-intellectual bias are tortuous to say the least. The quality that made ancient Greece what it was was not the physical labor of its slaves — they existed in every ancient country — but precisely the efforts of those "non-productive dilenttantes" in analytical and constructive thinking about the society in which they lived rather than taking it for granted.

Rather than de-emphasizing liberal arts we should require every student, regardless of his primary discipline, to take one such course every semester. In this fashion his eyes might be opened to what is really important in the world: people, not things. He would look beyond the narrow discipline that enables him to make a living while the world beyond him crumbles, instead of merely entering the job market as another servile cog.

If it is "elitism" to question the wisdom of a society of elders who have made the biggest mess the world has ever been in — so be it!

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21, 1960

Protest by the Dixie School District delayed for at least a year an election on annexation of Terra Linda to San Rafael.

Jane's "All the World's Aircraft" reported that the United States was developing a pilotless plane that could be used in germ and chemical warfare.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21, 1950

The state Department of Public Works announced it had received a low bid of $1,032,455 to reconstruct to four lanes the three-lane "death strip" of Highway 101 north of San Rafael.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said American casualties in the fortnight of worst retreat in Korea totaled 11,964 killed, wounded and missing.

THE DRUMMONDS

Humphrey's Party Unity Plan Looks Difficult To Accomplish

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — Hubert Humphrey has a beat-Nixon plan which may be the Democrats' best hope.

In effect it would help Sen. Edmund Muskie and hurt Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Humphrey believes the Democratic party simply can't afford to spend the money, time and energy and cut itself to pieces in a series of political blood-letting primaries.

Instead, it must save its money, its talent and its unity for the real contest against President Nixon.

HUMPHREY IS URGING his colleagues to avoid what he calls "this path to political disaster.' His alternative:

1. — Encourage every Democratic presidential aspirant to get maximum exposure throughout 1971 to show how they stand with party workers, with Democratic voters and with the whole electorate.

2. — By December next year it will almost certainly be evident which candidate has a commanding lead.

3. — At that time the rivals and the party leaders should unite behind him to bring about his nomination under circumstances to enable him to enter the championship bout with a good chance of winning.

IS IT DESIRABLE? Can it be done?

Humphrey is quite aware that it has never happened before and that usually the Democrats fight harder and more bitterly over the nomination than the Republicans.

His view is that today's circumstances are different and demand a way to the nomination which doesn't tear the party apart and dissipate its lean resources. His arguments:

His own election in Minnesota this November and that of a Democratic governor show what can be achieved when the dissident factions of the party are brought together in the common cause of victory.

The Democrats, already $9.5 million in debt, simply can't command the money to conduct a nationwide series of primaries against each other and expect to get enough contributions to pay for an effective campaign in the finals.

Unless campaign spending is radically cut by law, the Democrats will be at a perilous disadvantage in '72. Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien estimates that the GOP will have about $50 million to spend on the presidential campaign, Democrats $5 million to $10 million.

The overriding need of the Democratic party is to achieve political unity rather than dissipate it in the strife of primaries.

And the drumbeat of all of Humphrey's advice to the party is: Don't underestimate the power of President Nixon. Get ready to focus all our resources on the main event.

CAN HUMPHREY bring it off? Conceivably — but there is one major argument against it and one barrier in front of it.

At the very time when the Democratic party is trying to democratize the nominating convention and lead the way to "participation politics," can it afford to put the nomination so visibly in the hands of the party leadership? This could alienate many normally pro-Democratic voters.

Different Christmas Play – By Very Different Cast

By Ernest B. Furgurson

WASHINGTON — Before the lights dim, the cast and stagehands rap with the audience, hugging sweethearts and mothers, joking with kids. One actor sits still while a girl friend combs out his Afro natural.

The audience, in the auditorium of a downtown Unitarian church, is black and white. The blacks are dressed as if for Sunday, the whites mostly in sweaters and slacks, for a weekday evening's informal entertainment.

The set is a plain but realistic men's prison dormitory. Bunks, stools, wall lockers, a table with the words "Ain't No Love" scrawled on the side.

To warm up, the cast sings a few songs, makes living group statues expressing fear, sorrow and hope, and takes turns demonstrating versions of the ghetto strut that used to be called hot-dogging.

THE PLAY is titled "Christmas in Time." A master of ceremonies explains, "We all already know about white Christmas — this production is going to tell us about a black Christmas."

The house lights drop, the footlights go up and a perfectly cast company begins its work. A primping pimp called Sporting Life and his flunky, Weasel; a mostly comic team named Lookout Fats and Stickemup Slim; a studious newcomer called Youngun; a bitter veteran named Hardrock; a silent, depressed Confucius and his brother Joe-Joe, just out of solitary for Christmas, and a cute homo prison mailman called Flossie.

By the time each character has established himself, the bitterness beneath their horseplay is clear. Then Hardrock states it:

"Black Christmas is one where there's no turkey on the table. . . and someone's missing. Usually it is the old man. It's where everyone is taking and no one is giving, because if you want anything you have to take it."

WEASEL SNEAKS in with a bottle of prison-made rotgut under his jacket. "Have a drink," one man says to the reluctant Youngun. "It'll help you forget Christmas."

Another reads a letter from home, about the baby being scared by Santa Claus. The others laugh. He responds. "Suppose you ran into a big old fat black cat with a red suit and white beard and saying 'Ho, ho, ho!'? That'd scare you to death, man."

After Flossie appears and everyone on stage seems softened by his/her affection, the hitherto braggardly Sporting Life narrates a ghetto version of the first Christmas.

It's about this cat who just got out of jail and went to his pregnant wife and tried to find her a bed. Finally they spent the night on a flophouse floor, and their baby was born there. The three men who pass by and testify to the event are "one big-time numbers writer one boss crapshooter and one professional stickup man."

"The last word I got about the baby he was uptight had jumped bail and was doing good out on the West Coast," Sporting Life concludes, and his brothers approve his version.

Reading back over this disjointed description, I realize it gives no inkling of the impact the play had on those watching, who stood and applauded till their palms were sore when it was over. You need to have been there.

You also need to know that the production was perfectly cast because the actors were playing themselves: they are prisoners at the District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Va.

They are members of a group called the Inner Voices which began performing inside the prison last year and now has taken its talent into the community. Besides "Christmas in Time," they have mastered two other productions, a tribute to Martin Luther King and a series of skits performed at local schools and on educational television offering the voices of experience on why drug abuse is suicidal.

THE SWEETHEARTS and relatives out front come to every performance. It is a kind of extra visiting privilege, a dividend for those who take part on and backstage.

Holiday Spirit Brings Brief Respite From Board's Secrecy Phobia

We sort of smiled in sympathy last summer when they announced they were going to collect 800,000 Betty Crocker box tops to trade in for a kidney machine. We gave them as much chance as a youngster collecting tinfoil from Lifesavers to build a battleship.

But just the other day, Recreation Director Bill Gordon of Marinwood revealed they've already got something like 750,000 box tops, and will soon be able to plunk down their box tops to claim a new kidney machine.

The spirit of helping other is especially pronounced this time of year, says Gordon. Cub Scout Pack 64 is collecting clothes, toys and a canned goods for families in need. And the Funsters (senior citizens) are still campaigning for money for the Nathan Seidenberg Fund, to help children of Highway Patrolman Seidenberg, who died in an auto crash in October.

For a brief moment this time of year, the spirit of giving and helping provides welcome respite from violence and hate.

COME JANUARY, we'll get right back to clobbering each other over such burning issues as Civic Center security.

The public will put up with a lot, when the occasion calls for it. When security measures sealed off the Civic Center buildings after the Oct. 8 courtroom bombing, the big majority took it in stride. They even put up with body and baggage searches.

Now, after two months of the stop-and-frisk system, which seems to be getting more intense as weeks go by, the public is showing signs of discontent and even revolt.

We hope that the new year will permit a general relaxation in the rules, although a return to normal is not likely, at least until disposition of the Angela Davis case.

EVENTS OF THE last two months give us an inkling of how a police state can operate.

The supervisors on Oct. 13 ordered a special 18-man security force to guard the entrances, and authorized "related physical changes" to seal off the accesses around the building.

We didn't realize how extensive those "related physical changes" would be until the other day when they awarded contracts for about $40,000 in grillwork and called for bids on steel fences at both ends of the building.

There's an example of how fear of conspiratorial attack can be used to justify government by secrecy. There's no reason why those fences would not have been just as effective, had they been discussed in public before going to bid.

THE COUNTY supervisors are trying to get legal sanction for even secrecy. Among bills proposed for 1971 is an amendment to the Ralph M. Brown Act to permit local governments can meet in secret "to protect citizens, public buildings, facilities, and services from revolutionary or conspiratorial attack, in those instances were effectiveness of security measures would be vitiated by public revelation."

In plain language, that means: in protecting you from conspiratorial attack, we will meet in secret whenever we feel public disclosure might hurt the effectiveness of security.

That bill is not yet law. It hasn't even been introduced as yet. And the legislators may not even want to touch it.

And yet, even without benefit of such a law, the county supervisors have seen fit to quietly build a steel fence with barbed wire on top. The public had no chance to discuss the pro and con; they didn't even know such a fence was planned.

WE'RE NOT asking them to reveal any secret codes the sheriff may use over his walkie talkie, or detailed battle plans in the event of a emergency. But certainly, the public has enough sense and enough and enough taxes invested in the Civic Center to be consulted before fences or guard towers are erected.

If they can spring a steel fence with barbed wire around one end of the Civic Center, even without benefit of their hoped-for new law, you can imagine what they'll do if they ever succeed in getting that law passed.

Any future fence, barricade, gun tower, moat, or machine gun nest could be hatched in secrecy, all in the name of public security, "whose effectiveness would be vitiated by public revelation."

President Weakens Own Pledge On Open Housing

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon says his administration is going to enforce the open housing laws, but is not going to force integration on the suburbs. That sounds like another loud argument getting ready to happen.

Just as he did in the case of school desegregation, Nixon said he would apply the letter of the law to the even more emotional field of housing. He said that forbids federal housing or urban renewal aid to communities that practice discrimination and show no sign of changing.

ALL CLEAR so far. But then the President moved into the area of the spirit of the law, and gave what he interprets it not to mean. It doesn't mean, he said "forced integration of the suburbs." That's where the hatchet hits the rock.

First, "forced integration" is one of those phrases like "free choice" or "right to work." Who would be in favor of the picture "forced integration" evokes—the massive power of a pitiless federal government crushing the will of decent, citizens whose only sin is seeking a quiet safe neighborhood where they can rear their children and raise flowers in peace and safety?

Except that there are people who don't get that image. They see a picture of the racist or selfish middle and upper classes setting themselves up in suburban comfort and privilege while using every device imaginable to keep blacks and poor people locked in the rundown inner cities. They see use of "forced integration" as an attempt to make enforcement of a long-delayed civil right sound tyrannical, or ridiculous, as speed limits might if called "forced slow driving" laws.

THE SECOND source of controversy is more legalistic. The President obviously is right in saying he will enforce the law and no more. But while the President certainly has to have an understanding of what the law provides, his opinion in that regard is not final. The same Constitution that tells him to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed" reserves to the courts final judgment of exactly what the law requires and forbids.

If the Nixon declaration should mean that the administration intends to give a soft interpretation to the open housing laws, the President should not count on everyone placidly accepting his word that a matter of "forced integration" is involved.

This is of some note because the open housing issue is moving into a new phase. With the law flatly forbidding owners, landlords and real estate operators from denying housing to anyone because of their race, religion or national origin, overt discrimination has started to fade.
